Lakers Nip Frederick In Overtime, Edged By Cats

A 76-73 overtime win at home against Frederick Community College, followed by a 65-59 defeat by home-standing Potomac State College were the results of a pair of games played this past week by the men's basketball team of Garrett College, results which left the Lakers with an overall record of 10-5.

A pair of dunks in the final minute of overtime by leading scorers Kevin Essex and James Jones sealed Saturday night's victory over Frederick.

The Lakers held a 37-32 advantage at halftime, but the visitors came back to knot the score at 64 apiece to send the contest into overtime. The score remained close in the extra period until the final minute, when the Lakers recorded two steals and capitalized on them with the dunks by Essex and Jones.

Essex and Jones each finished with 19 points, while Lee Parris netted 12 and Rashaun Copeland contributed 11. Jones also pulled down eight rebounds, Parris blocked four shots, and Antuon Townsend led the Lakers in assists.

The Cougars were paced by Gordy Clark in scoring with 19 points and in rebounding with a game-high 10, while Ellis Hopkins also reached double figures with 12.

The Lakers won the game at the foul line, from which they converted 19 of 25 attempts, while Frederick made good on six of nine shots. Frederick led in field goals, 31-28, and also finished with a commanding lead in rebounds, 52-31.

Monday's loss to Potomac State was unexpected by most area fans since the Lakers hammered the Catamounts, 76-55, in the first meeting between the two teams early in the season.

Potomac State's Jon Meachem hit a three-pointer at the buzzer to end the first half of action, giving the home team a 31-24 advantage. The Lakers came back in the second half, but some late three-point shooting by the Catamounts iced their eighth win in 14 starts.

Chadd Wood led the winners with 15 points, while Nelson Jones and Jason Bridges recorded 11 and 10 points, respectively. Nine of Jones's points came on three three-pointers in the final 10 minutes. Bridges also recorded five rebounds, three assists, and three steals. Wood also had four rebounds and four assists.

Jose Cabre contributed nine points, had four steals, and led the team in rebounding with seven.

Leading the Lakers were Kevin Essex and Lee Parris, who each netted 12 points. Antuon Townsend also reached double figures with 10 points.

The Catamounts hit nine long-range goals for the night, compared to three by the Lakers. It was also the lowest number of points scored in a single game by Garrett so far this season.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad will go back on the road this week for a game at Chesapeake this Friday and a contest with the College of Southern Maryland on Saturday in LaPlata. They will play at home again next Wednesday night against Montgomery College, Germantown, with the tip-off set for 7 p.m.

Lakers Stifle Prince George's With Major Defensive Effort

The Garrett College women's basketball team played the part of inhospitable host Saturday as the Lakers sent visiting Prince George's packing with a 64-52 defeat. The victory, the last outing in GC's nine-game homestand that began with November's season opener, boosts the squad's record to 6-3.

"It was a big win for us," commented Garrett coach Steve Willison afterward. "Our defense is winning games for us, and is a major factor in every game we play." The Lakers have yet to give up over 70 points in a contest.

GC's offense was paced by freshman guard LaSha Anderson, who poured in 20 points and a trio of three-pointers. The Martinsburg, W.Va., native shared game-high rebounding honors with teammates Tiffany McFarland and LaTonya Crowder. McFarland recorded 14 points, and Angel Kendall contributed a fine all-around effort with 11 points, four assists, and three steals. Lauren McLean led PG with 19 points, and teammate Tonya Harris had 18 points as the pair combined for 37 of their squad's 52 points.

The Lakers will be living out of their duffel bags in coming weeks, as out of their remaining 14 regular season games, only two will take place in the friendly confines of the McHenry gym. Garrett travels to CCAC-South today, Thursday, for a make-up game, sojourn to Harford on Saturday, then visit arch-rival Allegany Monday for a 4:45 p.m. battle. Garrett returns to McHenry on Wednesday to host Anne Arundel in a 5 p.m. contest.

Crisis Commission Working Hard, But Coming Up Short On Nurses

by Maria Tsigas
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's most severe nursing shortage since the 1980s has turned into a crisis, and with constant complaints from patients about the poor quality of care they're receiving, legislators are looking to the commission they created in 2000 for answers.

The Statewide Commission on the Crisis in Nursing is almost 2½ years into its five-year run, and its progress thus far is receiving mixed reviews.

"I'm glad the commission is so actively pursuing answers, but in the meantime, the [nursing] crisis is probably growing worse," said Sen. Paula Hollinger, D-Baltimore County. Hollinger, a registered nurse who sponsored the original legislation that created the commission in March 2000, did not call the commission a failure or a success. She just said, "It is a work in progress."

The commission's past legislative successes include the creation of nursing school scholarships, limiting overtime, and whistle blower protection for all health care workers in the state. But then-Gov. Parris N. Glendening vetoed a popular recommendation to allow nurse practitioners to serve as primary caregivers, a move that prompted Hollinger's resignation from the panel.

"The commission is doing the best it can. It is tackling a very big and complicated issue in a very organized way," said Delegate Marilyn Goldwater, also a registered nurse and original sponsor of the bill.

Goldwater said she considers the commission successful in identifying problems and offering solutions.

"Now we have to make the solutions work, which takes money, and that's very difficult right now with the budget," she said.

Maryland is facing a $1.2 billion shortfall for fiscal 2004. Hollinger acknowledges that solutions exist that are not legislative. However, immediate solutions have to be out there.

"We can't be just talking to each other. We have to get things done," she said. "Here we are back in the Legislature and nothing has crossed my desk in months."

Most problems associated with the nursing shortage cannot be remedied through the state Legislature, said Maryland Hospital Association vice president Catherine Crowley, a registered nurse. The commission, she said, has provided something that has not existed in the past — "a forum for conversation about what's good for nursing across the state."

The commission has been successful in bringing together a variety of disciplines — nurses, hospital administrators, educators, nursing school administrators, and lawmakers. It has also had legislative success, said Delegate Adrienne Mandel, D-Montgomery, an original sponsor of the bill and member of the commission. However, Mandel said although she has not seen any nursing legislation yet, "that doesn't mean we (the commission) are not active."

Several pieces of health care legislation are on the docket for the 2003 General Assembly, according to Pamela Owens, assistant director in the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's governmental affairs office, but there is no mention of any upcoming nursing legislation.

The commission held its first meeting of the year last Jan. 10. Arlene Stephenson, acting DHMH secretary, opened the meeting by saying her department is facing major budget cuts. The department will lose $50 million by June 2003, and its workforce will be trimmed 10 percent, she said. In the meantime, up to 4,120 Maryland hospital positions are unfilled, more than 2,000 of them nursing positions. This number has been steadily increasing since 1997, according to a personnel survey conducted by the Maryland Hospital Association in 2001. Nationally, estimates put the shortage of nurses at 400,000 by 2020.

The commission's 2001-2002 report is due to the General Assembly at end of month. The commission's next meeting will be in April.

Study Says Working Poor Lose Hundreds To Tax Preparers

by Sarah Schaffer
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Many of Maryland's working poor are needlessly paying to have their taxes prepared and then handing over portions of their returns for quick loans that carry high interest, according to a study released this week. The Brookings Institution study of taxpayers receiving the earned-income tax credit looked at 27 jurisdictions around the country, including Baltimore City and Allegany County.

"Too many families in low-income communities are falling prey" to tax preparers who charge "unconscionable" interest rates, said Annie E. Casey Foundation president Douglas W. Nelson, as he unveiled the study Monday.

The earned-income tax credit is available to working-poor families. Unlike most other tax credits, a family receiving the earned income credit "can claim any credit dollars left over once its tax liability has been reduced to zero," according to the Brookings report.

It found that more than one in four tax filers in Baltimore received the credit in tax year 2000, which provided an average return of $1,717 per family. Just over 15 percent of Allegany County families earned the credit at an average of $1,517.

But the report also said that 52 percent of the Baltimore families receiving the credit wound up turning a portion of it over to a commercial tax preparer in exchange for a "fast cash" refund. About 30 percent of the Allegany County families earning the credit also paid for "refund-anticipation loans" instead of waiting for the return check to come in the mail.

"What we have been finding is that a lot of our clients use tax preparation services," said Courtney Thomas of the Human Resources Development Commission, a community action association in Allegany County. "None of them are really sure of how much they are paying for the services, which is a little disturbing. It just seems as if they get the bottom-line figure without seeing how much the companies are actually charging for the refund."

The report said refund-anticipation loans get taxpayers an advance on their refund "only about eight to 10 days sooner" than if they had electronically filed on their own using the Internal Revenue Service's direct-deposit refund option. The study said a filer getting a $2,000 refund, including the earned-income tax credit, could expect to pay $100 or more in refund-anticipation loan fees. And Alan Berube, a senior research analyst at Brookings, said the fees can vary drastically from business to business.

"When we surveyed about 60 tax preparation services in and around Washington, we found that the fees ranged anywhere from $40 to $400," he said.

Besides fees, the report said the annualized interest on such loans can run from 67 percent to an "astounding" 774 percent.

But H&R Block spokeswoman Denise Sposato said the tax preparation company makes it a point to explain the options to clients.

"It is our policy that we always discuss the other options when discussing tax preparation," she said. "The final decision rests with them."

Families can save money by using free tax preparation services, which are available in virtually all jurisdictions in the state, said Jennifer Williams, spokesperson for the Maryland Earned Income Credit campaign.

The National Tax Assistance for Working Families campaign is using its "Earn It, Keep It, Save It" slogan to raise awareness among families eligible for the earned-income credit. Thomas, who is director of community resources and housing at the Allegany County agency, said most of her clients are coming off Christmas and need every bit of their refund to pay their bills.

"A refund of $1,200 to $1,500 seems like a lot of money when you make $7,000 a year," she said.

Pa. Man Faces Charges After Saturday Crash

A Meyersdale, Pa., man was charged by Maryland State Police troopers after a two-vehicle collision Saturday afternoon just south of Keyser's Ridge.

Hiram McElmurry, 26, was attempting to turn left from southbound Garrett Highway onto Diesel School Road when he was blinded by sunlight. He pulled his 1990 Chevrolet Cavalier into the path of an oncoming 1997 Nissan pickup truck operated by Kenneth Harper, 32, Burlington, W.Va. The ensuing collision injured Harper's passenger, Lisa Myers, 38, Keyser, W.Va., who required transport by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Personnel from the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

McElmurry was charged with failure to yield right-of-way.

Identity Theft Growing Problem In Maryland

by Elizabeth A. Shack
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Cases of identity theft in Maryland jumped sharply last year, when 3,497 people reported theft of personal information that was later used to commit fraud, the Federal Trade Commission reported Wednesday. That was up from 1,976 cases in Maryland the year before, according to the FTC. The state increase approached a national increase of 87.7 percent in identity thefts, from 86,198 reports in 2001 to 161,819 last year.

Despite the increase in reported cases, Maryland fell from fourth-worst to ninth-worst state in the nation for reports of identity theft per capita. There were 66 reports of identity theft per 100,000 people in Maryland in 2002, up from 37.3 per 100,000 a year earlier.

Identity theft has been at the top of the FTC's list of fraud reporting since it was first tracked in 2000. By 2002, it accounted for 43 percent of the fraud complaints to the commission.

Identity theft losses stem from the misuse of information like credit card, bank account, and Social Security numbers. But the increase in complaints does not necessarily mean an increase in the crime, said J. Howard Beales III, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer protection. He said the change might result from the fact that more law enforcement agencies and more consumers know to report the crime to the FTC.

"It may be growing, it may be not. We can't tell from the complaint data that we have," he said.

The number of business, police and governmental agencies that report to the FTC stands at 630, up from 411 the previous year. Those organizations accounted for about half the reports to the FTC last year, while the other half came directly from the victims themselves.

Maryland's relatively high rate of identity theft may relate to the relatively high income of its residents, Curran said.

"I would think we are probably a higher income state, and people (criminals) are inclined to use a higher income person than a person of moderate means," he said.

People often do not know how, or when, their identifying information was stolen, Beales said. "Sometimes people don't know for years," he said. "When consumers tend to find out is when there's a collection."

The only way consumers can be certain their identity has been stolen before someone comes looking for money is to check their credit reports, he said. Consumers should weigh the cost and time of checking their reports against the risk of letting it go unchecked, Beales said.

In Maryland, people have the right to obtain a free copy of their credit report once a year, said Curran, adding that consumers need to protect themselves.

"People are not being as careful as they should be with their personal information," he said. "Personal information should remain very, very confidential because it's used to apply for credit."

Beales said consumers should not leave credit card receipts with their account number lying around. Bank account numbers and Social Security numbers should not be given out without a good reason.

But Beales said some information is stolen from within legitimate businesses by unscrupulous employees, which points to the need to check credit reports from time to time.

"It's a significant law enforcement problem and a significant business education problem," Beales said.

a $30 million cut. The fund was established in 1999 as result of a national tobacco settlement with the states. Maryland lawmakers allocated $800 million to the fund, with $30 million/year for 10 years going to tobacco prevention programs and $50 million a year for 10 years going to cancer control programs.

The $30 million cut meant "we would have to put off some projects for a year," Stephenson said. That could include a million-dollar contract recently granted to a Washington research firm to evaluate the state's tobacco program.

"We looked at how we could spread the cuts across various programs. We tried to spread the pain," Stephenson added.

The director of the health department's Cigarette Restitution Fund Program, Carlessia A. Hussein, said, "We are clearly able to operate at these numbers."

Media counter marketing such as anti-tobacco ads are the type of programs that will be trimmed, Hussein said.

However, Kari Appler, director of Smoke Free Maryland, said the cuts may appear minor but could have long-term consequences.

"Prevent it now or pay for it later, in the form of disease," she said. The cuts are "very disappointing," she said, adding that the 2003 funding, $30 million, was the minimum required by CDC guidelines to run tobacco prevention and cessation programs.

"It will be felt at the ground-level services," said Eric Gally, a contract lobbyist for the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Association. "People screened and treated in 2003 won't be, in 2004."

School Spending

The University System of Maryland said in a statement late Friday that "the budget reflects the harsh reality of our state."

"The proposal calls for the USM to make additional cuts to this year's budget and provides a fiscal year 2004 baseline budget only slightly higher than our 2001 budget," the release said.

"The immediate reductions and proposed fiscal year 2004 budget will require difficult decisions, but we are committed to taking the steps necessary to protect our core missions of education, research and service," the statement said.

The system, which last week alerted students to a possible mid-year tuition hike, has scheduled a series of public hearings to gauge public opinion on the issue. Some said the cuts are only fair since higher education "got the disproportionate share (of funds) when times were good."

"When you look at higher education, certainly the former governor (Parris Glendening) funded higher education at very high levels," said Sen. Andrew P. Harris, it-Baltimore County. "I don't think it's unreasonable to go to those who have benefited most from past budget years and ask them to be cut."

Left out of Ehrlich's budget discussion Friday was what percentage of the $395 million in anticipated revenue from slot machines, if any, would be put toward education.

Ehrlich spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver said the governor would not commit to a slots figure "until we have the legislation finished." But it is an issue for legislators who might favor slots if they knew the revenue was going to schools.

"Those of us who are inclined to vote for a slots bill are inclined to do so if the money goes toward education," said Sen. Paula Hollinger, D-Baltimore County, chairperson of the Education, Health and Environmental Affairs Committee. "I don't want slot money going into the general fund."

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

If I want a hot cheese sandwich, is it cheaper to use a toaster oven or the microwave?

For virtually any kind of cooking at all, it is always cheaper to use the microwave than a toaster.

A toaster cooks by surrounding the object with heat radiation. When the elements of the toaster glow a bright red, that tells you that a lot of heat radiation is being given off. But much of that energy just winds up going out into the room, not into the food being cooked.

Microwave radiation, on the other hand, only does one thing: It makes water molecules rotate. Lots of rapidly rotating water molecules inside an object (a chicken, a potato, a cheese sandwich, a cup of tea, ...) bash into other molecules and dissipate a lot of heat right at that spot; the object thus warms up and is "cooked" from the inside out.

The efficiency of heat transfer is much better in a microwave oven. Try this: Put nothing in a toaster and run it for one cycle; notice the heat when you hold your hand near it. Next, put nothing in a microwave oven and run it; then open it and stick your hand in and notice the absence of heat.

To achieve the same internal temperature (degree of cooking), the microwave wins every time.

Of course, some foods cry out for a crispy exterior — fish sticks come to mind. There's very little water in the fish stick's outer coating, so the microwave oven can't really cook it the way it cooks the interior. And who wants soggy french fries? Stick with a conventional oven (or toaster oven) for such foods.

REGATTA WINNERS ANNOUNCED – Cub Scout Pack 70 of Broad Ford Elementary School held a Raingutter Regatta earlier this month. The event was held at the school and was attended by the Scouts' family and friends. Twenty-six Cub Scouts ranging from Tiger Cubs to Webelos built their own sailboats and held an informal race. The sailboats were placed in a raingutter filled with water, and each Scout provided power for the boat by blowing air into its sail. Pictured above are the winners. Left to right are Ryan Miller, third place, Ryan Cooper, second place, and Taylor Gosnell, first place. The Scouts will also construct their own cars and race them in a pinewood derby, which will be held on Feb. 21.

special mashed potatoes. That is one job that always goes to the young girls of the family.

I can't believe my eyes right now, as all three girls are busy doing the dishes. Of course, that chore is not as tough as it was in the good ole days when you had to pump the water from a pump outside and then heat it on the big wood cook stove. They actually washed the dishes by hand and dried them, too. It is not so hard to load a dishwasher, but even with that it is still a hard job for me to get them to do the dishes and put them away after they are clean and dry. But tonight they just did it without a word from me.

Mere will have to wait for her big cousin's birthday party until Monday afternoon since her Gram was in Virginia to visit her friend, Betty Sacra, who was being honored on her 75th birthday at her daughter's home in Leesburg. She did get back Sunday evening, only to find the roads covered with snow from Grantsville to home. The Virginia weather was just a little cold with very little snow.

I am glad that I do not have to go over through the snow to Grandmother's house even in a car this blustery evening. I'd rather stay snug inside my own house. That is another thing changed from the old days to nowadays. I prefer to keep the thermostat low with what the fuel oil costs these days. In the old days the kids did not mind the cold, as they just put on more clothes rather than carry more coal or firewood to feed the fire to keep the house warm. I like to turn the thermostat down at bedtime and, like all the past mothers, get up early to get the house warm for her family. But instead of just turning a dial, they had to carry a shovel of coal or a pile of logs to feed the fire. It is still hard to do when you know how much the fuel costs to run the furnace.

Well, it is a less stressful time for Steeler fans this year without a must win game every weekend. Who really cares who wins the remaining play-offs and the "big game"?

One thing that never changes is the feeling of all mothers watching their little babies grow up into a gang of teenage girls. Even though you still have them, it is so plain that they will grow up and go away so fast. Those tiny sweet things that only wanted their mommies are in the process of growing up, which includes pushing mommy away from them.

I watched all sweet little girls, daughters of my friends in Bittinger, Michelle Geis, Jennifer Kolbe, and Lea Stanton, turn into college students, then graduate, and in the case of Lea Stanton, become a bride and wife. What next? Of course she will become a mother, which would make Cindy a grandmother. I don't feel old enough to be a mother, let alone a grandmother. Of course, in the good ole days something was wrong if at 50 years old a woman were not a grandmother.

I thought that my house was the only one that lost power last night, and it gave me the creeps, but thank goodness the Southerlys also lost power. I don't know why we are on the same line, as my closer neighbors are on another line. I guess that it is no problem I can solve, but is more of a problem for Allegheny Power. After a couple hours we got our power back on and are up and running just fine. Luckily we had a fresh supply of batteries, candles, etc. Although I was getting a little low on batteries, I couldn't go out because I heard that the roads were in the worst condition so far this winter. I guess since it is a holiday from school on Monday the road crews are taking a little break and relieving the county of paying so much overtime for working on a holiday. As I said last week, we have to give a lot of thanks to those crews.

The Pittsnogle family is now a two-pastor household. Last weekend Keith cleared the final hurdle to his ordination. It was a grueling round of intensive interviews and questioning. "No sweat" for Keith. He is more than ready to meet the challenge he will face as a full-fledged pastor. Could anyone have a more pressure-packed internment than he did in Somerset, Pa., during the mine crisis? Several members of his congregation had family members trapped in the flooded mine.

The hottest debate at Meredith's birthday party at Gram's was who is the champion of the power outages. Lesa Whittemore insisted she is, but Carol and Mother are on the same line, and they are sure they are the champions. However, I think Sheila and I are the champions. We were the only ones we know of who were without power last night.

A GUY THING

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 1/17/03

You can tell you've really made it when your tastes get so refined that you have to start making terrible movies just to pay the bills. Such is apparently the case with Jason Lee and Julia Stiles, two very promising actors who have shown they have the chops to succeed if the material is adequate. A Guy Thing, written by Greg Glienna (with 3 others) and directed by Chris Koch (Snow Day), is most certainly not adequate. It's pure tripe, and the cast knows it. Even as we watch and listen to the nominees and winners of Golden Globes and Academy Awards discussing the better movies of the past year, we are reminded of the immense volume of trash that is churned out of Hollywood by producers who are more interested in raking in the bucks from undiscriminating teenagers than even trying for anything resembling art. For their part, Lee and Stiles use their considerable charm to attempt the impossible task of making this film watchable. They fail, but at least they try.

Lee plays Paul Morse, a magazine ad man from Seattle who is about to marry Karen, (Selma Blair), the daughter of his immensely wealthy and powerful boss (James Brolin), who is, of course, a control freak of the highest magnitude. However, on the morning after his bachelor party, he wakes up with one of the strippers hired for the event. Her name is Becky (Stiles), and although he was actually too drunk to have sex with her, he is now too hung over to know that. Now he must not only hide his indiscretion from Karen and her dad, but deal with the violent retribution visited on him by Becky's psychotic ex-boyfriend (Lochlyn Munro), who has just become a member of Seattle's finest. Then, to make matters worse, he discovers that Becky is actually Karen's cousin, and will be at the wedding and a recurring character in the rest of his life. But frankly that's not so bad, because he kind of likes her better than his bride-to-be anyway.

It wouldn't be that bad if this were just a run-of-the-mill romantic comedy with hackneyed dialogue and plot elements we had all seen before. Well, yes, it would be that bad—but it's worse. Because even though it is all those things, it's not even handled well by director Koch. This movie is littered with lost threads, jokes set up and never realized, seeds planted that never flower. Plot points are introduced for the purpose of some lame joke or silly situation and then forgotten as if they never happened. Conflicts are never properly resolved. Characters are designed simply to fulfill some stereotype, and do things that are clearly not in their best interest just so we can enjoy a joke we've seen a million times before. What's more, this isn't even a new story idea. The plot is basically the same as that of last year's Cameron Diaz vehicle The Sweetest Thing (which, in fact, featured Blair playing pretty much the same part), with some minor alterations.

I'm happy that Lee and Stiles are so successful they can afford the 50-foot yachts, or the swanky mid-town apartments, or the candy-apple red Porches. Good for them. But I guess if you want to make the payments, you have to make movies like this. I guess it's just A Star Thing. ★½

Motor Vehicle Appeals Heard By Circuit Court

Two individuals who filed motor vehicle appeals from Garrett County District Court recently had their cases heard in Circuit Court.

The Circuit Court found Michael Z. Hill, 37, West Union, W.Va., guilty of speeding and fined him $520, plus court costs; however, he was found not guilty of one count of negligent driving and one count of driving a vehicle in excess of reasonable and prudent speed.

The District Court had previously found Hill guilty of the three counts and fined him a total of $1,020, plus court costs. He had been stopped and charged by Maryland State Police on I-68, near Friendsville, for driving 107 mph in a 65 mph zone.

David Thomas Lutz, 27, Fallston, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court to one count of speeding and one count of negligent driving. Judge Jim Sherbin fined him $70, plus costs, and sentenced him to 20 hours of community service. Lutz was also fined $70, to run concurrently with the first count, for negligent driving.

The District Court had also found Lutz guilty of the two charges in September 2002 and fined him a total of $1,020, plus court costs.

Lutz had been stopped and charged by MSP on I-68, near the Chestnut Ridge Road exit, for driving 107 mph in a 65 mph zone.

Nutrition Workshop Slated By Cancer Society, Hospital

A Nutrition Well Being workshop will be held Wednesday, Feb. 12, in the Community Services building next to Garrett County Memorial Hospital beginning at 6 p.m.

Amy Ritchie, dietitian for the Garrett County Health Department, will teach the workshop. The workshop will focus primarily on strategies for people with cancer and their loved ones to learn to enhance their nutritional knowledge and skills by placing an emphasis on the role of healthy eating in cancer treatment and recovery.

The workshop provides an opportunity to learn new information and address specific nutrition-related concerns with knowledgeable individuals and develop a personal nutrition plan.

Anyone interested in learning about nutritional needs is encouraged to attend. The workshop is free of charge, and registration is suggested, but not required, to guarantee materials.

For more information or to register, persons may call Sara Browning at 301-533-4311.

The workshop is a module of the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" series and is sponsored by the Health Department, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Garrett County Department of Social Services, Hospice of Garrett County, and the American Cancer Society.

Students' Drive Nets Over Three Tons Of Food

Ben Bernard, AmeriCorps coordinator for Community Action's Community and Emergency Services Program, recently coordinated the annual Kids Helping Kids Food Drive with 12 of the 15 schools in Garrett County. They collected a total of 6,504 pounds of non-perishable food.

"I'm extremely pleased with the efforts of all the schools that participated," said Bernard.

The school that collected the most food, 1,560 pounds, was Southern Middle. The remaining schools and their totals are as follows: Yough Glades Elementary, 873 pounds; Friendsville Elementary, 762; Northern Middle, 582; Broad Ford Elementary, 500; Grantsville Elementary, 482; Northern High, 440; Crellin Elementary, 320; Bloomington, 310; Swan Meadow, 278; Dennett Road Elementary, 200; and Kitzmiller Elementary, 197.

All the schools ran the food drive for two weeks, except Grantsville Elementary, which conducted a three-day drive.

Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling provided a scale to weigh the food at Community Action's Oakland site. This provided a more accurate documentation of the weight of food collected from each school.

The vehicle used to pick up the food was provided by Tressler's Auto Sales. Collection boxes were donated by Farmer's Market, Wal-Mart, Dollar General, and Shop and Save.

The food collected from the drive will be used to assist local families in crisis situations.

Their classroom discussion also focused on the fact that many service agencies use the bears to console young children who are victims of trauma. The students decided to coordinate a campaign to collect the toys and donate them locally. Stopping by to pick up the teddy bears were Maryland State Troopers Steve Bennett and Kurt Whitaker.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors met on Thursday, Jan. 16, in the conference room of the Visitors Center, McHenry, with chairman Steve Green presiding.

Guest speaker Jim Hinebaugh, director of the Department of Economic Development, spoke about plans for economic growth and current projects under way. He noted the positive and beneficial relationship between the chamber of commerce and his office.

Hinebaugh stated that in 1997 unemployment in Garrett County was recorded at 13.7%. Year-to-date, the county's unemployment rate stands at 7% – a decrease of nearly 50%, he pointed out. This upturn in the employment statistics he credited to the business community's efforts in cooperation with his office. He outlined several projects on the board at the economic development office, including the exhibit hall and trade show center at the fairgrounds, the adventure sports complex, and several spec buildings at county industrial parks.

Rates of pay, benefits for employees, and business retention goals were also addressed by Hinebaugh. Board members raised issues of public transportation, high-speed Internet access, support for employers in goods and services, including retail, and the economic impact of school starting prior to Labor Day.

Hinebaugh identified small businesses as the economy's "bread and butter," and deserving of supportive programs.

Chamber president Charlie Ross reported the following:

• The Mountain Maryland (PACE) reception in Annapolis Jan. 23-24 has attracted 750 registrants to date, with a greater number from Garrett than Allegany County. Governor Bob Ehrlich will attend the reception today, Thursday, while Lt. Governor Michael Steele, Mike Busch, and Mike Miller will go to the legislative breakfast on Friday.

• Plans continue for the "Our Story" economic conference at Garrett College on Jan. 31.

• A second marketing roundtable forum is being planned for the near future.

Green, chair of the Garrett County Recreational Trails Task Force, reported that an aerial survey of the Glendale Road segment of the trail must be scheduled when weather permits. Emphasis at this time will be on fundraising and forming a 501-c3 organization to manage the funds and produce a brochure on trail system, he said.

Chamber staff member Deb Clatterbuck reported that a group of restaurant owners have held several meetings to develop a dining guide for Garrett County and to form a county dining association of chamber members.

The following new chamber members were approved: Laser Cartridge Care, Oakland, William Mahaffey owner; Lillian B. Steele, Oakland, Long & Foster realtor; Country Treasures, McHenry, Carol Selby owner; Windrush Online.com, Friendsville, Crede Calhoun owner; and Bunny Hop, Friendsville, Rita D. Hare owner.

The next regular meeting of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors will be Thursday, Feb. 20, at 8 a.m. in the conference room at the Visitors Center.

Keystone Lime, MSHA Honored For Top Quality

The National Asphalt Pavement Association (NAPA) has announced that Keystone Lime Co. Inc. of Springs, Pa., and the Maryland State Highway Administration have won a 2002 Quality in Construction Award for excellence in construction of an asphalt pavement. The winners received their awards at a special ceremony on January 15 at the association's 48th annual convention in San Diego, Calif.

The Quality in Construction Awards recognize hot mix asphalt (HMA) pavements of excellence. "NAPA selects the recipients of its paving awards using a known set of standards that have been shown to give a good result," commented David B. Carlson, chairman of the NAPA board of directors. "This award demonstrates the high quality of work that the HMA industry is achieving."

The award-winning project included the resurfacing of Interstate 68 from the West Virginia state line to Maryland Rt. 42. The contractor worked during the daytime traffic, tacking the joints of the road and using a material transfer device to ensure smooth, even pavement. The job was complicated by the fact that trucks had to travel into West Virginia to find a place to turn around and reach the job site. Despite the obstacles, the company produced a smooth, high-quality asphalt pavement, according to Carlson.

The National Asphalt Pavement Association is the only association that exclusively represents the interests of the hot mix asphalt producer/contractor on the national level with Congress, government agencies, and other national trade and business organizations. The association, whose members number more than 1,000 companies, was founded in 1955.

While You're Away, Where Will Pets Stay?

Q: Which is better for pets when their owners go on vacation: pet sitters in the home or a stay at the kennel? — Joyce L., Fort Worth, Texas

A. That depends on several factors: the duration of the trip, the quality of available sitters or kennels, the animal's general health and the overall cost, to name a few.

I've used both services over the years, in addition to bringing my pets to stay with family members (when they could take them). While my experience with both sides has generally been good, I've had the occasional problem.

For example, I had a sitter watch my cat over a weekend who simply dumped two days' worth of food into his dish at once and played video games during her visits. I also reserved space for a longer stay at a pet kennel that advertised roomy cages and daily playtime in a large space — it had neither.

However, I've also had wonderful experiences with sitters and kennels. My advice would be to plan well ahead of the vacation, decide whether to use a sitter or a kennel, and start researching options. Find at least three sitters/kennels that look promising and visit each one. Ask to see the living spaces at the kennels, play areas, and so on. If you use a sitter, have each prospect come over to meet your pet (and you). See if the sitter develops a good rapport with the pet, and whether you get along with him or her, too.

Additionally, most quality kennels (and sitting services) book up during the holiday and vacation season. Try to make your choice and reserve a spot at least a month before your trip, so your pet can get the best care possible while you're away.

Vitamin With Cancer and Cholesterol-Reducing Properties

Lycopene is a member of the vitamin A family. It is responsible for the bright red color in foods like tomatoes and watermelon and the pink in grapefruit. Lycopene also is a potent antioxidant that has been shown to help a number of medical conditions including heart disease and cancer. Although lycopene exists naturally in many fruits and vegetables, the naturally occurring form is difficult for the body to absorb.

Studies have shown that 15 mg of lycopene twice daily for 3 weeks seems to decrease tumor growth in prostate cancer. High blood levels of lycopene decreased prostate cancer risk by over 80% in one study. Other studies have shown that 6 to 12 mg daily of lycopene from food sources can decrease the risk of lung cancer in older nonsmoking men and women. Recent research also indicates that lycopene may be able to lower the body's production of "bad cholesterol" (LDL Cholesterol) and protect against heart attacks.

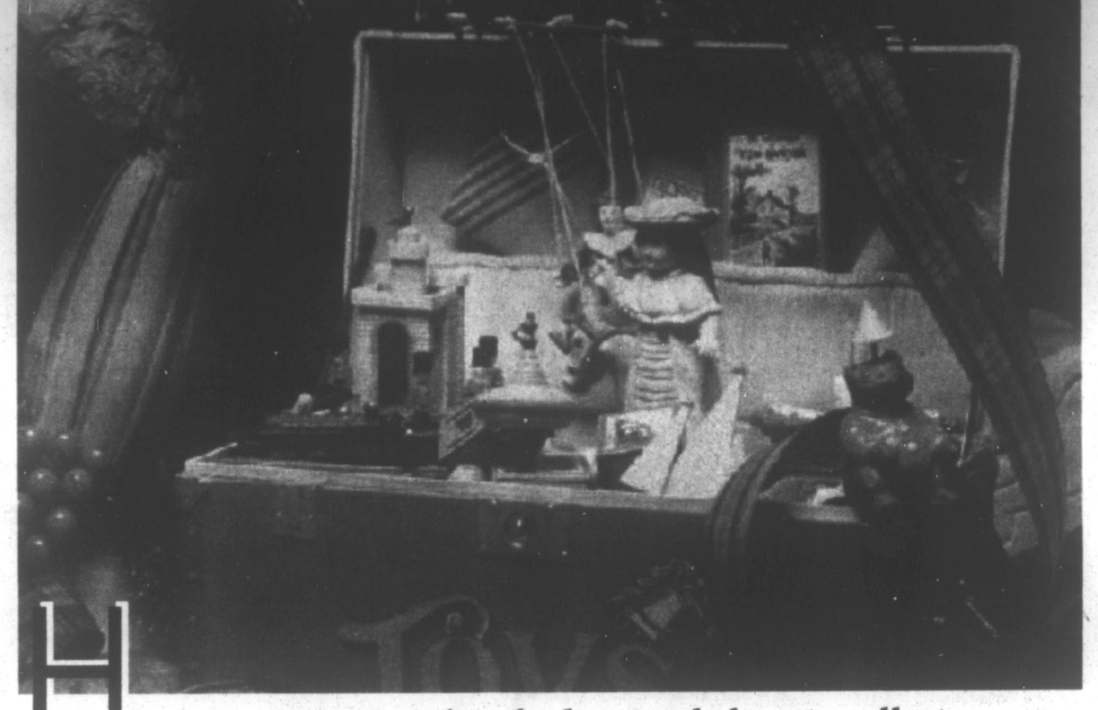
A Piece of the Past



Have you ever wondered why people love to collect antiques? Surely they were built differently than today...no assembly line construction then. Each piece was carefully custom made with hands that often displayed calluses as well as a sensitivity to his or her art. It was a time when individuality was a way of life. Perhaps we want to preserve that goodness by owning a piece of the past.

Today nearly every item we purchase is a clone of the others on the shelf. We speak to machines with machines. Occasionally, a "real person" speaks...if all else fails. Is individuality lost to the past? We wonder, "Does anyone really care what I think?"

God cares what you think. Our Heavenly Father hears our words and knows our thoughts the same as He did a hundred or a thousand years ago. We are free to pray for our needs. God will never change. He tells us in Malachi 3:6..."For I the Lord do not change..." Today, as in the past, we can each help preserve the goodness in our world. Won't you worship this week?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

GETTING RECYCLED

January 26, 2003

Background Scripture:
Luke 22:31-34, 54-62; John 21:1-22.
Devotional Reading:
Acts 4:1-13..

Remember when we just threw trash away? Well, now we recycle much of it, because we know that it has some intrinsic value that can be renewed. Although we, as Americans, still have a long way to go in matters of ecology, the recycling movement is catching on across our nation.

If only we did as well with people. We live in a throw-away society and, as wasteful as we are with things, we are even more prodigal with our children. Lisa Aversa Richette, once an Assistant DA in Philadelphia and later a judge, wrote of her experiences in juvenile court in The Throw-away Children. "Established at the turn of the century," she writes, "the Juvenile Court was designed to reclaim America's lost youth by providing a second chance, a moment of hope, which the child and the adults in his world could seize upon to reconstruct his life." But, "the American people have been content to regard juvenile courts as sanitation departments whose job is to keep the community clean by picking these kids off the streets."

Instead of recycling centers, our juvenile detention prisons rarely rise above the level of warehouses for 'ruined' human beings. This is no less true of our prison systems. In what is the most enlightened, privileged nation in the world, why? Because most people, including Christians, do not believe in rehabilitating our most precious national resource, human lives.

Sheep vs. Goats

Many believe that, whether by choice or biological programming, some people are 'good' and others are just 'bad'. Furthermore, they believe that there is little or no crossing that line. The latter must be warehoused so that they do not impinge upon the 'good' people. After 2,000 years of Christianity, it is incredible that so many of us who profess to be Christians still believe that people are rarely recyclable.

Just how 'bad' can a person be and still be redeemed? Simon Peter's story gives us an answer. Because he is the leader of the Twelve, extreme loyalty to Christ was to be expected. But, in Jesus' greatest hour of need, Peter failed him, a failure that Jesus foresaw: "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan demanded to have you..." But Jesus also foresaw his redemption: "...and when you have turned again, strengthen my people." Peter's failure does not mean that he is unredeemable. Jesus has a job for him to do.

Peter's failure was monumental. When Jesus was seized and led away to the high priest's house, "Peter followed at a distance" (22:54b). Three times that evening he had an opportunity to stand with Jesus, but each time he denied that he even knew Jesus. If you and I had served on a 'membership committee' for the Twelve, we would have decided right then and there that Peter was 'out' and never again would be 'in.'

Peter and Us

Haven't there been times when we also have followed Jesus at a distance so that people would not recognize that we are with him? Have there not also been times when we have denied him—if not so bluntly as Peter, at least as surely? Yet, did Peter's cowardly failure disqualify him from reclamation? Do ours?

Whenever in doubt we need to remember how Jesus responded: "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" Three times, Jesus asks this question, because it is one that Peter and we might answer too quickly. There is an interesting parallel between Peter's three denials of Christ and his three questions about Peter

'JAG' actors are married in real life

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q: Is it true that the actors who play Lt. Harm Rabb and Lt. Loren Singer on "JAG" are married in real life? –K.A.M. and K.R.M. in Baltimore, Md.

A: Yes, David James Elliott and Nanci Chambers have been married since 1992. In fact, they renewed their vows in Santa Barbara in 1999 because finances originally had forced them to settle for a city hall ceremony and Elliott wanted his wife to have something more special to remember.

Q: Didn't Carol Burnett appear in an old "Twilight Zone" episode? What was the title and story line? –D.L. Lawrence in California.

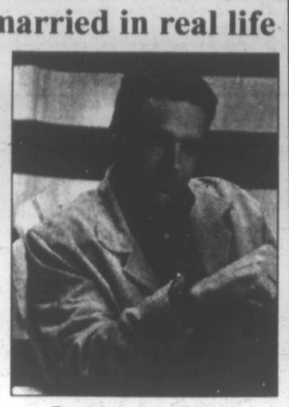
A: Yes, Burnett appeared in a May 25, 1962, "Twilight Zone" titled "Cavender Is Coming," in which an angel trying to earn his wings (Jesse White, long known as the Maytag repairman) tried to help Agnes Grep (Burnett), a down-on-her-luck woman. Cavender, the angel, gives her a lavish new home, but Agnes misses her friends and asks to return to her old hard-knock life. Donna Douglas ("The Beverly Hillbillies") also had a small role in the episode.

Q: Is that Tom Hanks doing the voice of Geoffrey the giraffe in those Toys 'R' Us commercials? –Cathy Simonton, Concord, N.H.

A: No, but you are very close indeed: It's Jim Hanks, Tom's brother.

Q: How old were Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin when they died? What were the causes of death? –Margaret P., Baltimore, Md.

A: Martin died on Christmas Day, 1995, of emphysema. He was 78. When Sinatra died on May 14, 1998, bladder cancer and heart and kidney disease were listed as contributing factors. He was 82.



David James Elliott

Q: Our favorite new TV show is "Hack" on CBS. Can we count on it being there past this season? –Mary Lou Feasel, Ontario, Ore.

A: Slow down there. These days, shows have to wait to see whether they will even be picked up for a full first season, which CBS has done for "Hack," widely regarded as one of the unexpected hits of the season. Its future as far as next season goes will not be announced until late spring, but signs look promising at this point.

Q: A friend told me that George Nader had died. Is that true? I hope it is just a rumor, but if not, where is he buried? –Shirleyann Marie, Lyons, Ill.

A: A popular Hollywood beefcake star in the 1950s until his homosexuality was revealed by a tabloid, Nader died last February at age 80, with cardiac pulmonary failure, pneumonia and multiple cerebral infarctions listed as contributing factors. Surviving loved ones scattered his ashes at sea.

Sam's Agway Annual Crop Meeting

Sam's Agway Annual Crop workshop will be held on Monday, Feb. 10 starting at 9:45 a.m., at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, near Gortner. Paul Bachman, Syngenta Co., Brad Wise, DuPont Co., and Jeff Martin, Monsanto Co. will be providing the latest information on pest controls and management in field crops. Dr. Les Vough, Forage Specialist, University of Maryland will be speaking on "Interseeded Triticale Improves First Cutting Alfalfa Yields and Silage Quality." A spokesman from MDA will be speaking on the pesticide regulations and programs. This workshop will qualify for renewal of the Private Pesticide Applicator's License. Lunch will be provided; therefore, reservations are requested by calling Sam's Agway at 301-334-3444.

New Labeled Herbicides for Corn

Cinch 7.64E, Cinch ATZ 5.5L, and Cinch ATZ Lite 6L (DuPont) are the equivalents of Dual II Magnum, Bicep II Magnum, and Bicep Lite II Magnum, respectively, but will be marketed by DuPont. The Cinch product labels and uses are like those of Dual and Bicep herbicides. DuPont will be phasing out Leadoff herbicide and replacing it with the Cinch product lineup.

G-Max Lite 5L (BASF) is similar to Guardsman Max (Outlook + atrazine), but contains a lower amount of atrazine. The typical medium soil application rate is 3 pt./A, which is equivalent to 18 fl. oz./A Outlook plus 1 lb./A atrazine. G-Max Lite will compete with the many other pre-grass + atrazine herbicide mixtures on the market.

Keystone 5.25SE and Keystone LA 5.5SE (Dow AgroSciences) are new formulations of acetochlor and atrazine; the same active ingredients in FulTime and Harness Xtra. The new formulation allows for easier handling and mixing of the product and slightly different ratios of the two active ingredients. Weed control and use is similar to that of other acetochlor/atrazine mixtures. The typical use rate is 2.65 qt./A for Keystone (i.e., 2 lb. ai acetochlor and 1.5 lb ai atrazine). Keystone LA is the "low atrazine" formulation that will usually be applied at 2 qt./A (2 lb. ai acetochlor and 0.75 lb. ai atrazine). These will primarily be Midwestern products.

Lumax 4SC and Camix 3.7SC (Syngenta) are new premix products that contain mesotrione (Callisto) and s-metolachlor (Dual II Magnum). Lumax is a three-way mixture that includes atrazine. Lumax and Camix are primarily soil-applied (or early post) herbicides that control a number of common broadleaf and grassy weeds including lambsquarters and pigweed (including triazine- and ALS-resistant), velvetleaf, ragweed, smartweed, foxtails, crabgrass, and yellow nutsedge. The addition of atrazine in Lumax improves activity and broadens control spectrum compared to Camix. However, additional atrazine or simazine may be added to Lumax to improve control of cocklebur, annual morning glory, prickly sida, and giant ragweed. Camix provides a non-atrazine alternative, for areas that may have restrictions on triazine use. The typical use rate in soils with less than 3% organic matter and regardless of the tillage system is 2 qt./A Camix and 2.5 qt./A Lumax (This rate would be equivalent to 1.75 pt./A Dual II Magnum and 5.3 fl. oz./A Callisto; plus 0.63 lb. atrazine in Lumax.) If soils have greater than 3% organic matter, use 2.4 qt./A Camix or 3 qt./A Lumax. Do not apply these products more than 10 days prior to planting or to field corn higher than 5 inches tall and before grassy weeds emerge. There are no insecticide restrictions when applied preemergence, but be cautious of restrictions with early post-applied Lumax/Camix when OP and carbamate insecticides are used. Corn, soybeans, and sorghum may be planted the year following application of Lumax or Camix. Wheat may be planted 4.5 months after application. Currently, alfalfa cannot be planted the year after application. For the upcoming season, there will likely be greater quantities of Lumax in the Northeast as compared to Camix. Camix will be mostly sold in the upper Midwest. With respect to Bicep II Magnum, Lumax contains more Dual and less atrazine when comparing at typical medium soil rates.

Option 35WDG (Bayer CropScience) was labeled for corn in 2002. It is a postemergence, sulfonylurea (ALS-inhibitor), herbicide that has activity primarily on grasses, but also controls some annual broadleaves. It will typically be applied broadcast at 1.5 oz./A (plus MSO and UAN or AMS) to corn through the V5 stage (approx. 16 inches tall). It will allow for various tank-mix options to improve the weed control spectrum and will have a rotation restriction of 7 days for corn, 14 days for soybeans, and 60 days for any other crop. Option will compete with Accent, Basis Gold, and Steadfast for the post-grass market. Option is a little more effective on barnyard grass and yellow nutsedge, but slightly less effective on yellow foxtail, and fall panicum, when compared to the nicosulfuron-based products.

Yukon 67.5WG (Monsanto) is a premix of Permit (halosulfuron) and dicamba (sodium salt). This product has post activity on many annual broadleaves and yellow nutsedge and can be applied from corn spike to 36 inches tall. The 4 oz./A Yukon rate will be equivalent to 2/3 oz./A Permit and 4 fl. oz. Clarity/Banvel. It may be tank-mixed to broaden the weed spectrum.

Dairy Market Outlook by Ken Bailey, Penn State

Cheese prices showed some strength this week on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Block prices rose from $1.14 per pound on Monday, Jan. 13 to $1.17 by Friday, Jan. 17. Barrels remained unchanged at around $1.10/$1.11 per pound. The rest of the market remained weak, with Grade AA butter trading at $1.07-$1.08 per pound and western nonfat dry milk trading in the range $0.80 $0.82 per pound.

USDA announced the Class I mover today. It fell from $10.56 per cwt. in January 2003 to $10.23 for February. The Class IV skim milk price was again the mover for Class I. The Boston Class I price in February 2003 will be $13.48 per cwt. My math indicates that the February 2003 MILC payment will be $1.56 per cwt. USDA announced the 2002 annual average cooperative Class I over-order premiums in major markets. The U.S. average for 2002 for 33 markets was $1.44 per cwt. It ranged from a low of $0.15 per cwt. in Phoenix, Arizona to a high of $3.05 in Miami, Florida. The annual average over-order premium was $1.11 per cwt. in 1999, $1.28 in 2000, and $1.15 in 2001.

The December milk production report was released today. Guess what? Cow numbers continued to increase, from 7.791 million head in November to 7.797 million head in December 2002. Milk production in December 2002 was up 1.8 percent from a year ago. California alone had a 4.2 percent increase in milk production over a year ago. Most of the growth in cow numbers continued to be from the West.

The global market for dairy products remains strong. Skim milk powder, called nonfat dry milk in the U.S., was trading at just under $0.80 per pound in European and Pacific markets. That means western market prices in the U.S. will be very close to global prices.

Farmers Offered Nutrient Mgmt. Training Classes

The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension and the Maryland Department of Agriculture are piloting two training and certification programs in February for all farmers who would like to write their own nutrient management plan.

Each program will focus on a specific type of operation:

February 20 — Crop production using only commercial fertilizer (Montgomery County Extension office); February 27 — Crop production using manure or other organic nutrient sources with or without animals on site (Carroll County Extension office).

During these sessions participants will learn the basics of nutrient management planning by working through a model nutrient management plan. They will also receive study materials to take home.

Later, within four weeks of the first session, participants will attend smaller sessions at several locations. There they will take a short certification exam based on the training material. Using information specific to their own operation they will also complete their nutrient management plan. Participants should bring a current soil test and manure analysis on the second day of training. Information is available at local Extension offices.

Participants who complete a plan and pass the exam will be certified. They can write their plans in the future if they attend continuing education classes.

Because of space limitations, applications for the upcoming programs will be accepted on a first come, first served basis. The registration deadline is January 31. The $60 fee covers lunch both days, training and reference materials, and a one-time $50 certification fee. Once a person registers, a confirmation letter will be sent with more details of the training.

Persons may contact their county Extension educator or Earle Canter at 410-841-5959 for more information or a registration form.

Grants for Agricultural Education And Rural Development Awarded

The Maryland Board of Public Works recently approved 17 grants totaling $405,680 from the Maryland Agricultural Education and Rural Development Assistance Board. Garrett College was among the local recipients of the funding, and a breakdown of the college's award and the other grants that will likely benefit the county's agricultural community appears below.

Seven of the awards, totaling $143,680, are being administered by the Maryland Department of Agriculture and are targeted for local projects designed to promote agricultural leadership and improve agricultural business profitability. The other 10 grants, some of which are being administered by the Department of Business and Economic Development and the others by the Department of Housing and Community Development, are focused on rural development activities including job development and health care.

"Funding for projects such as business plans for new local agricultural ventures, educational programs on niche marketing, adding value to products, and leadership skills, as well as curriculum development for school-aged students is of particular interest and importance in rural communities," a Department of Agriculture spokesperson said. "[This is particularly true] at a time when the average age of farmers in Maryland is over 54, sprawl development is pressuring rural land, and traditional commodities are less profitable than ever."

A recent University of Maryland study of the state's economic situation and prospects for agriculture concluded that one of the most promising areas for the future of agriculture lies with alternative crops and niche activities that the new grant awards support. When farming is profitable, it is more likely that land will continue to be farmed, which 90 percent of the respondents to a recent survey by the Schaefer Center for Public Policy deemed "important."

A description of several of the local grant recipients, and the stated use of the awards, follows:

•Garrett College: The Alternative Agriculture Advanced Technology Center provides Western Maryland farmers with the technical support needed to develop economically profitable and environmentally sustainable alternative agricultural enterprises through various demonstration projects and educational workshops. It also serves students in GC's Agriculture Management Program.

The college received $20,000 to continue to support the Alternative Agriculture Advanced Technology Center which provides local landowners an opportunity to explore alternative agricultural enterprises. The GC Alternative Agriculture Advanced Technology Center proposes to host an "A Star" AmeriCorps member who would assist in the operation of the demonstration enterprises, assist with workshops, and conduct farm tours and other outreach activities.

•Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation: The "Ag in the Classroom" programs sponsored by the MAEF use mobile units to provide hands-on, interdisciplinary lessons to elementary students in the areas of aquatic science, agricultural commodities and products, and biotechnology. These hands-on programs have a proven track record of providing higher rates of learning than traditional classroom settings, according to studies.

The MAEF received $28,000 that will be used to help complete exterior design and graphics and pay for a portion of the interior displays and graphics in the "Ag in the Classroom" unit, which will be used by both students and teachers (for in-service training).

•Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts: The MASCD promotes practical and effective soil, water and related natural resources programming to citizens through individual conservation districts on a voluntary basis through leadership, education, cooperation and local direction.

The MASCD was awarded $6,500 to continue to provide support curriculum development and materials distribution of the Maryland Envirothon Program, a high school environmental education competition that uses the expertise of soil conservation districts and other natural resource professionals to teach students about their natural resources.

•Maryland Rural Health Association: The MRHA supports programs that help rural citizens in Maryland have access to affordable, quality health care services.

The MRHA received $35,000 to continue developing and implementing a strategic plan concerning rural health care access, and for support of continuing health education activities and rural health information coordination and dissemination activities.

•Maryland Rural Development Corporation: The MRDC is a nonprofit comprehensive service agency dedicated to building strong, sustainable communities in the rural regions through such resources as Head Start, housing counseling, first-time homebuyer assistance, etc. One of the MRDC's goals is to bring affordable and high quality water and wastewater services to all citizens living in under-served rural communities. Currently seven percent of Maryland's households lack complete indoor plumbing.

The MRDC was awarded $47,000 that will provide continued support of the RCAP program that provides technical assistance, training, and capacity development in low-income rural communities, and to actualize water and waste system improvements in a manner that is consistent with the state's environmental protection policies.

In Who's Who

Caressa Frazee, Grantsville, was recently selected for inclusion in Who's Who Among American High School Students. This honor is awarded to less than 6 percent of American high school students, according to a Who's Who spokesperson.

Frazee, a freshman, is a member of the Student Council at Northern High School and is on the Principal's Advisory Team. She is also a member of the Garrett County Student Council.

She attends the World Lighthouse Worship Center and is part of its dance team, youth group, and drama team. Frazee is also a nursery attendant at the center.

She is the daughter of Brian and Carol Frazee.

Special Committee Formed To Select State Treasurer

Maryland Senate president Thomas V. Miller Jr. and House speaker Michael E. Busch have announced the formation of a Special Joint Legislative Committee to consider candidates for the office of treasurer.

Senator Thomas M. Middleton (D-Charles County) and Delegate Adrienne A. Jones (D-Baltimore County) will serve as co-chairs of the committee. Delegate George Edwards (R-Garrett County) has also been chosen to serve on the committee, along with 16 other delegates and 17 senators.

The Special Joint Legislative Committee will hold a public hearing on Thursday, Jan. 30, to conduct interviews in the Joint Hearing Room of the Legislative Services Building, Annapolis, at 5 p.m.

The election will take place on Friday, Jan. 31, at 11:30 a.m. in a joint session of the General Assembly. The Maryland Constitution empowers the General Assembly to elect the state treasurer by joint ballot of the Senate and House of Delegates every four years. The General Assembly is also empowered to choose a successor for the remainder of the four-year term in the event of the resignation of the treasurer.

The state treasurer is charged by the Maryland Constitution and by state law with the general responsibility to manage and disburse state funds. The treasurer is the custodian of all stocks, bonds, and other investments of the state, and all securities and collateral pledged to the state. The office administers the insurance program of the state and handles all details related to the issuance of the general obligation debt of the state.

"One of the most important functions of the treasurer is to serve with the governor and state comptroller on the Board of Public Works," said Karl S. Aro, Department of Legislative Services' executive director. "The board is a body with vast executive authority to supervise the fiscal affairs of the state, including management of the expenditure of funds approved by the Legislature in the annual budget."

The treasurer serves on numerous other boards including the Board of Revenue Estimates, the Board of Maryland State Retirement and Pensions Systems, the Board of State Canvassers, and the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority.

To be considered for the position, an interested party is asked to submit a résumé of work experience to Aro no later than 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29.

Partners After School Has Busy Month

The Partners After School Program at Grantsville took part in many activities during December.

Students with the program began the month with "Holiday Traditions" by painting stained glass ornaments. The students, with the help of the Allen Hall Stars of Frostburg State University, also held a musical production titled "The Little Tree's Christmas Gift." Approximately 100 family members, advisory members, and friends attended. A Christmas dinner was served to those attending the program.

Also in December, Duane Yoder, Community Action president, presented program coordinator Karen Wood with a plaque for Employee of the Year.

"This was quite an honor," said Wood, "and I was very happy to receive this award in the presence of the people I work with everyday. Work is very easy when you love your job."

At the end of the month, Rob Corley, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, presented a session on Internet safety to the students. This is the fourth of eight sessions that Corley will present to the students.

For their "serve and learn" project, the students also made gift bags for the teachers at Grantsville Elementary School that included a dry erase marker, highlighter, red pens, stickers, clips, and book flags.

"The students were quite happy that they could give their teachers something they could use," said a program spokesperson.

The Partners After School Program is a coordinated effort between Community Action, the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, and Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. The program operates Monday through Thursday from 3:30 to 6 p.m. at the Grantsville Senior Center.

For additional information on the program, persons may call Wood at 301-895-5818 or director Linda Green at 301-334-9431 or 888-877-8403.

Road To Recovery Volunteers Sought By Cancer Society

The American Cancer Society is currently seeking Road to Recovery volunteers in Garrett and Allegany counties. Road to Recovery is one of the many programs offered by the society to help cancer patients.

This program is designed to transport cancer patients from their homes to treatment centers and back home again.

An individual who has a car and can spare a few hours each month between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. could help cancer patients who would otherwise have no way of getting to their treatments.

The American Cancer Society provides training, and volunteer drivers may choose the days and hours that work best for them.

Persons interested in becoming a Road to Recovery volunteer may call 1-888-227-9979.

Meyersdale Man Killed In Finzel Area Accident

Derek Christopher Arnold of Meyersdale, Pa., was killed early Saturday morning during a car crash along Finzel Road, according to Maryland State Police at McHenry. The 4:27 a.m. accident is still under investigation by authorities.

Arnold, 20, was traveling north on Finzel Road when he apparently tried to pass a vehicle on the double yellow line in the 2700 block of Finzel Road south of West Finzel Road, according to a police statement.

The lead vehicle, a 1991 Oldsmobile Calais, which was attempting to turn left into a parking lot, was struck by Arnold's 2002 Chevrolet Cavalier and pushed into a snow bank. Arnold's Cavalier went into a spin, and struck a building. The driver's door impacted the corner of the building during the crash, fatally injuring Arnold. The Olds driver, Mark Anthony Roush, 20, of Meyersdale, escaped injury.

The Easer Garrett Volunteer Fire Department, Frostburg Ambulance, and the State Medical Examiner responded to the scene along with state troopers.

See obituary information on Page A-6.

BLAZE DESTROYS BARN — Volunteers from the Oakland, Deer Park, Aurora, Mt. Grove, and Gorman fire departments were summoned at 4:51 a.m. Wednesday after fire was discovered in a barn located along Sunnyside Road south of Oakland. The 30-by-40-foot structure, owned by Glenn "Butch" Sanders, was engulfed in flames upon the arrival of the first fire units. About two dozen goats were in the barn, but all were safely evacuated. The cause of the blaze was determined to be accidental, possibly involving a heat lamp. Units remained on the scene for several hours. The loss was estimated to be $40,000, and Sanders reportedly had no insurance on the structure. A Grantsville area house sustained major damage by fire last night, as volunteers had trouble reaching the structure because of a narrow lane leading to the property. The family of Paul and Debbie Swauger and their four children escaped the house uninjured, but lost many of their possessions. The house was located just off the National Pike east of Grantsville. According to Herman Yoder of the Grantsville VFD, getting equipment and water to the house was difficult, and he noted appreciation to the Garrett County roads crews who widened the access lane. Responding to the 7:15 p.m. alarm along with the Grantsville VFD were the Eastern Garrett and Salisbury VFDs, along with the Northern Rescue Squad. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Library Branch Construction Set For Mid-March

The Ruth Enlow Library board of trustees this week signed a contract with BY-CO Enterprises to construct the new Grantsville Library. The company is owned by Tim Bender, Accident, and Dirk Yoder, Grantsville.

Construction of the new branch is scheduled to start in mid-March, weather permitting. The building is expected to be open for public use in late fall 2003. The new library will be located at 51 Hershberger Lane, on the corner of Hershberger Lane and Park Side Drive.

The new building was designed by Frederick, Ward Associates of Bel Air. The design calls for a 5,800-square-foot building with a community meeting room, large public reading room area, children's area, public restrooms, and an outdoor area for reading and children's story times on nice days.

The construction of the building is the culmination of an extensive fund-raising campaign that began in early 2000. The ReNew Grantsville's Library Committee, the town of Grantsville, Grantsville's elementary schools, the Grantsville community, and numerous library supporters in Garrett County and across the na-

Commissioners Hear Staff Reports; Health Dept. To Begin Smallpox Plan

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 17 departments and agencies. Some of the issues discussed this month were smallpox vaccinations, stigmas about mental illness, the PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) reception in Annapolis, the Dove Center, the Grantsville Library, a student savings plan, Garrett College funding cuts, help for diabetics, and snow removal.

Health Department

Health officer Rodney Glotfelty reported that the Garrett County Health Department will begin smallpox vaccinations next month.

Certain volunteer Health Department and Garrett County Memorial Hospital employees are scheduled to be inoculated. The members would be part of a "rapid response" team that would be involved in containing the first potential outbreak of smallpox.

Glotfelty said, however, liability questions had to be answered before the vaccinations could be administered. For example, if a GCMH employee were inoculated with the live vaccine, and he or she infected someone else, would the hospital be liable?

The health officer said because President George Bush mandated the vaccine plan, the Health Department and hospital may not be liable.

A data base also has to be set up with the Centers for Disease Control. "We're trying to get these issues resolved," said Glotfelty.

Following Bush's guidelines, the second phase of the vaccination plan will be conducted this summer, said Glotfelty. At that time rescue workers, fire fighters, and other first responders will be inoculated.

The third phase may take place next year, when the general public will be offered the vaccine, said the health officer.

Garrett Officials To Consider Codes Committee's Ideas

The Garrett County commissioners this week said they will consider three recommendations that were recently made by the county's Codes Review Committee.

The recommendations follow a review of suggestion made by a local construction company for improving the county's building permits and inspection process.

In October, Yellow Stone at Deep Creek Lake LLC asked the county to require that builders receive continuing education, require that contractors submit proposed construction profiles, and that a board of licensed builders be established.

The commissioners at that time recommended that John Nelson, director of Garrett County Planning and Zoning, recall the county's original Codes Review Committee to further review the suggestions.

Nelson said the committee met twice and last week made three recommendations, which would be supplementary to the current policies and building code.

The committee first recommended that the commissioners support the formation of a local home-builders association, which would then facilitate training and educational programs.

"Anyone can form an organization," said Commissioner Fred Holliday, "It doesn't require a government mandate."

Permits coordinator Jim Torrington said because the

Edwards Hoping To Include Home-Schoolers In Public School Sports

by Dan Genz
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The star quarterback could skip class and still spiral the pigskin for his local public high school if a Garrett County Republican wins his fight for home schoolers' rights.

The bill Delegate George C. Edwards introduced Wednesday would allow home-schooled students in Maryland to participate in public school extra-curricular activities — from drama to band to choir to cross-country — as long as their involvement doesn't prevent public school students from taking part.

Students should be able to enjoy the extras without following the school's curricular plans, Edwards said, adding he introduced it at the request of constituents who teach their children at home for religious reasons. Students not enrolled in a school are currently prohibited from involvement under state law and athletic rules.

"That's only sensible given the requirements for supervision and acknowledgement that the youngster is part of the school's community," said Brian Porter, spokesman for Montgomery County Schools.

One home-schooling advocate is withholding support for the bill until his group scrutinizes its costs.

"We're interested in any bill that would extend options to home-schooled students," said Dave Smith, deputy director of the Maryland Association of Christian Home Educators. However, he said, extending benefits to home-schooled students might mean the bill would also apply to private school students, a fact that could drive up costs.

"If they're going to approve legislation that will fund 10 percent of the [student] population's enrollment in extra-curriculars, we'll have to see" what it's going to take, Smith said.

One mother of seven home-schooled children in Suitland isn't quite as reserved.

"Wow, that's wonderful," Wendy Magloire said. Athletes participating in recreational leagues or county-sponsored sports can't have the same influence with collegiate recruiters for scholarships, said Magloire, a member of Christian Home

Hafer Proposes Tax-Free-School-Shopping Week

District 1 Senator John Hafer has introduced two bills in the Maryland General Assembly which would reduce some of the cost of back-to-school shopping.

SB 66 designates the week that begins on the second Friday in August and ends on the following Thursday in August each year to be a tax-free week for back-to-school shopping in Maryland.

During that week any school supply, item of clothing, or footwear would be tax free. "School supplies" include items purchased for use in the classroom, for schoolwork completed in school, or for any school activity. Accessory items and electronic devices, however, would not be exempt. The bill is co-sponsored by 12 other senators.

Highland Fest Preparations In Full Swing

Preparations are under way for the 16th McHenry Highland Festival, slated for Saturday, June 7, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Volunteers and sponsors are being enlisted to assist with the event, according to coordinator Jerry McGee, who noted that Garrett College has already pledged its support by providing space for a variety of festival-related meeting, planning, and storage concerns.

Last year the Highland Festival raised $5,352 for the United Way of Garrett County, and gave other non-profit organizations a chance to raise funds at the festival site. A planning committee is working to increase community partici-

Task Force Votes 8-4 To Recommend Bear Hunt

By an 8-4 margin — just enough to meet the 60 percent requirement needed for approval — the Maryland Black Bear Task Force voted to recommend the use of hunting as part of a strictly monitored state strategy to reduce the bear population. The group's decision is in contrast with the input it solicited from the public this past fall, as task force chairman Tom Mathews indicated that the public comments ran more than 4-1 opposed to a hunt.

Task force members voting for the hunt recommendation were Mathews, a retired Department of Natural Resources wildlife specialist who resides in Cumberland; Garrett County residents Brooks Hamilton of the county's Farm Bureau; Gary Fratz of the Maryland Wildlife Commission; Brad Frantz of GC Emergency Management; Nancy Railey of Railey Realty; and citizen member Peggy Gosnell, who operates a bed and breakfast near Accident that caters to tourists interested in bears. Also voting in the affirmative were Jerry Zembower of the Allegany-Garrett Sportsmen's Association, and Tom Rooney of the Maryland Sportsmen's Association.

Dissenting votes were logged by citizen member George Falter of McHenry; Ron Barry, a Frostburg State University wildlife professor; John Hadidian of the Humane Society of the United States; and Mike Markarian of the Fund for Animals.

The task force has been meeting regularly for a year to study bear population and strategies for managing the numbers of bruins. They have already recommended that the state not implement baiting or the use of dogs in any bear hunting season that might eventually take place.

They narrowly approved a measure to allow consideration for use of bows as

"Rt. 40 Robber" Pleads Guilty To Bank Heists

A Somerset, Pa., man pleaded guilty before a U.S. District Court judge in Pennsylvania this week to committing a series of bank robberies that took place from the summer of 2001 into the following January, including two that occurred in northern Garrett County. Prior to his January 2002 arrest in Somerset County (Pa.), the perpetrator had been labeled the "Route 40 Robber" because a number of the crimes, which spanned the tri-state region, had taken place along or near that roadway.

Corbin J. Will is slated to be sentenced on Wednesday, April 16. He faces a potential penalty of up to 200 years in federal prison. Will has been held without bond since his arrest shortly after a Jan. 3, 2002, robbery of the Friendsville branch of First United Bank and Trust, when an unidentified

LOCAL WWII VET TO APPEAR ON NATIONAL TV — Loch Lynn resident George Perrine, shown above during his Army years as well as in a more recent photo with his wife Mildred, will be among the World War II veterans featured in a new episode of the Fox News Channel's War Stories with Oliver North, set for nationwide broadcast at 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 2. "The Desert War" will focus on the American effort to liberate North Africa from the German army of occupation. "The producers wanted some general impressions of what service life was like for an American soldier in North Africa," Perrine said. A native of Preston County, W.Va., Perrine moved to Loch Lynn in 1940 after making numerous visits with his family. He volunteered for the military on April 1, 1942, and went on to serve as an armored car crew member in a reconnaissance battalion of the U.S. Army's 2nd Armored Division. Pvt. Perrine operated a 37 millimeter anti-tank gun, among other responsibilities, in the North Africa campaign and in the subsequent Allied invasion of Europe. The Purple Heart recipient was wounded three times, with the last wound requiring two years of medical treatment. Following his discharge in 1947, Perrine went on to complete a 32-year career with the U.S. Postal Service, and he was the longtime postmaster of the Mtn. Lake Park Post Office. Perrine, 78, and his wife Mildred have five children and five grandchildren. The one-hour War Stories program will have a second airing at 1 a.m. on Monday, Feb. 3.

MAKING THE MOST OF IT – When there's snow, why not enjoy it? Residents in Accident decided to do just that and gathered together this past Saturday for a sled-riding party. The event was hosted by the Accident Community Planning Group. Despite very cold temperatures, the turn-out was good for the afternoon of fun. To help keep everyone warm, the planning group supplied the sledding folks with hot chocolate and s'mores. Sled-riding will probably continue to be an available activity all around Garrett County, as winter presses on with no signs of letting up. Photo provided by Sharon Custer.

Spruce Forest Sets Annual Cherries & Chill Fest In Feb.

The fourth annual Cherries & Chill Festival will be held at Spruce Forest Artisan Village on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14-15, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on both days. Admission is free. The village is located east of Grantsville along the Old National Road.

On both days of the festival, which was organized to celebrate Presidents' Day weekend, artisans will be at work inside their log cabin studios – offering their works for sale. They will also be sharing the traditions of their crafts.

Those artisans will include Lynn Lais, potter; Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, stained glass; Meriam Brode, basket weaver and spinner; Connie Stark, heirloom teddy bear artist and herb specialist; Gary Yoder, bird sculptor; Peggy Nixon, slate painter; and Ann Jones, weaver.

All of the cabins and rustic structures are heated for visitors' comfort – with potbelly stoves, fireplaces, and other heat sources.

Saturday activities will include the Cherry Dessert Contest in the Village Church, with entries due between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. There is no cost to enter, and prizes and gift certificates will be awarded to the winners in each category. All entries must include cherries in the recipes (dried, fresh, frozen, canned, jarred, or candied).

A public tasting will follow the judging and awards presentations at 11 a.m.

Other events include children's activities (outdoors if weather permits) from noon until 3 p.m., with contests, games, a scavenger hunt, a cherry hunt, storytelling about George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, sing-a-long, and special guests.

Complimentary seated massages by certified massage therapist will be available in the Compton School from 12:30 until 4:30 p.m. Optional donations will be designated to the Garrett County Recreational Trails Project.

Additionally, Penn Alps Restaurant and the Wormy Chestnut will offer festival goers specials and discounts.

The Village Office and Miller House will offer complimentary hot chocolate, cherry pizzazz punch, snack cups, and homemade courtin' fudge. Door prizes will also be available. Persons may sign up for them in the Village Office.

The festival will be held rain, snow, or shine. For details, persons may call Trish Morgan weekdays at 301-895-3332. The Cherries & Chill Festival is sponsored in part by the Maryland State and Garrett County arts councils.

A NEW PROGRAM AT YOUGH GLADES – A new program has been started at Yough Glades Elementary School for all children. It is called "A Penny A Book," a parent and child read-at-home program. This program promotes reading by having a parent and a child read a book together. The child chooses a book and begins by reading the first page, a parent reads the next page, then the child reads a page and so on until the book is completed. When the book is completed, the child brings a penny or pennies to school and deposits them in a special jar located in the library. This program does three things: The more a child reads the better he or she is at reading; parent and child get some quality time together; and the school gets additional books for the library. Pictured above is Traci Royce reading to her children, Stevee and Sunni Royce.

Christmas Bird Count Numbers Fewer Fowl In Fouler Weather

The 103rd Audubon Society Christmas Bird Count (CBC) took place as scheduled last month in Garrett County, despite a severe winter storm that limited visibility and forced birds and counters both into a battle with the elements. The combined effort of CBC counters yielded 46 species of birds and 6,846 individuals. These figures were less than could be expected of the conditions had been more favorable, a Count representative said.

"Weather conditions contributed to a lack of birds," stated local counter Connie Skipper. "Most birds stuck to heavy cover to wait out the snow storm. We had heavy snow most of the day, with hazardous roads and low visibility. Waterfowl species were conspicuously absent because Deep Creek Lake was largely frozen."

Despite low counts for most species, a few notable species were seen, according to Skipper. Courtney Englar reported a mockingbird, "always a good find," Skipper noted, adding "I lucked onto two Wilson's snipes. Only twice in the past 18 years has this species been counted."

Bill and Fran Pope had the "dubious" pleasure of seeing 5,575 of the 5,666 crows tallied, Skipper stated, and Kevin Dodge and Aaron Holochwost found most of the waterfowl species. Holochwost also saw an adult bald eagle during count week. The feeder watchers added a number of species that we field observers missed.

Six new feeder watchers – Nick and Kathie Brown, Tom and Barrie Gregory, Catharine Rodeheaver, and Georgia Weimer – contributed their time to the counting effort. They joined other feeder watchers, who included Dessie Bowman, Discovery Center naturalists Laura Bowman and Stephanie Cannon, Frances Hoecker, Cheryl Newcomb, Barbara Skipper, and Sallie Thayer. The feeder watchers spent a combined total of 26 3/4 hours counting birds at their feeders.

Roaming field counters Dodge, Englar, Holochwost, the Popes, and Skipper spent a total of 35 1/4 hours, in search of birds across the county, logging 295 ½ miles.

Skipper shared some hints for new birders who may be interested in noting the species common to the mountaintop during the winter months.

"I have 30 years of experience birding in Garrett County," she commented, "and, like most new birders, I didn't know what is expected and what is unusual. For example, the house finch and purple finch look very similar. The purple finches are often seen during migration, and they nest in Garrett County, but they are very seldom seen during the winter. The house finch lives here year-round.

"Another frequently misidentified bird is the American tree sparrow. It looks very much like the chipping sparrow, which migrates southward and does not winter here. The American tree sparrow migrates to Garrett County for winter, and is often seen at our feeders. Winter wrens, on the other hand, rarely visit feeders; they like woodlands with tangled undergrowth, streamsides and fallen trees."

However, as Skipper pointed out, there are no hard and fast rules that sometimes fickle fowl adhere to. "Birds don't always do what we expect, and they sometimes show up in very unlikely places," she concluded.

Weekend DUI Arrests Made By Deputies

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made two drunk driving arrests this past weekend after observing the vehicles exceeding the posted speed limits, police said.

Deputies stopped a 1996 Ford car Saturday night after it was observed failing to stop for a stop sign and exceeding the maximum speed limit along High Street in Oakland.

Clinton Ray Harvey, 27, Oakland, was placed under arrest after he failed field sobriety tests. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired (DWI), violating a license restriction, failing to stop at a stop sign, and exceeding the maximum speed limit.

A few hours later, deputies stopped a 1995 Chevrolet Blazer for speeding on Deep Creek Drive in McHenry.

Stephen A. McIntire, 27, Baltimore, failed field sobriety tests and was charged with DUI, DWI, exceeding speed 10 to 19 mph over, and exceeding speed greater than reasonable.

In other police news, Jesse L. Friend, 21, Oakland, was charged with failing to yield the right of way after he pulled his vehicle out of a private driveway directly into the path of another vehicle.

William Lee Harvey, 56, Oakland, was unable to avoid the collision on Jasper Riley Road, police said. Harvey's vehicle was disabled, and Friend's vehicle sustained minor damage, although no one was hurt as a result of the Tuesday accident.

Woman Charged With Filing False Police Report

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office charged Callianna Louise Duncan, 26, formerly of Finzel Road, Frostburg, with filing a false police report regarding a theft.

The investigation started on Jan. 2, when Duncan reported to the Sheriff's Office that her checkbook had been stolen out of her vehicle sometime during the month of December. A month long investigation between the Sheriff's Office and Frostburg City Police revealed that Duncan passed numerous insufficient checks in Allegany and Garrett counties during the time that Duncan claimed the checkbook was missing, police said.

Duncan was arrested this week in Garrett County on outstanding warrants, and charges were filed in Garrett County for filing a false police report.

Election Slated For Oakland Town Council

The Oakland Municipal Election will be held Monday, March 10, and the mayor and three council members will be elected.

The last day to file for office is Friday, Feb. 28, at 4 p.m.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. The terms to expire are for Harvey J. Moyer, Willard Ringer, and Chris Todd, councilpersons.

Others who are now serving are Asa McCain, mayor, and Kenneth Gotsch, Margaret Jamison, and Mary Lou Stemple, councilpersons.

Any resident of Oakland, age 18 or over, may register to vote in the election at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours until 4:30 p.m.

The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters; however, persons who have registered at the Board of Elections after Jan. 1, 1990, and are residents of Oakland are automatically qualified to vote.

The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 3, at 4 p.m.

Ehrlich Speech Highlights Faith Groups, Guns, Charter Schools

by Tom Lobianco
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. pushed tougher gun laws, help for faith-based charities, and institution of charter schools in his first State of the State address Wednesday.

Ehrlich sprinkled his speech in the House of Delegates chamber with the tales of five Marylanders, highlighting their achievements in overcoming drugs, harvesting the Chesapeake Bay's riches, struggling with mental illness, excellence in education, and, in one case, the grief of parents whose son was gunned down in Baltimore in May.

"Sometimes, we need to see, to touch, to feel as legislators — and I was a legislator for 16 years — the real impact of these issues on the lives of citizens in order to better understand them," Ehrlich said in his speech he called "Faces of Maryland."

Capt. Bob Newberry stood as the governor outlined his proposal to improve Maryland wastewater treatment, and improve the bay's health. Newberry fishes and crabs on the Eastern Shore, but has pulled in dramatically less in recent years because of the sad state of the Bay and increasing regulations on Maryland's watermen, Ehrlich said.

"We can protect the bay without unduly penalizing the good people who earn their livelihood from it," he said.

Ehrlich then introduced Prince George's County educator Adela Acosta as someone who beat the odds and overcame prejudice to get a good education.

Acosta, the nationally recognized principal of Cesar Chavez Elementary School, was placed in special education classes because she could not speak English when she began school. Acosta, whose students are largely black and Hispanic, is an ardent supporter of charter schools, Ehrlich said, making his pitch for the proposal.

Public funding of sectarian institutions also was highlighted by Ehrlich, with the story of Keith Day, a rehabilitated heroin addict from Baltimore who now helps manage the Sheraton Inner Harbor. Day, a 25-year drug user, kicked his addiction and improved his life through Baltimore's Helping Up Mission, a faith-based organization.

"Last night, the president talked about the war against international terror," Ehrlich said in reference to Bush's State of the Union speech Tuesday. "In Maryland we have an internal war against another enemy — drugs."

Ehrlich moved to his proposals to improve Maryland's treatment of the mentally ill when he introduced Michael Taylor, a man who spent 30 years locked in institutions. Taylor was released in 1999 and is living independently, he said.

"Michael Taylor is an American success story and a Maryland success story," Ehrlich said.

Before introducing his final "face" of Maryland, Ehrlich paused. Rio-Jarel Tatum was not in the audience, he said, because he had been shot dead in Baltimore in May. His parents, John S. Tatum and Roxanne Servance, represented him.

Tatum graduated from Baltimore's Polytechnic Institute in 2001 with a 3.97 grade point average, earning a full scholarship to Pennsylvania State University, Ehrlich said.

"He did everything right, yet he still became a victim of the gun violence sweeping our state's largest city," he said. "It's time to bring Project Exile to Maryland."

Project Exile would impose tougher sentencing for criminals who use guns.

Ehrlich began his speech by recognizing seven long-serving and key legislators who will weigh his proposals: Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert; Delegate Wade Kach, R-Baltimore County; Delegate Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's; Delegate Hattie N. Harrison, D-Baltimore; Delegate John Arnick, D-Baltimore County; Delegate Pauline Menes, D-Prince Georges, and Sen. Norman Stone, D-Baltimore County. Ehrlich presented Miller with a crab statue during the speech.

The peacemaking gestures aside, Democratic lawmakers were critical of Ehrlich, who took office just two weeks ago as the first Republican to hold the seat in 34 years.

Powerful House Appropriations Chairman Howard P. Rawlings, D-Baltimore, said he thought it was interesting that the "faces" Ehrlich talked about thrived under Democratic leadership in the state.

"All of these are programs that the Democratic General Assembly [members] have been the primary supporters of over the last few years," Rawlings said.

Democrats were also dismayed that the governor ignored the proverbial elephant in the room: the state's $1.7 billion budget gap.

"There comes a time when you stop campaigning and you get down to the heavy lifting," Miller said. "At this point in time he hasn't done any heavy lifting. He's put slots on the table and that's it."

The governor omitted any discussion of that key budget fix, something that also irritated Democrats.

One of the controversies the governor waded into was the fight over construction of the Inter-county Connector, a long-stalled highway construction project.

"Trust me, we're going to build the ICC," Ehrlich said, renewing a campaign promise, to loud applause.

Both Rawlings and House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, said another Ehrlich plan, to fully fund public education recommendations, wouldn't hold through 2004.

"The main problem is, I'm still confused how he's going to address the budget issues and fund some of these proposals," Rawlings said.

"Everybody wants to fund education, but where's the money going to come from?" Barve said. "We look forward to working with the governor, but this speech gives us very little to assess what precisely is going to be in store for us."

House Minority Whip Kenneth Schisler, R-Talbot, said Wednesday was a good day for the state GOP.

"We have an incredibly strong leader and it will no doubt inure to the benefit of Republicans," said Schisler, one of 43 Republicans in the 141 member House. "To have someone so powerful, so effective and such a strong communicator — that's no doubt going to help the Republican Caucus. It makes being here a lot more fun."

Ohio Woman Gets One Year For Possession

A Canal Winchester, Ohio, woman pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to possession of marijuana. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Arlinda Sue Woodley to one year in the Garrett County Jail.

That sentence was then suspended, and Woodley, 24, will be on supervised probation for one year. A fine of $500 was also imposed.

She was arrested by Maryland State Police last January after officers stopped the car in which she was a passenger for a speeding violation. When the driver of the car was later arrested for an alcohol violation, the vehicle was searched. During the search, a quantity of marijuana was found in Woodley's purse.

In addition to the possession charge, Woodley was also originally charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana and possession of paraphernalia. Those charges were dismissed upon her plea, said State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Icy Road Leads To Accidents

At least a dozen accidents on Interstate 68 early Friday morning were attributed to a sudden freeze by the Maryland State Police. The crashes occurred over a period from shortly after 12 a.m. to approximately 11 a.m.

Four vehicles traveled into ditches along the highway. Three patients were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, and two additional subjects were transported to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown. All injuries were described as minor by state troopers.

Fest Preps

pation, expand on traditional parts of the festival, add new events and make the day "even more enjoyable, exciting, and educational," a spokesman said.

"Volunteers [and sponsors] are vital to the success of this type of community event," said Fred Thayer, the newly elected chairman of the festival's board of directors. "Volunteer help is needed on planning committees and at the festival to collect tickets, help with competitions, and assist in a wide variety of ways."

McGee told the board of directors that the college will help sponsor the festival with the use of office and meeting space, storage of materials and other "in kind" support. College president Steve Herman said the college was "pleased to support this type of activity." The college also sponsors the Garrett College Pipes and Drums, the festival's host band. McGee serves as the band's Pipe Major.

The Highland Festival was originally sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce before the Deep Creek Lions Club assumed sponsorship duties for a two-year period.

Last year an independent board was incorporated, as Humberson Homes and Mountain Properties presented the festival. With more emphasis on local attendance and cooperation with area non-profit organizations, the 2002 festival had the largest attendance in its history.

"It was gratifying to see," said McGee. "The mood was one of celebration of heritage, community, and spring." A British car and livestock shows were added to the music, encampment and re-enactments, food and craft vendors, athletic games, piping and dancing competitions, and clan area.

Individuals, businesses, and organizations interested in assisting with the event may contact McGee via e-mail at jmcgee@garretecollege.edu, or by phone at 301-387-3093.

citizen telephoned Pennsylvania State Police to say that a bank surveillance photograph published in the wake of that robbery portrayed an individual resembling Will. Based on that tip and other investigative evidence, Will was arrested at a Somerset County residence later that same day.

Will admitted to committing the Friendsville robbery, carrying out a robbery of the First Peoples Federal Credit Union in Grantsville on Nov. 14, 2001, and robbing the F&M Bank in LaVale. He also confessed to one robbery in Grafton, W.Va., and six robberies in the Pennsylvania communities of Markleysburg, Hopwood, Uniontown, Donegal, New Salem, and Indian Head.

Hafer Proposes

SB 64 designates the week that begins on the last Thursday in August and ends on the first Wednesday in September in each year to be a tax-free week. During that week, certain higher education class supplies would be exempt from sales and use tax. The bill is sponsored by 10 other senators.

"Class supplies" include items other than textbooks used to complete work for a class offered at an institution of higher education, an institution of postsecondary education, or a private career school. Electronic equipment would not be exempt.

Hafer introduced the same bills in the General Assembly last year, but the Senate committees did not give their final approval at that time.

The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee will hold hearings on the bills on Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 1:30 p.m. in the West Miller Senate Building, Annapolis.

Anyone wishing to testify on these bills must sign the witness register by 1 p.m. on Wednesday. Persons with written testimony must submit 30 copies to the committee staff for distribution by 11 a.m. that day.

Consider Codes

county does not license builders, there would be no mechanism for it to require certain educational requirements.

"What's the reality of having a voluntary home builders association?" asked Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

"It's not going to happen," said contractor Steve Gnegy, though he indicated he would like to see an active association. He noted that the county had an association a few years ago, "but nothing happened" with education. He and other contractors are booked year-round, and there is usually not enough time to attend meetings, especially if nothing is learned at them, he said

Charlie Ross, Chamber of Commerce president, noted that many home-builders were chamber members. He said he would inform them about the proposed board.

The Codes Review Committee also recommended that every application for a building permit be accompanied by two sets of building plans or drawings, one for the permitting office to review and keep on file and one to be maintained at the job site.

"We can make sure they are building what we think they are building," said inspector Keith Sines about requiring the plans.

Gnegy added that it is "no big deal" to keep two sets of plans. His company already keeps one set of plans in a protective tube at the job site.

The plans do not have to be professionally drawn for traditional homes, noted Torrington. The committee, however, suggested that the plans be legible and drawn to scale.

Plans would also be required for other structures requiring a permit such as decks, additions, and sheds, said Nelson.

Detailed profiles would be required, however, for "unconventional" homes, in particular, those with questionable roof support.

"I personally would not want any more government bureaucracy or restrictions," said Gregg. He added, however, that requiring detailed plans for unconventional structures may address some of the concerns about load bearing.

"Are there time constraints for unconventional plans to be rejected or accepted?" asked Commissioner David Beard.

Nelson said there could be some slow-down in the process, but only on a few requested permits.

The committee also recommended that a board of appeals be established, in accordance with the Garrett County Building Code. Several members volunteered to be on that board: Doug Devlin, Ed Wilburn, Rob Heilig, Wayne Beitzel, and Gnegy.

If the county is going to require detailed plans for unconventional structures, then a board will be needed for citizens to appeal that decision, said Nelson.

"We will allow for some responses [to the committee's recommendations]," said Gregg. "A lot of good builders are already doing these things. We'll hold this for further discussion."

Yes, It's Frustrating...

A couple letters we have received lately, one of which appears on this page today, note the frustration that school delays, cancellations, and curtailments can cause for parents of local school children. While we recognize and understand that frustration, we can't help but come to the defense of the board of education officials who must make these often difficult decisions. Their frustration, at times, undoubtedly matches that of the parents.

The primary point we want to make is that we believe strongly that the safety of our children is absolutely foremost in the minds of Mr. Refosco (head of school transportation) and Dr. Teets (superintendent). All of the pressure is upon these two individuals, and many times their decision is little better than a crapshoot. How many times this winter, for example, have the forecasters predicted 1-3 inches of snow for our area, and we received 8-10? Conversely, there have been other reports of impending severe weather that simply did not materialize.

A decision to delay school must be made approximately two hours prior to the actual start of school because that's when the first buses take to the roads to begin their routes. We all know how fast conditions can change in a two-hour span of time.

We also need to always keep in mind how big Garrett County is, and that while we might be enjoying calm weather in Oakland, conditions for those who live in Grantsville might be radically different. Such was the case one day last week when school was delayed. Almost nothing was happening weather-wise in the southern area of the county, while Keysers Ridge was being closed to traffic because of zero visibility.

Getting the word out about early closings is particularly difficult, as it is recognized that many parents may not have access to a radio at their place of employment. However, as weather conditions deteriorate, it should be incumbent upon those parents to attempt to find out whether or not school is closing early. Perhaps a grandparent or neighbor could be counted upon for a phone call. Some parents have suggested that the schools should telephone parents when school is going to be called off early, but frankly, the office staffs simply would not have the time to call literally thousands of parents.

This is Garrett County, folks. Anyone who has lived here at least a year or two knows how severe our winters can be, and that numerous preparations are necessary in order to survive them. If we burn wood for heat, we know that during the fall we must obtain a good supply of wood. We check to make sure our furnaces are in good working condition. We use lots of insulation, and we install double-pane storm windows. We do things to try to protect our plants, and we make preparations for our pets.

The same approach must be used with our children and the various school situations that may occur. We should all make arrangements, have a back-up plan in place, that will go into effect in the event that school is delayed, closed, or called off early. The board of education can do only so much to address the situation.

We haven't asked Mr. Refosco and Dr. Teets if making these particular decisions during Garrett County's long winters is among their favorite aspects of their jobs, but if we did ask, we're pretty sure we know what their answer would be. In fact, they probably wish they could let certain parents take over this task.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In last week's letters, David Bertsch said, "Sixty-seven 400-foot-high wind turbines in the path of migrating birds, each with a blade sweep nearly the size of a football field, turning at speeds that make them "invisible" to birds, could repeat the bird kill in Altamont, Calif."

Indeed, the Altamont bird kill is acknowledged as the only significant bird kill in the world due to wind turbines. There are nearly 7,000 wind turbines in Altamont, and the total number of birds killed in two years was 182. That's about the number of birds that were killed one day near Mountain Lake Park by poison or who knows what.

The reason Altamont got all the notoriety was that the turbine towers became convenient, but dangerous, nesting areas for endangered raptors which were killed leaving those perches to hunt migrating birds. The newer towers are designed to discourage nesting. In addition, the new larger blades spin at a lower speed. The simple fact is that all man-made structures can potentially kill birds.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has the following estimations for annual bird kills in the United States:

· 100 million are killed by house cats;

· 98 million are killed by collisions with glass windows and buildings;

· 57 million are killed by collisions with vehicles;

· 4 million to 5 million are killed in communication tower collisions.

There isn't any evidence that shows wind turbines are a greater danger to birds than any other structure. Should a two-year environmental study be required before a home is built, a picture window added, or a car purchased?

Protecting the environment is very important, and wind turbines are an environmentally friendly source of energy. There is, however, a bigger threat to our local environment. What killed all the birds near Mountain Lake Park and how do we prevent it from happening again?

Sherman Weisbrod
Terra Alta, W.Va.

To the Editor:

I must take issue with Russell Bounds's letter to the editor opposing the proposed windmill project on Backbone Mountain. His letter appeared in The Republican on January 16.

Mr. Bounds's first concern regarding the danger to birds has little merit. To reiterate the thoughts of readers of the local newspapers, automobiles, cats, and plate glass windows pose a similar threat, but no one advocates eliminating them. The raptors which Mr. Bounds mentions are frequently killed while attempting to capture prey in the middle of a road because they do not see a semi bearing down on them.

Mr. Bounds's concerns of declining property values and elimination of scenic vistas are intertwined, so I will address them collectively. His occupation as a real estate agent presents a definite conflict of interest as well as a hypocritical point of view. On one hand, he opposes building the windmills, while, on the other hand, I'm sure he has had no problem seeing the (previously) scenic ridges around Deep Creek Lake being stripped of trees to build more and more houses. It seems to be acceptable to build the houses which consume electrical power; however, it is not acceptable to build the windmills which will generate the power that these houses require.

Why is it that, in this "The New Development Plan for Garrett County," the "Policies for Protecting Viewsheds" did not protect the views of the ridges around Deep Creek Lake from being scarred, but now are being cited to apply to these wind generators? Could it be that Mr. Bounds and his real estate colleagues have been forcing a biased interpretation of these rules on the county residents to maximize their own personal financial gain? After all, real estate agents make money selling property and houses; they will make no money on Backbone Mountain if the wind farm becomes a reality and takes up space where houses could be built.

Instead of griping about these windmills, maybe the county should take a different initiative and view them as a tourist attraction. Just north of here in Garrett, Pa., signs have even been erected directing visitors

GOING WITH JESUS TO THE STREETS

After hearing National Public Radio's review of Eminem's film 8 Mile, I had to see the movie. For those adults who do not have teenagers at home to keep them up-to-date on current cultural trends, Eminem is a white boy from Detroit who may be probably the finest rap musician in the world.

Rap is a musical art form that came out of the black ghetto of America's inner cities. In musical style it is percussive and spare. In content, it is often violent, extremely vulgar, and even sometimes dangerously anti-social. There are some African-American rappers who have approached the form more cheerfully, of whom Will Smith is the best-known example.

Rap specializes in rage, and Eminem has mastered rage as few artists have ever done, in any medium. That does not recommend either the genre or the artist to parents. A second problem is that rap as music is not easily accessible to people who are accustomed to listen in terms of melody and harmony.

Those who know rap either love it (kids) or are terrified by it (their parents). In addition to all the issues of content and musical style that make parents afraid of rap, this is an elemental art form that cuts through all the carefully arranged social insulation of bourgeois life. Rappers confront the most fundamental questions of human existence.

My son Nick was surprised when I told him that I wanted to see 8 Mile with him. He had already seen it twice, but he was willing to see it again. He was sure, however, that I would hate it, and he did not want to be along for the ride while I was hating it. He tried to talk me out of seeing this movie.

I insisted that I wanted to see 8 Mile, and that I wanted to see it with him. He consented, but reminded me that he was not to be held responsible when I did hate it. I explained to Nick that I did not want to see the film because I thought I would like it, rather because seeing the film would help me understand what is happening in America today. On that basis, I strongly recommend that every parent of a teenager, indeed every person concerned about the future of our society, see this movie.

The film is violent and has explicit sex scenes. It is not my idea of a family movie, though it is about, among other things, the state of families in America today. What surprised me, and what completely mystified my son, is that the film convinced me that the Christian Church should embrace rap music wholeheartedly, and the sooner the better.

When Nick and I saw the film together I had just finished three months' intensive study of 13th century Christian theology. In that period of church history there was a form of public disputation in which rival teams of theologians argued their respective positions on a point of doctrine.

That sounds dry as dust to us all these centuries later, but, at the time, those disputations filled large halls of students with all the passion of basketball fans or — more to the point — of rap enthusiasts.

8 Mile depicts rap battles in which rappers get 45 seconds each to rap each other. The first rapper does his rap, and then the second rapper takes apart the rap of the first rapper. At the end of the night, there is a champion rapper.

The back and forth of argument toward some final resolution is the essence of dialectic.

Before my eyes in a film depicting scenes of life from the 21st century American ghetto, I saw 13th century dialectical disputation come alive.

The content of the rap is not, of course, about the fine

TAKING A BITE OF THE BIG APPLE

By Mary Sincell McEwen

There's nothing like making a trip to New York City to shake up your life. We took such a trip over the weekend, driving up to the city on Friday and coming back home Sunday. It was a whirlwind tour, for certain, but it was an enlightening three days just the same. We took two of our three sons with us on our excursion, leaving Michael, the youngest, here with his grandmother Hannah. (A weekend as the only grandson is a good deal for him — lots of one-on-one and at least one trip to Englander's for a milkshake that he doesn't have to share with a single soul. Sweet.)

Getting to NYC is tiring. You have to drive clear across Pennsylvania, which is just way too dull. Thankfully, the boys had their trusty GameBoys with them, so they were quiet almost the whole way, minus several game-induced grunts and ahs. I got pretty squirmy when Pennsylvania refused to quit, but was given a respite when we stopped to pick up our niece Lori at Muhlenberg College in Allentown. Soon after, we were tooling along the New Jersey Turnpike, which wouldn't be all that great except that it means you're getting close to the Big Apple. I do love New York. It is such an exciting, colorful, and stimulating place, so full of life. You cannot help being thrilled by it, no matter who you are. It's this amazing crush of people and buildings, all lit up and loud, with intriguing and constantly changing smells and sounds. The people are from everywhere, and they are going everywhere at a pace that is surprising and that makes me laugh. For a woman who lives in a town of 2,000, who walks home for lunch (in the middle of the road, if she wants), and who gets impatient if she has to wait at an in-town light for more than three minutes, New York City is another planet. And it's exhilarating to go to another planet once in a while.

The purpose of the trip was to see a play starring my nephew Matt, stage managed by my niece Sara, and with a set (an ingenious set, I might add) designed by my brother Ben. Nearly my whole family helped with the set, painting and sawing and nailing. Even my boys helped slap on some paint, so it was a real family affair. And the kids were extremely proud to point out their names in the program as having been a part of it all.

The play was indeed a focal point of the excursion, but exposing ourselves to the city was an adventure all in itself. Matt lives in an apartment in Weehawken, N.J., just across the Hudson River from Manhattan. While driving to his place, we were intent upon the road, searching for our exits, gripping the seat while our husband remained oddly calm driving in the midst of five-lane impatient traffic, and holding our breath as enormous trucks blew past. Just when we thought we couldn't take another second of the death-defying vehicle hurtling, we came up around a corner near Matt's, and suddenly, the city in all its glory literally appeared before our eyes. It doesn't matter how many times you view it, the sight of the metropolis just across the river, bejeweled with a billion lights, is dazzling. The boys and Lori gasped, and I think I did, too. What a place.

Matt's home is pleasantly removed from the city, and our first night was quiet (except for the squirrels on the roof, who apparently had some sort of urgent business that forced them to scamper non-stop). When we arose Saturday, we were ready to dive into the city whole-hog. It was just sitting there, waiting to show us a good time, and we were willing. It was public transportation all the way, too, because I was not riding shotgun in the city. (I would've driven John to drink too early in the day.) It was easy, really, to get to the island of Manhattan, and before long we were on the busy, bustling streets, standing there agog and dazed, but trying to avoid looking like total tourists. You want to look savvy in the city, which is hard to do while fiddling with a subway map flapping in the wind. And the wind — that's a subject all by itself. It was some of the coldest wind I think I've ever felt, even here in Garrett County. There must be something about those tall buildings that makes the wind move faster and freeze your forehead like you've just downed a colossal bite of ice cream.

We spent the day mostly walking, aiming for Ground Zero. I really wanted to go there. We rode the subway to Canal Street and then walked down the remaining blocks. It was a long, cold trek. We made it to the site, and I gripped the chain link and peered through. I scoured my memory to retrieve the image of the day in 1990 when John and I walked up the street right in front of the two towers. I couldn't help looking up at them, they were so surreal in height. I made myself remember that sensation as I looked down in the pit where the open layers of a parking garage are about all that's left. It's a vast area, and of course seven buildings were lost — not just the towers. So the hole is gaping. I was completely surprised to feel tears well up as I read a sign from the NYC fire and police departments thanking everyone for the prayers and support. I was indeed moved by the human ache that is still evident in that place, where the scent of ash lingers yet in the air, one year and four months later.

A bunch of us were happy to eat lunch together at Battery Park, where the clean-up has been miraculous. Lady Liberty is ever-vigilant at her post, and it was good to see her. That evening we went to the show, which made us laugh and made us proud. Friends of Matt's came from all over the place to see him — it was almost a class reunion that night. When we finally returned to the apartment, very late, sleep was upon us in short order. That city takes it out of you. We headed home Sunday with stories to tell.

Upon our reunion with Michael on Sunday night, Rob's first statement to him was: "We saw a guy going through the garbage." You never know what might impress a person. I was happy to be home again in my quiet town where the loudest noise right now comes from a rowdy flock of crows (what is that about, anyhow?). But I will go back to the Big Apple again, to experience the pounding city life and revel in that driving pulse that does not stop. What a rush.

ates in the next few months, reported director Trish Yoder. A focus group will interview local consumers of mental health services about the stigmas they face.

The board of directors will then examine the results and discuss ways to address the stigmas, Yoder said.

The director noted that in the last five years, there have been "some in-roads" made in attitudes about mental illness.

"People are trying to change," said Yoder. "I am really pleased about that."

Chamber of Commerce

Mountain Maryland's annual PACE reception in Annapolis last week was a success, with 750 persons attending, reported Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross.

Although Gov. Bob Erhlich could not attend the event as scheduled because of illness, Lt. Gov. Michael Steele attended both the legislative reception on Friday and the breakfast on Saturday, Ross said.

Also attending the event from the General Assembly were Michael Busch, speaker of the House, and Mike Miller, president of the Senate, as well as many other law makers and county and state officials.

"No one's gotten that response across the board from leadership," said Ross about similar events to which Maryland officials were invited.

The president also reported that the 2003-04 Vacation Guides would be released the first of March. Additionally, 100,000 brochures outlining the information found in the guide will be printed to distribute to persons interested in visiting the county. The purpose of the brochures is to help keep the chamber within its printing budget.

Last year, the chamber ran out of guides because of an unforeseen increase in demand for the publication. As a result, the chamber had to request additional funding from the county to reprint more guides. To avoid the shortfall in FY 2003, the chamber will limit the number of guides it distributes and offer the brochures in lieu of the more expensive publication.

Dove Center

The Dove Center recently released its FY 2002 report. Heather Hanline, executive director, presented copies of the report to the commissioners and others at the staff meeting.

"The annual report is a snapshot of what we do in a year's time," said Hanline.

Between Oct. 1, 2001, and Sept. 30, 2002, the shelter had 872 bed nights and housed 84 adults and children, according to the report.

A total of 498 persons were assisted last year, which is comparable to larger state agencies, said Hanline. Of those clients served, 388 were for domestic violence, 51 were for rape crisis, 19 were domestic violence perpetrators, and 40 were homeless persons.

The report also outlines the Dove Center's various programs and plans and lists the 2002 donors.

Ruth Enlow Library

Director Cathy Ashby announced that the Ruth Enlow board of trustees had just signed a contract with BYCO Enterprises of Grantsville. The excavating company will break ground for the new Grantsville library branch on March 15, weather permitting.

Ashby also reported that the library had receive several new computers from the Gates Foundation. The Oakland branch received four new computers. It now has a total of 13 computers for patrons to use. The other branches each received two of them, for a total of four at each site.

Community Action

President Duane Yoder, Garrett County Community Action Committee, reported that his agency had initiated a project a Southern and Northern high schools to encourage students to develop money-saving habits.

The Individual Development Account project was designed to help students save money to further their education or job training.

"This is a new way to grow savings for college or vocational school," said Yoder. Community Action will match the students' savings two to one, he said.

The program, however, does have stipulations. Students must meet certain income guidelines and have a part-time job. There is also a cap on the amount of savings that the agency will match.

Garrett College

The state's budget woes are expected to affect Garrett College. Dr. Steve Herman said the college's state funding would probably be cut by at least 3 percent in both FY 2003 and 2004. The cut could be as high as 8 percent. The president, added, however, that he had feared the reduction would be as high as 25 percent, as it was in FY 1991.

Extension Service

Faculty extension assistant Beverly Carvell said she did not know yet how the state's budget would affect her agency, but the Extension Service was "moving ahead" with its current plans.

The service will hold a Crop Insurance Program for farmers on Thursday, Feb. 13, from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Garrett College.

Carvell also reported that dietician Jennifer Thorn's diabetes program was going well. Thorn is currently conducting a three-part series of classes in Friendsville on managing diabetes through nutrition and healthy cooking.

The series will also be offered in the Oakland area beginning in April. The classes are free. For more information, persons may call 301-334-6960.

Roads Departments

Supervisor Fred Polce, county roads department, reported that his crews have had 61 snow-removal days so far during this winter. Last year at this time, the department had had 41 snow removal days.

Additionally, the department has spent 60 percent of its snow removal budget so far, with at least two more months of winter yet to go, said Polce.

He added that according to the State Highway Administration, the county has had 121 inches of snow so far this winter.

The next public meeting of the Garrett County commissioners will be held Tuesday, Feb. 4, at 9 a.m. in their meeting room at the court house.

towards that wind farm. I personally think the new wind farm will be an exciting addition to the area. It would also make a very interesting field trip for local students.

With the prospect of having much needed electrical energy generated here in Garrett County by non-polluting windmills, Mr. Bounds should think twice before putting on his Don Quixote armor (the windmills really were not giants).

To the Editor:

As we all know the temperatures of late have been very, very cold. Yesterday, January 23, was one of the coldest days of the year, and even though the temperatures did not go above 6 degrees the board of education saw fit to have school anyway. They called a two-hour delay and then had an early dismissal at 2:00.

My question is, why did they bother to have school at all? I'm sure there were children in the county who had to stand out in this cold weather until their particular bus came.

Then the board of education dismissed at 2:00, causing many parents including myself to scramble from work to get their children, making sure these kids weren't exposed to the cold winds and dropping temperatures. What if a parent couldn't get to the home or place of drop off on time? What if the parent didn't even know that they were dismissing at 2:00? It would mean that some of the kids would have been out in the inclement weather until a parent or whoever got there. If they would have canceled school to begin with many parents could have made plans to take their children to day care or make other arrangements. If it was cold enough to have a two-hour delay, it was cold enough not to have any school at all. If the winds were causing drifting, it was snowing, and the temperature was still bitter cold and they knew it wasn't going to change and only get worse, why not just go ahead and cancel school? At least these kids would have been safe if someone would have just used his head. Why couldn't they wait one more hour to get the full day in? Does the board of education even have a clue as to what they are doing?

Ok, so that was yesterday. Now today, Friday, January 24, there was a two-hour delay. Once again the temperatures were just a hair above zero, the winds were blowing, and it was snowing. Once again the board of education did a bang up job in confusing people and putting our kids in harm's way. Most parents were on their way to work. What if that parent went to work and assumed that his or her child was going to school on a two-hour delay, or didn't hear that school has been canceled? Children would have been out in this nasty weather with possibly no one around, or the parent would have to turn around from work and go back to pick up his or her children and make arrangements for them for the day. What in the world is going on? Is there any reason why this keeps happening?

This is about the fourth time this year that they have given a two-hour delay and then canceled or given a two-hour delay and sent the kids home early. Is there someone at the board of education who can make a decision to just call school off to begin with instead of flip-flopping back and forth? What about the parents who are trying to keep a job, but because someone at the board can't make up his/her mind, are late for work, have to leave early, or stay at home. Most of us have to work for a living; some people have bosses who aren't very understanding. It is important to keep a roof overhead, and food on the table. How can one keep a job if one is late, has to leave early, or doesn't show up at all?

I personally would rather my son go to school a couple of days longer in June than to see him be put in harm's way on these cold and snowy days in the winter time.

Are you people insane? Do you want to take responsibility for something happening to a kid because you can't make up your mind? Would you like for your child to wait at the bus stop in freezing temperatures while the board makes up its mind on whether to have a delay or cancel school, when the decision was clear not to have school to begin with? Would you like to be almost to work and have to turn around to pick up your child because on a whim someone decided to cancel school as an afterthought? Would you like to make arrangements for a child in a moment's notice because school was just canceled?

My point is that someone should get on the stick, quit pussy footing around, and make a decision to begin with. If you're going to cancel school, cancel it! If you're going to have a delay, have a delay. Don't go back and forth.

I'm sure there are parents who are as frustrated as I am.

As the old saying goes — Use your head for something more than a hat rack!

Sincerely,
Kim Knox

To the Editor:

I was disgusted by the political cartoon placed on your editorial page last week. It showed the "Religious Right" taking away the right of a woman to choose an abortion. Why isn't a cartoon placed with a baby receiving a card from pro-abortion supporters, or members of Planned Parenthood, saying, "We have removed your right to live, in the name of convenience."?

This year is the 30th anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade and the Doe vs. Bolton Supreme Court decisions. In that 30 years 42 million babies have lost their lives. Only 1% of these unborn babies were aborted because of rape, 1% had fetal abnormalities, and 4% had doctors who said that the mother's health would worsen if the pregnancy continued. Why is the same act, performed just months — sometimes weeks — later, called infanticide?

Organizations like Planned Parenthood and NARAL (National Abortion Rights Action League) claim that women deserve a right to choose based on their own health. But they fail to mention in their clinics that abortion dramatically increases the risk of breast cancer, and post abortion syndrome, and that women often suffer the rest of their lives with emotional scars. They don't tell the story of how Dr. Bernard Nathanson, the founder of NARAL, has since repented and joined the cause of pro-lifers such as myself.

It also seems certain other facts are not mentioned by these organizations, facts like Roe (of Roe vs. Wade) and Doe (of Doe vs. Bolton) have since declared that abortion is murder, and that the information that was presented by pro-abortion activists in their defense in these Supreme Court decisions were completely fabricated. C. Everett Koop, M.D., formerly the U.S. surgeon general, states that during his 35-plus years of practicing medicine, "Never once did a case come across my practice where abortion was necessary to save a mother's life."

I would also like to know who decided that mere change of location decides if a baby is living? Apparently not most of America. In an on-line version of a survey, Time magazine asked, "When does life begin?" More than 67,000 people responded, with 65% indicating that they believed life begins at conception. Only 6.2% felt that life begins at birth, and 24.1% decided that they fit into the "don't know" category. So whose decision was this to legalize abortion anyway?

The most frightening fact is that 28% of my generation has been killed before any of them could take their first breath. These are my friends, my neighbors, my science class partners, and the ones whose locker would have been next to mine. I fear the rate will continue to rise, as people remain blind to the facts before us.

Signed,
Laura Skipper (age 15)

Dear Miss Skipper:

I appreciate your letter, and only want to point out that the viewpoints presented in editorial cartoons that appear on this page are not necessarily shared by this newspaper, just as the opinions expressed in letters to the editor are not necessarily those of the editor or the members of our staff. Editorial cartoons are simply the opinion of one person, and among the reasons editors choose to use them is to evoke a reaction, a response, an opportunity for one with an opposing viewpoint to express himself or herself, as you have.

Editor

To the Editor:

My name is Elizabeth Hitt and I'm an eighth grader at Palombi Middle School in Lake Villa, Illinois. My Writer's Workshop class is writing letters about respect to editors of newspapers across the country in hopes of being published. This is why I am writing to you.

I don't think that teachers get the respect that they deserve. Teachers work very hard at their jobs. They spend a lot of time doing lesson plans, grading papers, and, of course, teaching. If students show teachers more respect, students might receive more respect from teachers.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Hitt

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to express my concern about the unsafe driving practices that I have witnessed during the past months in inclement weather. Ice and snow can make driving conditions treacherous, thus making adjustments to the "normal" way that you drive crucial. During my morning commutes to McHenry when there have been icy conditions, I have witnessed vehicles not lowering their speeds and not allowing extra distance between themselves and the vehicle in front of them.

It is easy to desensitize yourself to driving in icy conditions when you've lived in an area like Garrett County for some time. You forget that you are not invincible — that adhering to extra safety measures could save your life and the lives of your fellow drivers.

In January 1998, my father and I were on our way to Florida for my sister's wedding when we hit black ice outside of Hagerstown, just two hours into our trip. My father's driving and the solidity of his 1987 Nissan Pathfinder kept the accident, thankfully, without fatalities. We hit an 18-wheeler at least four times at a speed of 40 to 50 miles per hour. (The roads were untreated at the time, and during that morning there were several accidents due to black ice, at least one with a fatality.) My father's Pathfinder did not fare as well as we did, but to walk away from such an accident was a miracle in itself. It also serves as a reminder of how dangerous driving can be during the winter.

I hope that an accident is not what it must take to make other drivers aware of the extra care they should practice when driving this winter.

Experience in driving in winter conditions can help, but it does not make you invincible.

For more information on the necessary safety precautions to take for driving in the winter, you can access the Maryland State Highway Administration web site at www.sha.state.md.us.

GOING WITH JESUS TO THE STREETS

points of the Holy Trinity or the theory of knowledge, but it could be. Inner city rappers have created a dialectical method just waiting to be infused with the message that creates and saves.

Since seeing the movie I have been listening to rap intentionally, not just when it happened to be in the way of my ears. I have imagined the psalms set to rap. The violence and anti-social language in that most basic prayerbook of the church is amazingly akin to the language of rap.

The reason is the same: In rap and in the psalms the singer addresses questions of human existence without reserve. The difference is that the singer of the psalms addresses those questions to God. The rapper is not sure there is a God or, if there is, that God makes any difference.

8 Mile has changed my life. Where formerly I saw cultural dead-ends, I now see opportunities. Rap can give the church new rhythms to pray old prayers and a new method of dialogue to express the oldest and truest truths. Jesus Christ took his message to the streets. It is time for his church to do the same.

HICKORY'S HEAVENS
News from the Planetarium
By James R. Hart, teacher

In 1610 Galileo Galilei, the famous Italian astronomer, made one of his most sensational discoveries when he located four moons circling the planet Jupiter. Galileo referred to these tiny pinpoints of light as companion "stars" and routinely tracked their movement.

Jupiter rises above the eastern horizon at Hickory by 6 p.m. The Earth's rotation will make it appear to rise and move westward where it appears before sunrise. It is the brightest object in the nighttime sky, excluding the moon. However, before sunrise, Venus, which is brighter than Jupiter, will be high above the eastern horizon.

Fourth grade students visiting the planetarium in the upcoming weeks will be taught a lesson titled "Tracking Jupiter's Moons." Using the planetarium instrument and a series of slides they will pretend to be Galileo looking through his telescope. They will observe and record the changing positions of Io, Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto over a period of nine consecutive nights. Using their observations the students will predict the orbital period of the moons.

Health Academy Awarded Funding For Continuance

The Health Sciences & Technology Academy of Barbour, Preston, Taylor, and Tucker counties (Mountain HSTA) has been awarded $4,000 from the Dominion Mount Storm Power Station. This is the second year that Dominion Mount Storm has contributed money to the HSTA program. Stanley Hostler, a private donor who agreed to match funds up to $3,521.10, increased the donation, totaling the amount of funds raised to $7,521.10.

The HSTA of West Virginia University is a 9th-12th grade math and science program which encourages and empowers minority and low-income students in rural communities to pursue careers in health science-related fields. This partnership, among numerous units of the state's land grant university and many Appalachian communities, brings HSTA students and teachers to the WVU campus each summer for clinical, laboratory, and classroom training and enrichment activities. It further provides the infrastructure and support for community-based science projects mentored by teachers and volunteers during the school year.

Motivated students in grades 9-12 will participate in the program, receiving preparation and support for pursuing careers in health science professions or related areas in science and technology. Students also receive assistance with completing their college applications.

The program has already received national recognition, with full support from WVU president David Hardesty, U.S. Senator Jay Rockefeller, and the West Virginia congressional delegation. Preliminary results indicate that virtually all of the participating students and teachers feel that HSTA is both "an effective and enjoyable program." Over 96 percent of HSTA graduates pursue higher education, and 50 percent pursue health sciences majors. Most of these students attend West Virginia colleges and universities. "It is hoped that many will return to their communities to provide the health care leadership so badly needed in rural Appalachia," stated an academy spokesperson.

For additional information about this program, persons may visit the Web site http://www.wvhsta.org or contact Kristy D. Johnson, Mountain HSTA field site coordinator, at 800-345-4267, or e-mail kjohnson@hsc.wvu.edu.

The Family Of Mervin "R" Skip Bernard
would like to express sincere appreciation for the continued expressions of love and support during our time of loss.

Thank You To:

•Team One employees for your constant concern and care.
•Our friends and family for all your prayers, phone calls, flowers and meals.
•All those individuals and groups who generously gave to Skip's favorite charities.
•Those who endured the less than favorable weather conditions and large crowds to pay their respects.

AND

Rev. Don Wilson, June Harvey, Deep Creek Fire Co., Southern Rescue Squad, Stewart Funeral Home, Blue, Al and Mark Marucci, RPM Construction and Point View Inn.

Most of all, please continue to remember us in your thoughts and prayers for ongoing strength over this great loss.

Don't grieve for me, for now I'm free,
I'm following the path laid for me.
I took his hand and I heard him call;
I turned my back and left it all.
I could not stay another day,
To laugh, to love, to work, or play.
If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joy.
A friendship shared, a laugh, a kiss,
Ah, yes, these things I too will miss.
Be not burdened with times of sorrow;
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.
My life's been full, I've savored much;
Good friends, good times, a loved one's touch.
Perhaps my time seemed all too brief;
Don't lengthen it now with undue grief.
Lift up your heart and share with me,
God wanted me now, He set me free.

Northern High Envirothon Team Increases Biodiversity At Wetland

by Liz McDowell

Snow covers the created wetland on the Northern High and Middle School campus. But under that blanket of white, seeds lie in wait for warmer temperatures and the opportunity to sprout. Thanks to the efforts of the Northern High Envirothon team, many of the seeds belong to species never before seen on the campus.

The seeds were leftovers from a research project at the Appalachian Laboratory in Frostburg. Instead of simply throwing the unwanted seeds into the garbage, Dr. Cathlyn Stylinski, assistant professor at the Appalachian Lab, thoughtfully notified schools in Allegany and Garrett counties about their availability via e-mail. Northern High's Envirothon team quickly took advantage of the free offer to increase the biodiversity of the wetland at their school.

Members and coaches of the NHS Envirothon team braved cold wind and water on November 13 to put the wetland to bed before the arrival of winter. Will Gallagher, Mitchell Guard, and Michael McKewen won the prize for coldest hands, as they waded into the wetland and yanked out invasive cattails by their roots.

The common cattail is a native species that can be quite invasive in wetland habitats, in some cases outcompeting all other plants, including rare and endangered species. Michael Guard raked and collected pine needles from the adjacent woods to use as a light mulch on the seedbeds. Danny Gallagher helped gather tools and dig seedbeds. Coaches Ron Boyer and Liz McDowell selected the location for each species based on its wetland indicator status and prepared the seed beds for planting. Vicki Schlosnagle carefully planted and mulched the seeds. Jordan Halsig and Margaret Mastej made species labels with scientific and common names and staked them at the appropriate locations.

Only native species were planted at the wetland. Basically, a native species is one that was here prior to European settlement. A total of 13 new species were added to the wetland, including herbs (giant burreed, rice cutgrass, Canada bluejoint, green bulrush, cottongrass, fringed sedge, bladder sedge, Stalkgrain Sedge, Canada rush, and soft rush) and shrubs (narrow-leaf meadowsweet, winterberry, and mountain holly).

Since the construction of the Northern Garrett wetland in the fall of 1999, over 40 different native species have been planted there. Since that time many more species both alien and native have volunteered themselves. Their seeds have arrived through the action of wind, water, and animals, such as the mallard ducks that frequent the wetland.

It's hard to believe that it was once just another section of lawn that had to be mowed each week, wasting manpower, using energy, and polluting the environment. Now it's a functioning wetland that provides many benefits: enhanced wildlife habitat; improved water quality; recharged groundwater; increased biodiversity; and countless educational opportunities for Garrett County students.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q: If the wind chill gets cold enough, will my car's engine freeze up?

A: No. The "Wind Chill Factor" only deals with the rate at which heat is transferred, especially the rate of heat transfer away from skin. It has nothing to do with inanimate objects like machinery.

The human body produces heat internally and loses heat through the skin. If the wind is blowing fast, more heat will be carried away than when the wind is slow or calm. The phenomenon of frostbite comes from having heat carried away faster than the body can produce heat, so that the temperature of the toes or fingers drops to the point where cells die.

On the other hand, things made of wood, metal, plastic, etc., simply reach the temperature of the surroundings and stay there. If the actual temperature is -5 F, that's as cold as the metal object will get, no matter how much wind there is.

Most automotive engines contain a 50/50 mixture of ethylene glycol (anti-freeze) and water, which will not freeze down to -34 F. There are mighty few places where it ever gets that cold. In the bad old days long ago, when people used only water in their cooling systems, then at +32 F the water would freeze and expand, thus cracking the engine block. Nobody runs an automobile engine that way any more, not even in the summer. (Incidentally, the mixture of water and anti-freeze also boils at a higher temperature, thus creating an extra margin of safety for very hot days.)

Animals who have a coating of fur are still subject to the wind chill to some extent, but not as much as exposed skin. Still, it is important to bring pets inside on cold nights. But an automobile feels no "wind chill" effect at all.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and teaches physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

tion helped the board of trustees raise more than $350,000 for the new library.

Additionally, the Board of Garrett County Commissioners committed county capital funds to match the money raised by the ReNew Committee. U.S. Senators Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes and Congressman Roscoe Bartlett also helped the library system obtain a $300,000 EDI Special Projects grant for the new library building.

Sheila Miller and Gary Ruddell are the chairpersons of the ReNew Grantsville Committee. They and the other committee members sponsored potato dinners; band and chorus concerts; Leo Beachy photographic print sales; and auctions of quilts, art works, a variety of donated items, and trips and services.

They also sold bricks engraved with the name of the donor or a family member to raise money for the new building and materials for the new library.

Numerous community members also donated their time, talents, and money to make the ReNew Committee's fund-raising efforts a success, said a library spokesperson.

Currently, the committee is seeking donations for the new library's furnishings and to increase the book collection.

The new building will eventually hold about 24,000 books and other library materials.

NHS CLASS OF 1972 – Members of the 1972 graduating class of Northern High School gathered together in August 2002 to celebrate their 30th reunion. Twenty-five class members and their spouses met at the home of Jerry Humberson for the celebration, which had a Hawaiian theme with leis, grass table skirting, and souvenir glasses. A picnic dinner was prepared by BumBle Q's. The reunion included former classmates who may not have graduated with the class, faculty members, and staff members of the school during the years of 1966 through 1972. Special guests included Melvin and Sally Schwing, Harold Humberson, George Edwards, and Dorothy Georg. Class members traveled from Kentucky, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and Ohio. E-mails from classmates were received from Russia and Spain. The evening's events included a memorial service for deceased members, led by Mary Mickle. Group photos were taken, and plans for the 35th reunion were made. It will be held on Saturday, Aug. 11, 2007, at the same place and time. The reunions will always be held on the Saturday preceding the Garrett County Fair. Pictures are available to anyone for $5 each, as well as an updated class roster, and can be obtained by contacting any member of the planning committee. Reunion organizers wish to continue to contact class members. All classmates are encouraged to register with Classmates.com so that the reunion committee can find them. Committee members are Charee Reckner (301-387-2807, charee@mail2.gcnet.net), Donna McClintock (301-334-7740), and William Hetz (717-328-3991, hetzl@comcast.net). New members are welcome. In the photo above, in the first row from left, are Sharon Bender Brenneman, Karen Platter Dishong, Jerry Humberson, Betty Jo Swauger Wiley, Charee Reckner, and Gene Benedict. Second row, same order: Mary Spiker Mickle, Fred O'Leary, and Jennifer Knox Hady. Third row: Alice Miller Orendorf, Joanna Yoder Schrock, and Rick Wakefield. Fourth row: Ellen Hershberger Housley, Donna McClintock, and William Hetz. Fifth row: Patty Bender Rice, Marvin Glass, and Stanley Bittinger. Sixth row: Dottie Georg Gilpin, and Ruth Ann Kolb Hahn. Back row: Alana Skidmore Jones, Henry Bowser, and Marvin Kolb.

Northern High Envirothon Team Increases Biodiversity At Wetland

by Liz McDowell

Snow covers the created wetland on the Northern High and Middle School campus. But under that blanket of white, seeds lie in wait for warmer temperatures and the opportunity to sprout. Thanks to the efforts of the Northern High Envirothon team, many of the seeds belong to species never before seen on the campus.

The seeds were leftovers from a research project at the Appalachian Laboratory in Frostburg. Instead of simply throwing the unwanted seeds into the garbage, Dr. Cathlyn Stylinski, assistant professor at the Appalachian Lab, thoughtfully notified schools in Allegany and Garrett counties about their availability via e-mail. Northern High's Envirothon team quickly took advantage of the free offer to increase the biodiversity of the wetland at their school.

Members and coaches of the NHS Envirothon team braved cold wind and water on November 13 to put the wetland to bed before the arrival of winter. Will Gallagher, Mitchell Guard, and Michael McKewen won the prize for coldest hands, as they waded into the wetland and yanked out invasive cattails by their roots.

The common cattail is a native species that can be quite invasive in wetland habitats, in some cases outcompeting all other plants, including rare and endangered species. Michael Guard raked and collected pine needles from the adjacent woods to use as a light mulch on the seedbeds. Danny Gallagher helped gather tools and dig seedbeds. Coaches Ron Boyer and Liz McDowell selected the location for each species based on its wetland indicator status and prepared the seed beds for planting. Vicki Schlosnagle carefully planted and mulched the seeds. Jordan Halsig and Margaret Mastej made species labels with scientific and common names and staked them at the appropriate locations.

Only native species were planted at the wetland. Basically, a native species is one that was here prior to European settlement. A total of 13 new species were added to the wetland, including herbs (giant burreed, rice cutgrass, Canada bluejoint, green bulrush, cottongrass, fringed sedge, bladder sedge, Stalkgrain Sedge, Canada rush, and soft rush) and shrubs (narrow-leaf meadowsweet, winterberry, and mountain holly).

Since the construction of the Northern Garrett wetland in the fall of 1999, over 40 different native species have been planted there. Since that time many more species both alien and native have volunteered themselves. Their seeds have arrived through the action of wind, water, and animals, such as the mallard ducks that frequent the wetland.

It's hard to believe that it was once just another section of lawn that had to be mowed each week, wasting manpower, using energy, and polluting the environment. Now it's a functioning wetland that provides many benefits: enhanced wildlife habitat; improved water quality; recharged groundwater; increased biodiversity; and countless educational opportunities for Garrett County students.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q: If the wind chill gets cold enough, will my car's engine freeze up?

A: No. The "Wind Chill Factor" only deals with the rate at which heat is transferred, especially the rate of heat transfer away from skin. It has nothing to do with inanimate objects like machinery.

The human body produces heat internally and loses heat through the skin. If the wind is blowing fast, more heat will be carried away than when the wind is slow or calm. The phenomenon of frostbite comes from having heat carried away faster than the body can produce heat, so that the temperature of the toes or fingers drops to the point where cells die.

On the other hand, things made of wood, metal, plastic, etc., simply reach the temperature of the surroundings and stay there. If the actual temperature is -5 F, that's as cold as the metal object will get, no matter how much wind there is.

Most automotive engines contain a 50/50 mixture of ethylene glycol (anti-freeze) and water, which will not freeze down to -34 F. There are mighty few places where it ever gets that cold. In the bad old days long ago, when people used only water in their cooling systems, then at +32 F the water would freeze and expand, thus cracking the engine block. Nobody runs an automobile engine that way any more, not even in the summer. (Incidentally, the mixture of water and anti-freeze also boils at a higher temperature, thus creating an extra margin of safety for very hot days.)

Animals who have a coating of fur are still subject to the wind chill to some extent, but not as much as exposed skin. Still, it is important to bring pets inside on cold nights. But an automobile feels no "wind chill" effect at all.

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and teaches physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

Committee. U.S. Senators Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes and Congressman Roscoe Bartlett also helped the library system obtain a $300,000 EDI Special Projects grant for the new library building.

Sheila Miller and Gary Ruddell are the chairpersons of the ReNew Grantsville Committee. They and the other committee members sponsored potato dinners; band and chorus concerts; Leo Beachy photographic print sales; and auctions of quilts, art works, a variety of donated items, and trips and services.

They also sold bricks engraved with the name of the donor or a family member to raise money for the new building and materials for the new library.

Numerous community members also donated their time, talents, and money to make the ReNew Committee's fund-raising efforts a success, said a library spokesperson.

Currently, the committee is seeking donations for the new library's furnishings and to increase the book collection.

The new building will eventually hold about 24,000 books and other library materials.

Sang Run To Present Benefit Concert At OTT

Sang Run, a local band, will present a benefit concert of Irish, Scottish, Breton, and American folk music at Our Town Theatre in Oakland on Saturday, Feb. 15, at 8 p.m.

The admission fee for this fund-raiser is $10 per person. The money will be used to help build The Backstage, a scenery, costume, and prop workshop down the street from the theatre.

The musicians of Sang Run have been playing in the Garrett County area for about three years and have evolved into a Celtic-roots band performing danceable, upbeat instrumentals and poetic vocals, a spokesperson said.

Members of the group are Alice Fleischman, flute and pennywhistle; Fred Jacoby, percussion; Mike Broderick, fiddle; Jeff Gilbert, guitar and mandolin; Jennifer Osha, vocals and keyboard; and Jose Pimienta Bey, vocals and guitar.

Our Town Theatre is located at 121 Center Street in Oakland, across from the Ruth Enlow Library. Reservations for the benefit concert can be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

The spokesperson noted that last year's benefit concert was sold out.

She has been ranked in the top 10 on MP3.com's charts and was a finalist in Women of MP3.com's "Song of the Year" competition. Her song "Birth-day" won her the Silver Prize in contemporary music in the Mid-Atlantic Song Contest. Her songs draw on a lifetime of experience from having paid her dues as a traveling music vagabond performing street gigs in small towns, said a Laurel Mountain spokesperson. Singer/songwriter Dave Pahanish is from Pennsylvania. His music has been described as "a passionate collection of intimate lyrics and soulful melodies." Laurel Mountain Coffeehouse offers acoustic entertainment in a smoke-free, family environment. For more information, persons may call Monroe's at 304-329-3354.

New Production Dates Noted For Play At OTT

Performance dates for Unchanging Love, a serious drama by Romulus Linney, have been rescheduled for presentation on March 26-30 at Our Town Theatre. (In last week's issue of The Republican, the dates were announced as March 19-23.)

"We've decided to give ourselves another week for rehearsal in light of the problems we've been having with weather," said director Jane Avery.

As was noted in the article published last week, the production has nine parts for adults and one part for an older teenager, and there are three parts which require singing.

Auditions are scheduled for Friday, Jan. 31, 7-9 p.m.; Sunday, Feb. 2, 4-6 p.m.; and Monday, Feb. 3, 7-9 p.m., all at the theatre. Those who wish to audition for singing parts should try out on the Friday or Monday slots, as there will not be a musical director for the Sunday audition slot.

For more information about auditions, persons may call the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Unchanging Love is being produced by special permission from the Dramatist's Play Publishing Co., and is sponsored in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Reservations can be made by calling the theatre starting on Feb. 16.

"This guy would sound great in any venue!" said Pete Robinson of Epic Records, who is known for discovering the Dave Matthews Band.

FSU To Offer Fourth Annual Dance Retreat

Frostburg State University's Division of Performing Arts, in cooperation with the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance Inc., will offer the fourth annual Frostburg Summer Dance Retreat (FSDR), a Martha Graham Summer Intensive program. Scheduled from June 9 through 21, the retreat will be directed by founder Dr. Barry Fischer, associate professor of dance at FSU.

The Frostburg Student Dance Retreat offers a two-week intensive study with professional dancers who have performed the repertory of America's renowned dance legend, Martha Graham. Students will be challenged to explore their technical, creative, and artistic skills and talents. Rotating classes in ballet, composition, and repertory will be small to permit individualized instruction, communication, and support. The retreat will also offer make-up and costuming workshops and lectures about Martha Graham and her influence on contemporary dance.

The staff includes Fischer, Diane Gray, Stuart Hodes, Peggy Lyman, and Kenneth Topping. Fischer holds a B.S. in dance from the State University College of Brockport, an M.F.A. in dance from Florida State University, and an Ed.D. in dance from New York University. He has coordinated the Mid-Atlantic American College dance festivals in 1999 and 2001 on the FSU campus.

Gray is a graduate in dance from the Juilliard School and has taught extensively. She has been active in the Martha Graham Company in many capacities, including serving as an associate artistic director, and has been a director of the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance.

A former dance partner of Graham, Hodes has taught at the Martha Graham School since the 1950s, served as its director, and is now dean of students. He has choreographed works for many media and has written magazine articles and a book on choreography.

Lyman, a principal dancer with the Martha Graham Dance Company, is chair of the Hartt School's Dance Division at the University of Hartford and teaches at the Martha Graham Center in New York. She also restages Graham ballets for dance companies around the world.

Returning to Frostburg for a third year as an FSDR faculty member, Topping is director of the Martha Graham Center of Contemporary Dance and artistic director of the Martha Graham Dance Ensemble. He has performed as a principal dancer and continues to teach in Europe, South America, and throughout the United States.

The FSDR is open to students age 16 and over with an intermediate or advanced level of training in modern dance or ballet. An audition is not required. Students may choose a half retreat from June 9 to 14 or the full retreat from June 9-21. Dancers attend two to three classes per day Monday through Friday. Those who attend the full retreat will have the opportunity to perform in a final gala performance.

Classes will be held in FSU's contemporary Performing Arts Center and in the dance studio of the Cordts Physical Education Center, which features a Gerstung sprung floor, eight-foot mirrors, and a professional sound system. Many classes are accompanied by professional musicians.

Residential students will be housed in residence halls on the FSU campus. Each room has a microwave and mini-refrigerator. A private student lounge with a TV/VCR and Internet service will also be available. Dancers will serve as resident advisors for around-the-clock guidance and support. The housing fee includes a double-occupancy room and daily meals.

Applications and requests for registration materials are available from Fischer, who can be reached at 301-687-4730 or bfischer @frostburg.edu.

"Grandma's Poem"
by Sarah Glotfelty

The smell of red roses, the twinkle of stars they both go so far.
From the feel of fresh breeze
the butterflies fly through the high sky.
The bees are buzzing, the bears are climbing the deer are running, the chipmunks are gathering the birds are chirping and we know the woods are safe.

Hidden Benefits Discovered for Some Drugs

Adverse effects from drugs can be bothersome and dangerous. Surprisingly, however, some side effects can be beneficial. Doctors are finding unexpected benefits with some drugs, and many are prescribing them for "off-label" uses. Several new trials are now under way to evaluate the ability of celecoxib to fight different types of cancers. Botulism toxin may help facial tics and crossed eyes in addition to its other approved uses.

Sometimes, the unexpected benefits of a medicine overshadow the original or intended use. For example, when investigators had trouble getting drug samples returned from male patients in a high blood pressure study evaluating sildenafil, they quickly organized another study and the drug's most popular use was discovered. A trial for a different blood pressure drug, minoxidil, showed that it promoted hair growth. A dermatologist heard about the effect, made the medicine into a lotion, and it is now marketed as Rogaine. In the mid 1900s a physician noticed that men who took prescribed aspirin had not had any heart attacks. Today aspirin is used to prevent heart attacks, strokes, and mini-strokes.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Many times this time of year I thought it best to get out of Bittinger as fast and as far away as possible. The unrelenting winter with the cold and snow keeps me shut in my house. There really isn't any place to go around here and nothing for me around here either, except now I have to stay around for the few hours that my daughters need me here. I wish sometimes I could run away, but I don't. If I could even start my car in the terrible cold or get through the new drifts which appear every day as fast as they get clear and then reappear, it would be great. But anyway, no matter where you go you are still yourself and unchanged. That's one thing I can't cope with, myself as I am now. Hamlet once said, "Oh, to sleep, but to dream, oh that's the rub..." The worst dreams I have are about my happier times and about people who make me feel good about myself and life, only to wake up and find they disappear in the past and are unreachable. There I am in the miserable present and the worries and panic roll back on me burying me as deep as if I had fallen down outside and were buried in the snow.

I am still trying to make sense of the art of the wooly worm winter forecast on a worm with short black markings on each end and long brown in the mid-part. I guessed that might mean a couple months of bad weather, early November and early part of December, then midwinter to be fairly easy, and then maybe March will bring more winter weather. But as far as the earlier part, of course, it was way wrong, and the mid-winter — unrelentless real winter. Since mid-December we have gotten nothing but cold, windy weather and lots of snow. It does not look like it will quit any time soon. However, my old friend, Steve Schlosnagle, told me today that he found a wooly worm in his firewood pile, and it was opposite, with long brown ends and with long mid-part coal black. Since it's living in this winter I believe it knows more than mine did. If black means bad weather, we've had a long stretch of black (white-out) weather.

I don't think anything is more boring than a football game when you don't care a hoot about who will win. Alas, this is what the Super Bowl meant for me this year. I was inclined to dislike both the teams from California and Florida. Quite frankly, no show-business show is more boring than "Bigtime Halftime Shows," especially those featuring unappealing "pop stars " I much prefer a nice marching band show. I can watch almost any baseball or basketball games and enjoy them. You can call today Super Sunday if you want, but it blows my mind that people will pay hundreds of dollars for a ticket for the Super Bowl even if their team is not playing. Why? Why?

It was everything I dislike about today's American culture: the domination of big money. Why else would Americans care more about the new hot ads, which this year were not fresh or creative, and the same thing goes for the half-time show with just skimpy outfits on bimbos shaking their "booty."

What is super about the day after the Super Bowl? The fact that 6 percent of American workers regularly call in sick for work. Why? Because they drink beer like pigs. Of course, maybe a few people from Bittinger can't get to work in time since we have sub-zero temperatures and driveways choked with snow and cars unable to go anyplace. People can stay home and watch a dismal news program with no new news items. Just lots of updates about no progress with some on-going investigations. Like the husband of missing Lacy Peterson who was involved with another woman. And we can watch again the finale of the woman who ran over her cheating husband with her Mercedes, and a guess as to what the weapons inspectors have found in Iraq and if they have weapons of mass destruction. Then we watch some must-watch show, "The Bachelor" or "Bachelorettes," or a new rehash of the worst cop TV show in history, "Dragnet." We can live again a national nightmare of the baby in Texas who was trapped in a well. Yes, it is good that tragic events sometimes have happy endings.

However, since this is our winter of discontentment," to quote Charles Dickens, we are discontented in Bittinger and are sick of cold winter, snow, power outages, etc. Just sick and tired. But look at the bright side of things since there only a few days remaining in January and we will soon be in February which is a short month, which makes me more able to stretch my small monthly income through 28 days instead of 31 days. Most years winter gets its back broken in February, and of course we can look forward for a big national event, Groundhog Day. It is annoying to watch the media drag a sleeping groundhog and subject him to cast a shadow, not by the sunshine, but by the television lights. The only true test for a groundhog forecast is if you should see a real wild one pop out of his hole and be either greeted by more gray sky or else sunshine. Anyway, you can bet another six weeks of wintry weather will be in Bittinger past February 2nd. I have not seen any real spring here in Bittinger before late March or more likely in April or May. A few of the dumbest robins land here in March but drift back and forth to McHenry or Accident where the Artic wind does not blow so hard.

I am pleased to hear that the Northern High Marching Band's big trip will be to New York City instead of a cruise. I am glad that my two band members will get a chance to catch some Broadway shows, and I more likely can afford their trip without the airfare. Nowadays lots of parents are afraid for their children to go to Manhattan, but the class of 1971 of NHS big senior trip was to New York and we were totally safe. These days I think a cruise is a bigger terrorist threat than the "Big Apple." In spite of my efforts in fund-raising for the band, I am sure I can't afford to go along. Even when I lived there the only Broadway shows I could afford to go to were the ones in which I knew someone who had enough clout to score some free tickets for them, which is not the case anymore. I couldn't now skip the line to get a ticket for the taping of "Saturday Night Live." The few friends that I have still living in Manhattan do not have a spare bed in their small apartments that normal people can afford. In the good old days I was with the design staff of "Saturday Night Live" and got VIP treatment for my younger brother Barry, who was visiting me. He got to ride up in the special elevator with the cast members and the band up to the studio, plus a front-row seat to watch George Harrison and Paul Simon, who wore some custom clothes I made for him. Young Barry believed that his big sister really was a "big shot" in the "Big Apple." That was a big exaggeration, of course. I was only a small cog to some big wheel in the huge machine that is show business in New York. I was just very lucky to know some right people to get ahead as much as I did.

But as far as my life in Bittinger, it is just the same old stuff. I hardly see any birds dining at my bird feeders. They skipped out to a more sheltered place in a woods or maybe up to the Bass house, or else maybe they are hanging out with Sheila Southerly and family or any place except here in the way of the full blast of the cold wind coming off the wetlands west of my home. My row of big pines helps some, but not as much as when they were smaller, because now their branches are at least 20 feet above the ground. So the wind slips under them.

In spite of the brutal frigid weather, a trio of 12-year-old little girls braved the elements to take a spin on their cross-country skis. My Meredith joined with Emma Bass and Hannah Avis and spent a couple hours in the woods. As darkness approached I regretted that I did not give Meredith my cell phone to take along just in case of any trouble. But they got back to the Diehlman house in fine shape.

Matthew Bass played well in his junior varsity game between Northern and Southern last Friday night. He had several steals, and was the leading scorer. Good job, Matt.

Earlier today it was so cold, but now the air is getting warmer (if you can call in the 20s warm). Since it is not sub-zero, I guess that is a small improvement.

Artists are supposed to submit three fresh paintings to the Art Council Gallery on Alder Street in Oakland, so I sent two winter pictures and one nice large painting titled "Appalachian Spring." It is a part of back country between my family farm and the Eastern Continental Divide on top of Meadow Mountain. Several families of wildlife are barely visible — deer, black bears, and wood ducks.

As I look over my remaining pictures in my living room, all but one are of summer or spring or early autumn. It is hard to remember what the inspiration was for them, as it seems so very far off. But one of the new pieces in the gallery I saw hit the nail on the head, as it is of the wide snow-covered field around the Glades with just a few clumps of dead grass. It looks exactly like the subject right now. It is titled "The Glade in Deep Freeze." No sign of any open water, as even the shallow patch of water is covered with ice and snow now. It looks like solid ground, but anyone who ventured out on it would find lots of wet ground under their skis. One minute you would be gliding along and then suddenly your ski bottoms would be packed with icy sludge and you would not glide anymore. Even worse than the couple of inches of frozen ice on the bottom of your skis is if you ski into a deeper patch of water and get very wet and cold feet.

On the lighter scene in Bittinger, Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky, and Mel and Steve Presgraves, Fenwick Island, Del., returned Sunday after a week on the Royal Caribbean cruise ship Voyager of the Seas to ports in Mexico and the western Caribbean. Sally reported the trip as wonderful. It was their first cruise and one to long remember.

Sorry to report that another former Bittinger resident, Russell Klotz, died Monday evening at his home place on Klotz Road in Hoyes. He was married to the late Thelma Glotfelty Klotz. Funeral arrangements were not available at this time.

Notes from Other Places

Well, you can't get it any better than watching the Maryland Terrapins beating up the Duke Blue Devils, especially since Duke was one of two undefeated teams and the number-one team in the country during January mid-frenzy. But today, Saturday, in a sold-out home court game, Maryland showed they still deserve the title of national champion.

Even though this is almost a totally new team with some really fine freshmen replacing the older stars from last years championship team, they came out on top. Steve Francis already made his mark in the NBA. Duke is and was so dominating for so long that when you beat them it is like winning another championship.

I scared my daughter this afternoon when with only about 15 minutes to play and with a lead of 15 I did something we used to do with our excellent early 1970s team. When they put a game away, the student body used to sing "Amen, Amen, Amen," etc. I can't remember anytime we did it and eventually lost the game. But my girls were sure I would jinx the Terps. However, we had this game on ice and the final score was 87 to 72. Wow! It was just as good as in the good old days when we slipped by North Carolina or North Carolina State. In those days Duke was the least of our problems with the North Carolina teams. The bad thing was we had to go to "Tobacco Road" to play on their home court. The combination of some excellent teams, rabid hoop fans, and sometimes partial referees were just too much for the Terps. It was different when they had to face us in the old Cole Field House.

It was hard to take time out of our busy schedule (going to class, studying, and, in my case, working in the theatre doing the set for the main stage productions). I had worked all nights for weeks and I got tried by fire in my first semester of my freshman year by getting stuck with the job of head of the paint crew on my first backstage experience. My wonderful professor and the set designer handed me a small, beautiful watercolor painting and I had to direct a handful of inexperienced freshmen to recreate it on a huge piece of canvas, using only bins of dry pigments. I had mixed those powders to exactly match the dry of the little renderings. It is a long way from dry pigment to wet paint. It was not I who applied the paint, and I was supposed to get untalented rookies to do exactly the right thing. I seldom got the chance to get my hand on paint brushes, with hundreds of colors to mix and mass production to keep all those ready hands to cover hundreds of square feet of canvas. I only painted some difficult detail or else repaired a mistake. I don't think I ever was under that kind of pressure. The closest thing was when I was directed to cut a big sheet of two-hundred dollar silk velvet using a pattern I made.

I know I was very grateful to my wonderful teacher 20 years before who forced me to work so hard that I learned to almost believe "I can do just about anything." The one thing in my college days I couldn't do was to get an "A" from my dear professor Chuck Vaughn in any class I had him for because he always believed I could do better than I did, and anything but excellent from me would only deserve a B or B+, in spite of the fact that I was the teacher's pet. But he did the very best for me. In fact, every day when I am working hard on a painting, I can hear his voice: "Joan, look at those colors in the sky; are they right? You can do better than that. More dull pink should do the job."

Even though he is dead and I am sure in Heaven, he still is with me and nagging me to do better, better. Of course, he was always right and I did need some dull pink in that sky. I faced a tough challenge this week trying to copy a totally awesome painting I did of pine branches under a heavy load of snow. It is so good and I can't stand to let it go to display, and hopefully it will go to a new good home. But to try to duplicate it for my personal collection seems impossible. It was easy to get the general ideas down cold, but whatever makes the original a masterpiece was hard to repeat. I don't want a second-class copy. I just want that masterpiece for myself. But I can't afford to keep my best since they do sell fast for Garrett County standard high prices.

I do have two top-class pictures in my living room, but I can't let them go for anything but a big chunk of change, which is unlikely around here. I'd like to find a way to get them into a top gallery in a big city market (let's face it, that means Manhattan, where a good painting is a bargain for a thousand dollars). But right now, three of my best pictures can stay with me until someone comes along with a fat checkbook. Then I would know they would go to a place where they will be truly appreciated, as much as I appreciate a full tank of heating oil or a new carpet to replace the horrible old one I walk on every day. The Windrush Gallery in Friendsville has recently started to present some art on the Internet, so maybe I will have an outlet soon for some of my painting. Soon, I hope.

I can live with my second-class works since that is all I can afford. But they do scream at me in the voice of my college teacher, Chuck Vaughn, "That's not the best possible work you can do," and so I have to ask myself, "What can I do to make that perfect?" Just another thing to worry about.

But boy, that was way off the original trend I wrote about, of how we used to get up at the crack of dawn to line up outside on cold winter mornings to get a ticket for a big home game. Then we would get lots of time to sing the "Amen" chorus. The current student body does not do it now. We hope they will start to do it soon. I tried to call the local Terps' fans to learn whether they sang it today, but all their phones were busy. The only fan I talked to was my sister, Carol Bass, when her daughter called my daughter, but the Bass family regrettably did not sing the "Amen" chorus. They were too busy screaming and yelling, according to Carol. I don't know what more could take out the opposite team than a full house singing "Amen" or screaming and yelling. If they know that we only use that "Amen" chorus when the game is being wrapped up for us, it must give them a sinking feeling in the gut. This Duke team was the tenth #1 team to fall to the Terps. Amen, Amen, Amen.

We brought up a big crowd of loyal fans in Bittinger. Just among my immediate family there are at least a dozen new fans: the Glotfelty, Bass and Sussman kids, plus one Housley kid, and maybe a Poholsky kid, plus over in the Accident area you can count on another three fans, the Herpel triplets, who round out quite a bunch of Terp fans.

It was very good to hear on ESPN news that "there was only one team that could claim they are undefeated." Now there are none. One of my favorite authors is Agatha Christie, and the title of one of her books is And Then There Were None. Amen.

Family members recently helping Jim Glotfelty celebrate his 72nd birthday with dinner at his home were Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Tom Glotfelty, Detroit; Tim Glotfelty, McHenry; Dwaine, Lisa, Adam and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; and Ida Reckner. Taylor Glotfelty, West Virginia University, and friend were also birthday visitors. Jim and his wife Donna also had dinner in Morgantown Sunday in celebration of Jim's birthday.

Rams Top Huskies, Avenge Earlier Loss To Wildcats

It was a satisfying week on the court for the Southern High School boys' varsity, as the Rams topped county rival Northern, 57-42, on the Huskies' floor Friday, and then avenged an earlier loss to Westmar by defeating the Wildcats in a defensive battle in Oakland on Tuesday, 43-32.

The pair of Western Maryland Interscholastic League victories gave the Rams an overall record of 11-2 and a WMIL mark of 5-1. They will meet the Huskies again this Friday at home.

The outcome of last Friday's game against the Huskies was in little doubt after the first quarter of action, as the Rams jumped out to an 18-6 lead by the end of the period. They upped their advantage to 16 points by halftime, 33-17, and were ahead by 19 going into the final stanza.

Senior forward Dennis Tressler hit 10 field goals and finished with a game-high 23 points, while senior guard A.J. Bender also reached double figures with 12 points.

The Huskies, who dropped to 6-7 with the loss, were paced in scoring by Aaron Mitchell, who finished with 12 points. Andrew Frantz and Matt Younkin just missed double figures with nine points apiece.

Strong defensive play by Southern's Matt Stephens limited the Huskies' leading scorer, Jason Rice, to just five points.

SOUTHERN (57)
A.J. Bender 5 2-2 12, Cory Bosley 4 0-0 8, Matt Stephens 2 0-0 4, Dennis Tressler 10 3-6 23, Nathan Fitzwater 3 2-4 8, Corey Tressler 1 0-0 2. Totals 25 7-12 57.
NORTHERN (42)
Aaron Mitchell 6 0-1 12, Andrew Frantz 4 1-2 9, Landon Southerly 1 0-0 2, Jason Rice 2 0-0 5, Matt Younkin 4 1-4 9, Billy Jones 1 0-0 3, Derrell Smith 1 0-0 2, Eric Johnson 0 0-2 0. Totals 19 2-9 42.

Three-point goals - Southern 0, Northern 2 (Jones 1, Rice 1). Total fouls - Southern 10, Northern 15. Fouled out - Younkin (Northern).

Northern	6	17	27	42

The night was not a total loss for Husky fans, however, as their jayvee squad won the preliminary game, 39-36. Matt Bass finished with 10 points to lead the Huskies, while Brad Reese hit a game-high 12 points for the Rams.

Tuesday night's low-scoring contest with Westmar was close throughout the first three quarters, but the Rams out-scored the Wildcats in the final period by a 21-9 margin to record the 11-point victory.

Southern led 8-6 at the end of the first quarter, as neither team had a lot of success hitting the basket. The drought continued through the second period, which ended with the Rams on top, 13-10. The Wildcats won the third quarter and led by one, 23-22, going into the final period.

Tressler, who led Southern with 13 points and nine rebounds, combined with Stephens in the fourth quarter for 10 points. The Rams also took advantage of their free-throw opportunities down the stretch, hitting five of six in the final period.

The best three-point shooter of the game was Westmar's Jason Lee, who finished with four long-range shots and a game-high 14 points.

Stephens provided yet another outstanding defensive effort, holding Westmar's Bobby Alkire to just five points.

The Wildcats, who recorded a 44-43 win over the Rams in Lonaconing on January 14, dropped to 8-6 overall with the loss.

The Southern junior varsity rolled to a 39-15 victory in the first game, with Andrew VanBogelen leading the Rams with 18 points.

After this Friday's rematch with the Northern Huskies, which will tip off at 7:30 p.m. (junior varsity at 6 p.m.), the Rams will travel to Beall next Tuesday.

RAMS TOO MUCH FOR HUSKIES — The area's #1 ranked varsity boys' team, the Southern High School Rams, proved to be too strong for the home-standing Northern Huskies last Friday night, as the Rams rolled to a 57-42 victory. Attempting to penetrate the lane in the photo above is Northern's Aaron Mitchell, who led the Huskies in scoring with 12 points. Pictured from left are Southern's Cory Bosley and Dennis Tressler, Billy Jones of Northern, and Nathan Fitzwater of Southern. Going up for two of his game-high 23 points for the Rams in the photo at right is Dennis Tressler. Also identifiable are Northern's Mitchell, left, and Jason Rice, right. See story for details. ConDoerr Still Leads Mt. Top Team Standings

Sporting a 9-1 record, the Mountain Top Basketball League team sponsored by ConDoerr is in sole possession of first place in the league; however, not too far behind are Skiles and Smiley's with respective records of 9-3 and 9-4.

In action on Sunday, ConDoerr topped Automotive Machine, 67-57; Plaza Hobby recorded a 70-60 win over a short-handed Skiles squad; Smiley's handed Midas an 81-68 defeat; and Scott Ford was hammered by 84 Lumber, 80-46.

Ronald Rhodes poured in 25 points to lead ConDoerr to its win over Automotive Machine, although the score was knotted at 35-35 at halftime. Ricky Reams and Doug Copeland paced Automotive Machine with 15 and 13 points. Dennis Gibson also reached double figures for ConDoerr with an 11-point effort.

Hot three-point shooting in the first half by Brett Rice, coupled with good free-throw shooting by the entire team, led Plaza Hobby to its win over Skiles. Rice hit five three-pointers in the first half and finished with a game-high 24 points. Ryan White went 6-for-6 and Ryan Adams was 4-for-4 at the line in the final quarter to keep Skiles at bay. White finished with 14 points and Mike Fazenbaker hit 13 for the winners.

Four of the five Skiles team members finished with double figures, as Nathan Long netted 20, Jimmy Yoder, 16, Justin Stephens, 12, and Matt Durant, 10.

Jason Brenneman ripped the nets for 29 points for Smiley's in a win over Midas, while Oliver Jones, Jonathan Price, and Joe Refosco contributed 14, 11, and 10 points, respectively. Adam Daskivich finished with 25 points for Midas, with all but two of those scored in the second half. C.J. Getson and Joey DiSimone also reached double figures for Midas with 15 and 12 points, respectively.

Without the services of Chad Reese, Scott Ford had no answer for the inside power of 84 Lumber's Travis Bohrer, who scored 26 points. Teammate Steve Opferman recorded 20, Greg Mortimer scored 15, and Jason Sweitzer netted 11. Pacing Scott Ford were Shaun Myers with 15 points and Nate Haskiell with 13.

Games slated for this Sunday will pit ConDoerr vs. Skiles at 1 p.m., Automotive Machine vs. Smiley's at 2 p.m., Midas vs. Automated Packing at 3 p.m., and Plaza Hobby vs. Scott Ford at 4 p.m. Respective scorekeepers are: Smiley's, ConDoerr, Plaza Hobby, and Automated Packing.

A league official noted that teams which fail to send scorekeepers for their allotted game will forfeit their last win.

Northern Falls To Tough SHS, Alco Squads On Home Floor

The boys' varsity basketball team of Northern High School dropped a pair this week to two of the best teams in the region, as the Huskies lost to Southern Friday by a 57-42 score (see SHS account), and a Monday night battle with Allegany by a 63-52 margin.

NHS turned in a strong showing against the visiting Campers, rallying form an 18-12 first-quarter deficit to cut the margin to just a bucket at the half, 35-33. Northern's run continued through the third stanza, and as the fourth quarter opened, the Huskies were on top 45-43; however, a 20-8 Alco flurry over the final stanza sank the Huskies' hopes.

Senior forward Aaron Mitchell paced Northern with 18 points, including four three-pointers, and junior guard Jason Rice also netted four treys on his way to 12 points. Aaron Laffey's 19 points for the Campers led all scorers.

NHS's junior varsity squad took it on the chin in a 48-28 defeat. Chris Speicher turned in a fine showing despite the losing effort, as he accounted for 17 Husky points.

Rams Breeze By Tornado; Eastern Road Swing Ahead

The Southern High School girls' basketball team blew the host Keyser Golden Tornado squad off the court Monday night with a convincing 59-34 win. SHS is poised to take its 10-2 record and fast-breaking style of play to the Washington, D.C., area this weekend for two big tests against teams from larger schools.

The Keyser match-up was such in word only, as the Rams romped to a 22-6 first-quarter lead on their way to a 37-12 halftime advantage. The game was pocketed by the opening of the fourth quarter, as SHS was up 55-22.

Guard Robbin Gregg paced the Rams' effort with 24 points, four assists, and four steals. The junior's scoring rampage featured a trio of three-point buckets. Fellow backcourt speedster Justine Pagenhardt had 12 points and five rebounds, and forward Becca Flanagan powered her way to 11 points. Keyser's Katie Leatherman led the hosts with 10 points.

Earlier, Southern took a hard-fought junior varsity contest by a 30-26 margin. Kendra McLaughlin netted nine Ram points, while Casey Sprouse had seven.

The Rams travel to the D.C. metropolitan area to take on St. Mary's Friday, and play at Century Saturday. They return home to take on Allegany Monday and Beall Wednesday. The two Oakland contests are both slated for live radio coverage on 92.3 The Train, with pre-game coverage that will get under way at 7:15 p.m.

Huskies' Lead Evaporates As Alco Rebounds For Big Win

The slide continues for Northern High School's girls' basketball team, which dropped its fifth straight outing Monday night in a 53-39 loss to host Allegany. The defeat, which leaves the Huskies with a 6-8 record (after a 6-3 start), came after Northern had battled to a one-point halftime lead over the powerful Campers.

After Alco started the contest by taking a slim 12-10 first-quarter lead, NHS fought back to go up 20-19 at the half. The Campers came out firing away during the third quarter, and a 19-8 Alco run over the stanza gave the hosts a 38-28 lead as the final quarter opened.

Northern's Amanda Frantz led the Husky effort with 18 points, and Lyndsi Butler contributed nine. Allegany's Bethany Sindy led all scorers with a 19-point tally that featured a 15-point second half flurry.

Northern committed 17 fouls to Alco's 11, and the Campers connected on 18 of 27 free-throw attempts. The Huskies went to the foul line a paltry five times, and hit twice.

The junior varsity Husky squad dropped its contest by a 24-17 margin. Sarah Stewart scored seven NHS points, and Christine Brant paced Alco with 12.

NHS hosts Meyersdale tonight at 7:30 p.m. (6 p.m. jayvee start) before visiting Bishop Walsh for a Saturday afternoon match-up. The Huskies visit Beall Monday evening.

Lakers Stumble At Chesapeake, Then Top Southern, Germantown

After stumbling to Chesapeake on Friday at Wye Mills, 89-84, the Garrett College men's basketball team bounced back to record an 82-72 victory over the College of Southern Maryland at LaPlata on Saturday, and then crushed host Montgomery-Germantown last night, 86-85 to give them a 13-6 overall record and a 6-5 mark in Maryland JUCO competition.

Despite the eventual loss to Chesapeake, the Lakers staged an impressive rally against the Skipjacks, as they trailed by 15 points at halftime, but came back to cut the home team's lead to just one, 78-77, with about three minutes left. They were down 87-84 with under a minute to play, and had three attempts in the final 10 seconds to hit a three-pointer and send the game into overtime, but they missed all three tries.

Antuon Townsend paced the Lakers' scoring effort with 21 points, with five of his six field goals coming from three-point range. Kevin Essex, Larry Blocker, and Rashaun Copeland also reached double figures with 16, 15, and 14 points, respectively.

Hitting a game-high 22 points for the Skipjacks was Jermaine Saunders, while Chijioke Anyanwo was right behind with 20 and Cyril Djoukeng netted 19. Jermaine Logan chipped in with 10 points.

Saturday's game with the College of Southern Maryland was almost the reverse situation, as the Lakers held a 20-point lead midway through the second half, but then went cold and allowed the host team to rally to within four points.

Blocker responded for the Lakers by blocking two straight shots by Southern's Jacob Saffran with about three minutes to play. Blocker then took a feed from Essex underneath and scored to halt the rally.

Blocker, a freshman who is back on the Laker squad after academic suspension, recorded his second double-double in a row, finishing with 21 points and 16 rebounds, plus five blocks.

Blocker was one of five Lakers who finished in double figures. Townsend netted 14, Rashard Ellis scored 13, and Copeland and James Jones each finished with 11. Essex, who scored nine points, dished out nine assists and had seven rebounds, while Jones also pulled down seven boards.

For the game, the Lakers hit an impressive 67% of their two-point shots.

The Lakers were without the services of sophomore center Lee Parris, who was sidelined with a strained abdominal muscle.

Leading Southern Maryland in scoring was J. Hawkins with 22 points, while Saffran finished with 11. B. Payne pulled down seven rebounds and Saffran grabbed six.

It was a balanced effort by Garrett last night at Montgomery-Germantown, as five Lakers finished in double figures. The team had great success from three-point range, hitting 10 long-range buckets.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad took control of the contest in the opening minutes and never looked back, as they held a commanding 46-25 advantage at intermission.

Alvin Jones emerged as the top scorer of the evening for Garrett, as he finished with 16 points, a dozen of which were scored on four three-pointers. Rashaun Copeland hit three long-range shots and finished with 13 points, followed by Larry Blocker with 12 points and eight rebounds, Tristan Largent with 11 points, and Lee Parris with 10.

Kevin Essex provided a strong all-around effort, finishing with eight points, eight rebounds, and six assists.

"It was nice to have everyone healthy again," Gibson said. "But we are going to have step things up if we hope to have success in the playoffs."

The leading scorer for Germantown was Ricardo Fisher, who hit a game-high 22 points. Jose Navarro and Skyler Tarpley also reached double figures with 13 and 11 points, respectively.

The Lakers are scheduled to go back on the road and play at Hagerstown CC on Saturday. They will travel to CCBC in Catonsville next Wednesday.

GC Downs Harford, Allegany, Anne Arundel; Win Streak At 5

The Garrett College women's basketball team took its record to an excellent 9-3 with three victories this week, two of which came on the road as part of the grueling travel schedule the Lakers are enmeshed in for the second half of their season. GC throttled homecourt Harford with a season-high point tally Saturday, 89-72, took a gritty 81-79 overtime victory at Allegany College Monday, and annihilated Anne Arundel last night in McHenry by a 69-40 margin.

The Lakers have won their last five games, and seven of their last eight outings. The streak is providing some vital momentum, for Garrett is slated to play all but one of its remaining nine regular season games on the road.

GC was actually down by one, 36-35, at the halftime intermission of the Harford contest, but exploded for a 54-36 second stanza that shocked the host crowd into a stunned silence. As in the past, Garrett's defense rose to the occasion to spark the win. "It was another game where we played good defense, especially in the second half," Laker coach Steve Willison commented. "It was a good game for us."

Garrett forward LaSha Anderson turned in a "Jordan-esque" performance on both ends of the floor as she continued to assert her standing as one of the best cagers on the JUCO circuit. The freshman shredded the nets for 31 points, ripped down nine rebounds, dished out three assists, and snagged a pair of steals.

Anderson's heroics were aided by a fine team effort, as Laker teammate Angel Kendall netted 13 points, Charlena Reeves recorded 12, and Carrie Pardue and Tiffany McFarland hit for 10 points apiece. Freshman guard LaTonya Crowder harassed the hosts as she accumulated four rebounds, GARRETT STREAKS TO FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN — The wins just keep rolling up for the Garrett College women's basketball team, as the streaking Lakers took three outings this week to boost their win string to five. Last night's 29-point home court victory over Anne Arundel came as freshman guard Natasha Robinson led the way with 14 points on six field goals and two free throws. Robinson (#15) is pictured above in heavy traffic as she sinks a bucket from short range, with fellow Lakers Kristen Maynard (#30), Angel Kendall (#10), and Amber Stewart (#11, a former Southern High standout athlete) zoom into rebounding range. Sophomore Carrie Pardue (#23) is shown below working the perimeter, as classmate Maynard posts up near the top of the key. Pardue grabbed eight rebounds in the 69-40 Garrett romp, which upped the Lakers' record to 9-3. Photos by John McEwen.

Ram Grapplers Top Indians, Mohigans; Then Fall To Beall

The wrestling team of Southern High School defeated both Berkeley Springs and Morgantown in a tri-match hosted by the Rams on Monday.

The Rams were dominated by visiting Beall last night, 54-12, leaving Southern with a 8-2 dual meet record.

The Southern grapplers crushed Berkeley Springs, 61-16, and topped Morgantown, 45-27, on Monday.

Winning via decisions were Jason Weeks in the 152-pound bout and Anthony Oliverio in the heavyweight division, while Greg Graham (103), Jeff Gregory (119), Nathan Sines (130), Jeremy Gregory (135), Chris Hayhurst (145), and Justin Fitzwater (215) were all awarded forfeits.

Gaining pins for the Indians were Matt Mason (160) and Josh Clark (189).

Against the Mohigans of Morgantown, the Rams dropped the first five matches, but rallied to win eight of the final nine to secure the team victory.

Jeremy Gregory, Wildesen, Fitzwater, and Chris Bennett (215) were pin winners for Southern, while Hayhurst won on points.

Receiving forfeits were Weeks, Geoff Tressler (171), and Oliverio.

Mohigans garnering pins were Daniel Shishler (119) and J.R. Downes (160).

In the match against Beall last night, the only individual victors for the Rams were Weeks, who won by pin in the 152-pound class, and Wildesen (140) and Hayhurst (145) by decision.

Southern also participated in the Musselman Invitational Tournament on Saturday and placed seventh among 11 teams.

Geoff Tressler led the Rams to 102 team points by finishing second in the 171-pound class, while Matt Ford placed third in the 112-pound division.

Finishing fourth for the Rams were Jeff Gregory, Mike Steyer, Scott Wildesen, and Chris Hayhurst.

Winning the team title was Warren Count (Va.).

The Rams will try to avenge an earlier loss to host Northern next Thursday night.

Northern Matmen Stung By Hornets, Then Cage Wildcats

The Northern High School wrestling team was edged by host Hyndman Tuesday evening at Berlin, 39-31, and then came back with vengeance last night to flatten visiting Westmar, 65-18.

Hornets who recorded pins were Brooks Emerick (112), Jake Snyder (119), Marcus Phennicie (135), and Cody Clites (215).

Last night's match against Westmar did not last long, as 10 of the 14 matches were decided by pinfalls, and three others were declared forfeits.

Those earning pins for Northern included: Casey Kamp in the 103-pound class, Mitchell Guard at 130 pounds, Danny Ganoe at 135 pounds, Michael Guard in the 140-pound bout, Darric Kamp in the 152-pound division, Jordan Brenneman at 160 pounds, and Andy Sebold in the 171-pound class. four steals, and four assists.

Kristin Jasper's 17 points led Harford.

Garrett showed its discipline on both ends of the floor by committing just 16 fouls to Harford's 25 infractions.

The Lakers had to regroup Monday night after blowing a big lead before a raucous Allegany crowd. The Trojans had stormed back from a 29-23 halftime deficit and a 15-point disadvantage with just five minutes to play to knot the score at 72-all at the end of regulation. GC went on to claim the victory by a slim two-point margin with a 9-7 tally in the overtime period.

Anderson put on another show, sinking 12 field goals and six of seven foul shots to tally 30 points, good for game-high honors she shared with the Trojans' Julie Inge. The Garrett guard also recorded 11 rebounds and two steals. McFarland had a double-double of 14 points and 10 rebounds, and Kendall netted 11 points, six assists, and a pair of steals.

Allegany's firepower was mainly limited to three players, Inge, Ashley Gale, who hit for 27 points, and Amanda Clites, who had 14. The Trojan trio accounted for 71 of AC's 79 points.

It was freshman guard Natasha Robinson's turn last night to step up and lead the Lakers to their 29-point demolition of visiting Anne Arundel. Another Martinsburg, W.Va., native (as is Anderson), Robinson scored 14 points to pace a well-balanced offensive effort.

Garrett had jumped out to a 33-19 halftime lead, and kept rolling from there. The Lakers' deft hands committed just eight fouls, giving Anne Arundel just four opportunities from the free-throw line.

Robinson's scoring work was aided by McFarland's 13 points, 11 from Kendall, and 10 points scored by Anderson. Kendall and Pardue each yanked down eight rebounds, and the 5-6 Crowder was a gadfly again as she snagged four steals, dished out four assists, and grabbed three rebounds.

Kayla Bristol's 23 points for the visitors led all scorers.

The Lakers are slated to travel this week for a Saturday sojourn to Takoma Park, a Monday battle at Butler, and a Wednesday road trip to Rockville.

LOCAL SKIER IS SUPERB ON COLLEGE SLOPES — Garrett County native Beau Gibson, captain of the University of Massachusetts ski team, is shown on his way to taking the giant slalom two weeks ago during the Minutemen's first home race on their Charlemont slopes. Gibson was a "minute-and-a-half man" as he sliced to a 1:32:96 first-place finish. This past weekend Gibson finished second in both the giant slalom and the slalom events at the Plymouth State Carnival in Waterville, N.H., with times of 2:06.00 and 1:29.66, respectively. The U, Mass. junior is the son of Jim and Cathy Gibson of Oakland.

Bill Introduced To Make Hunters Cover Dead Deer

by Kristin Sette and Sarah Hoye
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland deer hunters may soon have to camouflage their deer carcasses — or risk paying a $100 fine. If two state lawmakers have their way — and out of respect for the animals and passing motorists — sportsmen will no longer be able to haul dead deer without covering them up.

"All this bill says is, put your tailgate up if you have a deer in the back of your pickup," said Delegate Kenneth D. Schisler, R-Talbot. "Just cover it up so you don't have to look at a deer with its tongue hanging out."

The bill, introduced Friday, is not meant to upset or inconvenience sportsmen, said Schisler, an avid hunter. Rather, it comes from a similar mandate in Colorado.

"One of the ways we can avoid conflicts is just to be respectful of non-hunters," Schisler said. "I'm hopeful that police are not going to be going around writing too many tickets."

The point is to make those who transport dead deer sensitive to other motorists' concerns, added Delegate K. Bennett Bozman, D-Worcester, the bill's co-sponsor.

"You see [deer] running down the highway fastened on top of a car," Bozman said. "If people can't stand the sight of a bloody animal ... I feel it is appropriate."

Catching wind of a possible dead-deer-cover-up law, sportsmen and animal advocates were wary.

While lawmakers contend they drafted the legislation with non-hunters in mind, the bill didn't make Ann Selnick, spokeswoman for Animal Advocates of Howard County, feel any better.

"Of course most people would like to have ourselves and our children spared the bloody end result of the so-called sport of hunting," Selnick said. "We would like to see efforts focused on humane methods of deer control. If legislators have their way we can soon look forward to seeing black bears thrown across the hoods of cars."

And for Allan Ellis of Baltimore, publisher of the Maryland Deer Hunting Guide, the bill seems almost pointless.

"I don't necessarily agree with displaying your trophy on your car ... from a sanitary standpoint," Ellis said. "(But) we don't need regulations. It's common sense."

One hunter agrees covering up dead deer is a good idea, but he's not so sure requiring it with a law and a fine is.

"[The deer] should be hidden so you don't irritate others ... I guess out of respect," said Mark Morris of Crofton, who hunts on the Eastern Shore. "I think [passing a law] is a waste of time, though. They can find better things to do than regulate how a deer gets transported."

Requiring hunters to cover dead deer is a step in the right direction, said Stephanie Boyles, wildlife biologist for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

"Certainly this shows more respect for the animal that was killed," Boyles said. "I have never heard of this and I really do hope that this becomes a trend. To display the animal as a trophy is insane. It's just so disrespectful."

Four-Wheel Drive Trail Ride Slated In State Forest

A four-wheel drive trail ride has been slated for Saturday, Feb. 15, on the Negro Mountain Trail in the Savage River State Forest by the Maryland DNR State Forest and Park Service and the Baltimore 4-Wheelers, 4-Wheel Drive Club. Participants should call to receive further information on the meeting time and location, and to make the required reservations.

The trail ride will be mild to moderate, but four-wheel drive is required, and no ATVs will be allowed on the trail. Tow hooks and skid plates are recommended. Participants may want to bring a tire gauge, warm clothes, and a CB radio.

This all-day event is family oriented, and no alcohol will be permitted. Participants should dress appropriately and bring lunch. Spaces are limited to 12 vehicles, so persons interested in participating should call 301-895-5759 or 301-746-8359 to register.

Educators. "Parents with older children will be thrilled if it succeeds."

But one athletic director fears the bill might increase bickering over playing time.

In Howard County, where 2 percent of the students are home-schooled, sports coordinator Don Disney feared the biggest impact will be with regard to who plays and who doesn't, even though the bill intends to give preference to the public school's students.

"Either way, someone's going to be disappointed," Disney said, while the teams won't improve. "As to whether we'll have more teams in the Top-10, I see no impact whatsoever," he said, if it passes.

The bill has been assigned to the Ways and Means Committee and no hearing has yet been set.

part of a hunting season. FSU's Barry, who had opposed the hunting recommendation, did vote in favor of exploring a bow season for the future, saying it may be needed someday to manage bear numbers in or around more remote locations where residents may be having trouble with nuisance bears.

DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service biologists Harry Spiker and Steve Bittner had earlier told the task force that hunting has proved to be an effective population management strategy in nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Steve Huettner, president of the Maryland Sportsmen's Association, commented that a lottery for bear hunting permits could fill the compensation fund, said Huettner, and pay for other bear management activities, such as research and education.

The hunting recommendation will be part of the group's final report, which will be completed during an upcoming task force meeting of Thursday, Feb. 27, at Rocky Gap State Park. The finalized report will be forwarded to new DNR secretary C. Ronald Franks for his consideration.

HELPING THOSE IN NEED – Chelsea Wiltison, 8, recently had 11 inches of her hair cut off and sent it to Locks of Love, a not-for-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children under the age of 18 with medical hair loss. Children comprise over 80 percent of the donors, making this a charity where children have the opportunity to help other children. At the right, Jennifer Paugh of Perfection Plus cuts off the 11 inches. A picture of Chelsea's hair before the cut is seen in the inset photo. In the left photo, Chelsea proudly shows her donation. She is a triplet of Brenda and Rick Livengood, Oakland, and Chris Wiltison, Swanton. See story for more details.

Locks Of Love Receives Two Local Donations

Chelsea Wiltison, 8, Oakland, and Kendra Durst, 19, Aurora, W.Va., recently had a total of 21 inches cut off their hair and donated it to Locks of Love, which is a not-for-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children under the age of 18 with medical hair loss. These custom-fitted hair prosthetics are provided free of charge or on a sliding scale to children whose families meet the Locks of Love board of directors' guidelines.

Chelsea had her locks removed by Jennifer Paugh at Perfection Plus, Oakland. A few days later, Kendra arrived for her scheduled appointment, and the hairdressers told her Chelsea's story. So Kendra decided to do the same.

Donors provide the hair, volunteers staff the office, and the manufacturer hand-assembles each piece, which requires approximately four months.

The organization, which began in 1997, has helped over 850 children since its first year of operation. Thousands of bundles of donated hair arrive from around the country as a result of national publicity that Locks of Love received in newspapers, magazines and television programs.

Most donors mail a note and a photo with their bundle of hair. Children comprise over 80 percent of the donors, making this a charity where children have the opportunity to help other children.

Locks of Love provides its recipients with a custom, vacuum-fitted hairpiece made entirely from donated human hair. The vacuum fit is designed for children who have experienced a total loss of scalp hair and does not require the use of tape or glue. Most of the applicants suffer from an autoimmune condition called alopecia areata, which there is no known cause or cure. Others have suffered severe burns or endured radiation treatment to the brain stem, in addition to many other dermatological conditions that result in permanent hair loss.

Donated hair is evaluated for its usefulness according to the following guidelines: the donated hair must be at least 10 inches (preferably 12") in length; it must be bundled in a pony tail or braid; and it must be free of hair damaged by chemical processing.

The hair must be clean and dry, placed in a plastic bag, and mailed in a padded envelope to: Locks of Love 2925 10th Avenue N., Suite 102, Lake Worth, FL 33461.

Monetary donations to Locks of Love are tax deductible. Donated hair that is not suitable for use in children's hairpieces may be sold at fair market value to offset the cost of manufacturing.

Chelsea, Hannah, and Brittney are triplets of Brenda and Rick Livengood, Oakland, and Chris Wiltison, Swanton. They also have a younger sister, Hayley Livengood.

Kendra is a pre-elementary education major at West Virginia University, Morgantown, W.Va.

A GOOD IDEA – Kendra Durst, 19, Aurora, W.Va., a pre-elementary education student at West Virginia University, Morgantown, W.Va., also had 10 inches of her hair cut off for a donation to Locks of Love. She had a scheduled appointment at Perfection Plus when the hairdressers told her about how Chelsea Wiltison had recently donated her hair, so Kendra decided to do the same. Locks of Love provides its recipients with a custom, vacuum-fitted hairpiece made entirely from donated human hair. The vacuum fit is designed for children who have experienced a total loss of scalp hair and does not require the use of tape or glue. At the above left, Jennifer Paugh cuts Kendra's hair as Cathy O'Neil, owner of Perfection Plus, looks on. At the right, Kendra proudly displays her new look and her donation. See story for more details about Locks of Love.

Cancer Society Makes 24-Hour Service Available

The American Cancer Society (ACS) has unveiled a new 24-hour toll-free number that makes trained cancer information specialists available who can provide information on a wide variety of cancer-related topics. The number, 1-800-ACS-2345, is accessible from anywhere in the United States.

The ACS also sponsors an on-line service available through its Web site (www.cancer.org), that can put users in touch with such specialists at any time of day or night. Web site users can explore a detailed guide that covers everything from prevention methods to treatment options. After completing a short registration process, users who sign in will have the opportunity to ask questions, join support communities, and share stories with other registered members of the public through on-line message boards.

The ACS Web site also offers current cancer-related news since it offers on-line media information and various links to scholarly medical publications. Information on how to make donations, take part in the annual Relay for Life, or volunteer in one of a variety of ACS programs is also available on the site.

"The American Cancer Society is now more accessible than ever," a spokesperson said. "We can be reached any day, anytime, with everything from important exercise and nutrition updates to survivor network information. One phone call or one Internet visit is an easy way to find out about information resources available in personal communities and local events that help support the ACS."

Education Dept. Publishes New Parent Booklet

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) is mailing to schools nearly 650,000 copies of A Parent's Guide to Achievement Matters Most, a new booklet for parents that encourages their involvement in schools and explains two statewide testing programs, a new voluntary statewide curriculum, and accountability measures. The booklet also introduces parents to the goals of Achievement Matters Most — Maryland's new plan for preK-12 public education.

Mailing began last week and will continue through mid-February. All Maryland public elementary and middle schools should receive enough copies of A Parent's Guide to Achievement Matters Most for all parents and teachers of students in grades K-8. High schools will be included in a separate mailing. The booklet is available now on the Web at www.marylandpublicschools.org. From the left-hand menu, users should click on "Assessment" and then "Maryland School Assessment." The direct URL is www.marylandpublicschools.org/pdf_files/AParentsGuide2002_-2003.pdf. In the near future, foreign-language translations of the booklet will be posted on the Web.

Elementary and middle school principals are urged to distribute the publication as soon as they receive copies, preferably before the Maryland School Assessment administration, which will be held March 3-6. Principals also are encouraged to discuss the information in A Parent 's Guide to Achievement Matters Most with teachers at faculty meetings and with parents during future parent-teacher conferences and back-to-school nights.

Highlights of the booklet include tips for encouraging student achievement and getting involved in schools, as well as sample test questions and answers from the Maryland School Assessment (a new test that replaces the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program) and the Maryland High School Assessments (a series of exams high school students must take in English, algebra/data analysis, geometry, biology, and government).

To solicit parents' feedback on this booklet, the department included a survey and encourages parents to complete and return it via mail or fax.

Thank You All!

Another successful year for The Republican newspaper's Warm the Children effort has come to a close. The donations flowed in, with well over $26,000 put in the bank. With the help of teachers and staff of Garrett County's schools, as well as the Dept. of Social Services, we were able to find approximately 250 children in need. Our many volunteers took these youngsters shopping at Wal-Mart and helped them choose an average of $100 worth (each) of new, warm, winter clothing and footwear. Special thanks go to Dora Hanlin, our DSS liaison and trouble-shooter; Linda Thomas and Sheila Canan, the volunteer coordinators; Lisa Broadwater, the Grantsville/LaVale coordinator; Bobby Andersen and Bobbie Henderson, who headed up the many Civic Club of Oakland volunteer shoppers; First United Bank & Trust, where the no-fee savings account is kept; the helpful staff members of the Wal-Mart stores in both Oakland and LaVale; and the hundreds of donors listed on this page today. Thanks, also, to the willing volunteers who took the time to go shopping with the kids and parents. For the second year, we were provided with enough donated funds to assist the Rotary Club in purchasing clothing for children benefiting from that organization's annual Christmas Project. All in all, it was another resounding success, and resulted in helping hundreds of local children keep warm during this frigid Garrett County winter.

CONFESSIONS OF A DANGEROUS MIND

Rated R - Running Time: 1:53 - Released 12/31/02

The title is not the only similarity between Confessions Of A Dangerous Mind and last year's Best Picture Oscar winner, Ron Howard's A Beautiful Mind. Both films are based on a true story about a famous genius who purports to have been secretly working for the CIA. The main difference is, John Nash finally admitted he was delusional. Chuck Barris, creator of numerous TV game shows of the '60s and '70s and author of the autobiography upon which this movie is based, will give no such admission, and so the producers of this film (of which he is one), its director, George Clooney (in his debut as such), and its screenwriter, fantasy-meister Charlie Kaufman (Being John Malkovich, Adaptation), would have us believe that in between tapings of The Newlywed Game and The Gong Show, Barris was learning how to kill a man with his bare hands and traveling to Europe to assassinate Communist agents. It's not an easy pill to swallow given Barris's clownish persona and his legendary ability to generate entertainment based on out-of-this-world material, but hey, it certainly makes for a fascinating show.

Part of the credit for this film's success must obviously go to Clooney, who in his first time behind the camera uses interesting camera techniques, desaturated color filtering, and inventive editing to create an engagingly surrealistic backdrop on which Barris's incredible story is rendered. But it's mostly the work of Sam Rockwell (Galaxy Quest, The Green Mile) that makes this movie so fascinating. Those of us who remember Barris from TV will not be able to deny the accuracy with which Rockwell impersonates the wild, seemingly psychotic, attention-craving lunatic who danced around the studio with reckless abandon during episodes of The Gong Show—frankly, I always thought he was high on coke, but the film makes no such reference—but it is his depiction of Barris's private side, as a tormented, confused, and needy individual that really grabs our empathy. It would be easy to portray the man as a silly showman with delusions of a James Bond double-lifestyle, but Rockwell's portrayal gives him the depth required to show us that he was, and is, a real person, with all the strengths and weaknesses inherent in the human condition. His performance, coupled with Clooney's wild yet credible presentation, accomplishes the goal of Kaufman's screenplay: to make us not sure. To make us say, "Could Chuck Barris really have been a CIA assassin?" It's a tall order—and they pull it off.

Beginning, as so many autobiographical movies do, near the end of the story, the film starts with a bearded, reclusive Barris (Rockwell), holed up in a seedy New York hotel in the early '80s, his days of fame seemingly behind him, contemplating how his life has spiraled into its present state. After a short visit from his devoted and long-suffering girlfriend Penny (Drew Barrymore), whom he never even lets in the door, Barris contemplates how, at some point, a man compares what he expected his life to be and what it has become, and realizes that it's too late to change it. But perhaps, he decides, his salvation will be to write a memoir of his bizarre story, getting it all off his chest once and for all. And so, Confessions is born.

We are transported back to the early '50s, when Barris is simply another guy trying to make it with girls, who starts out by getting a job as a tour guide at NBC, writing the pop song "Pallisades Park" which became a big hit for Freddy "Boom Boom" Cannon, and finally moving to ABC to work backstage at Dick Clark's American Bandstand. This portion of the story (which seems to contain an inordinate number of shots featuring Rockwell's naked, well-toned butt) illustrates how his frustration with romance evolved into his creation of The Dating Game, his disdain for matrimony into The Newlywed Game, and his desire to eliminate mediocrity into The Gong Show. In between his TV-related pursuits, we are privy to his first meeting with Penny, whose hippy-esque desire for an open relationship seems to fit the commitment-shy Barris to a tee, and to his association with the shadowy and mysterious Jim Byrd (director Clooney), who recruits him into the U.S. government's plot to foil Communism. Two of his more notable CIA contacts are played by Rutger Hauer, whose regrets about his profession inspire Barris to similar introspection, and Julia Roberts, whose chillingly sexy character becomes Penny's primary competition for his romantic attention. As these strangely interrelated stories are played out, Clooney lends credibility to the film's central conceit by including interviews with real-life celebrities who were associated with the shows (people such as Dating Game host Jim Lange, Gong Show regular Jaye P. Morgan, and even Dick Clark), who admit their uncertainty about what Barris was doing when he would disappear for weeks at a time. The plot, as they say, thickens.

Confessions Of A Dangerous Mind is, like the Andy Kaufman story Man On The Moon, a wacky movie about a wacky person, a film whose details we are never really sure we are supposed to believe. But perhaps this uncertainty is what makes it so engaging. Not knowing whether we are being told the truth or duped into believing the impossible knocks us a little off-kilter, which is exactly what Barris is best at. His wordless appearance (as himself) at the end of the film seems to underscore that he's still behind the story. Or maybe he's just telling us he's in on the joke. ★★★★

Garrett College Welcomes Latest Estonian Student

By Joan Crawford

A new student from Estonia, Ivo Kuutma, has enrolled at Garrett College for spring semester. He is the 13th student from the Baltic country to enroll at the local college since the partnership with Estonia began in 2000.

Kuutma graduated from Valga Secondary School in 2002 and decided to come to Garrett because, as he said, "I always wanted to come to America and improve my English." He has a younger brother attending Valga Secondary School and an older sister at Tartu University. His father works for Valga city government in foreign relations and has his own firm dealing with translations and teaching various language courses.

At this time, Kuutma is not certain about his future career, but he plans to complete a two-year degree in general studies at Garrett, and then possibly pursue a bachelor's degree in the United States. He said he enjoys chat rooms on the Internet, playing computer games, hanging out with his friends, and driving cars.

The greatest difference Kuutma has found is his new environment is the measuring system. "In Estonia everything is metric and liters instead of quarts and inches," he said.

Kuutma will be living with the James Kesselring family of Swanton. The Kesselrings, who have four children and eight grandchildren, have traveled extensively to foreign countries. They are affiliated with the Washington and Garrett County Family Association.

Rep. Bartlett Returns Home From Antarctica

by Elizabeth A. Shack
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – With below-freezing temperatures across the state, taking a two-week trip someplace warmer might sound tempting – even if that warmer place is Antarctica.

Reps. Wayne Gilchrest and Roscoe Bartlett returned last week from a 13-day trip to Antarctica, where Bartlett said the weather at McMurdo Station was warmer than what greeted them upon his return home.

"It was a very interesting science trip," said Bartlett, R-Frederick, of what an aide called a "grueling" trip to review science research programs and facilities in Antarctica, Hawaii, and Australia's Great Barrier Reef.

Gilchrest, R-Kennedyville, was not available to discuss the trip, aides said. He and Bartlett were the only two members of Maryland's congressional delegation to travel during the House's recess.

The two joined National Science Foundation director Rita Colwell, House Science Committee chairman Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., and other members of the committee on the trip, the bulk of which was spent in Antarctica.

At McMurdo Station on the coast, they watched divers collect samples from about 70 feet underwater, learned about fish that produce a kind of antifreeze to keep their blood and tissues from freezing in icy water, and examined volcano strata in the Dry Valleys.

"You wouldn't think you'd go there to study volcanoes," Bartlett said, but because glaciers have not covered the valleys with ice, the layers of ash and lava laid down by ancient volcanoes are still visible.

The trip, funded by NSF and the departments of Defense and State, included visits to two of the three permanent American research stations, which are under the committee's jurisdiction.

The U.S. Antarctic Program receives $250 million a year in funding and hosts an average population of 650 scientists, committee spokeswoman Heidi Tringe said. That funding supports McMurdo and the South Pole's Amundsen-Scott station, as well as Palmer just off the Antarctic Peninsula and several nonpermanent stations. Tringe said a new $150 million station at the pole is under construction.

Bartlett defended the funding, saying that the United States spends proportionally less on research than other developed countries.

"If you double what we spend you'd never know it. It's such a tiny part of our budget," he said.

With Congress just starting appropriations for fiscal 2004, Bartlett said he hopes that those who went on the trip will act as missionaries to the rest of Congress.

"Education is expensive, but ignorance is even more expensive," he said.

Tringe said the Antarctic stations are useful to astronomers, biologists, and earth scientists, in particular.

"Some of the research can only be done at the South Pole – it's the best place in the world for radio astronomy," Bartlett said. The nearly two-mile-high elevation and the clean, dry air make it "almost as good as space," he said.

While he enjoyed the trip, including brief stays in Hawaii and Australia, Bartlett said he was "glad to be back" – even if the weather was no warmer at home.

RAM STUDENTS HONORED – The second December RAM Student of the Month is Andrew Waligorski, nominated by John Coffman and Kayla Cathell. Andrew has been working as the Media Center assistant for two years. According to Coffman, he is eager to work and shows great diligence in accomplishing the tasks assigned. "He is always ready to work, whether it's setting up refreshments around the building with Mrs. Cathell, or taking care of the Media Center technical problems. We feel that Andrew is certainly deserving of this award," said Coffman. Waligoski is pictured above flanked by Tom Woods, principal, on the left, and Bob Bonser, activity director. Becky Shipe, pictured below, is the first January RAM Student of the Month. On Jan. 6, her school bus slid off the road and was stuck there until help arrived. During that time, Becky took responsibility to help flag down traffic and walk the elementary students to their parents' cars, and she stayed outside for an hour in the snow and cold to be of assistance to other students. "Seeing such outstanding character in our students makes us proud as it reflects the kind of maturity we believe Southern High School is all about," said Woods.

Taxpayers Reminded By IRS Of 2002 Education Incentives

The Internal Revenue Service recently announced that there are a number of new and expanded educational tax incentives available to taxpayers for the 2003 tax-filing season.

"The IRS wants taxpayers to know about these educational deductions, exclusions, credits, and savings opportunities now," said Jim Dupree, IRS spokesman for Maryland. "To claim some of the new deductions, taxpayers won't even have to itemize deductions on Schedule A."

Each of the three deductions described below is an adjustment to income on the first page of either Form 1040 or 1040A. These deductions are not available on Form 1040EZ.

Tuition and Fees Deduction

Most taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes up to $65,000 ($130,000 on a joint return) may deduct up to $3,000 for tuition and fees paid to attend an accredited college, university, or vocational school. Persons who may be claimed as dependents, and married persons filing separately may not take this deduction.

A taxpayer may not claim both this deduction and a tax credit for education expenses for the same student in one year. Qualifying expenses must be reduced by any nontaxable earnings from a Coverdell Education Savings Account (ESA), a qualified tuition program, or an education savings bond. Taxpayers claim this deduction on their Form 1040, new Line 26, or new Line 29 on Form 104OA.

Student Loan Interest Deduction

Interest on student loans for higher education may now be deducted whenever paid and regardless of the age of the loan. Prior to 2002, only payments made during the first 60 months of the required repayment term counted. Voluntary payments — for example, those made before the student graduated — did not qualify for the deduction.

This deduction is now available to most taxpayers with incomes up to $65,000, with the deduction amount phasing out as income increases above $50,000. For married couples filing jointly, the phase-out range is from $100,000 to $130,000. This deduction is claimed on Form 1040, Line 25, or on Form 1040A, Line 18.

Deduction for Educator Expenses

Educators who work at least 900 hours during a school year as a teacher, instructor, counselor, principal, or aide may deduct up to $250 of qualified unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses for books and classroom supplies.

This deduction is available for those in public or private elementary or secondary schools (including kindergarten). Educators must reduce qualifying expenses by any nontaxable earnings received from Coverdell ESAs, qualified tuition programs, or educational savings bonds. This deduction is claimed on Form 1040, new Line 23, or on Form 1040A, new Line 16.

Coverdell Education Savings Accounts (ESA)

Coverdell ESAs — formerly known as Education IRAs — do not give any immediate tax benefit, but they allow beneficiaries to accrue tax-free earnings for qualifying educational expenses. Several changes relate to the contribution rules:

•The annual contribution limit is now $2,000 per beneficiary, up from $500.

•The income eligibility for most married contributors filing jointly is now $190,000. As their adjusted gross income increases from $190,000 to $220,000 — which is double the range for unmarried persons — their contribution limit phases out.

•Corporations, including tax-exempt organizations, and other entities may now contribute to a Coverdell ESA, regardless of income level.

•The deadline for contributions for a given year is now the due date of the contributor's tax return, without extensions, instead of the end of the tax year. Thus, an individual may make 2002 contributions until April 15, 2003.

•A beneficiary may have contributions made to both a Coverdell ESA and a state tuition program in the same year.

•More distributions from Coverdell ESAs will qualify for tax-free treatment.

•Qualifying educational expenses now include certain elementary and secondary school costs.

•College students who use Coverdell ESA funds may also claim the Hope or Lifetime Learning Credits, as long as the credits are claimed for different expenses than those paid from the ESA funds.

•While most beneficiaries must use up their ESA accounts before age 30 or transfer them to a qualified relative, there is no longer an age limit for special needs beneficiaries.

Tax-Free Scholarships

Although scholarships are usually taxable if they carry a future service requirement, tuition, books and other equipment paid for by the National Health Service Corps Scholarship Program or the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship and Financial Assistance Program are no longer taxed. This benefit does not extend to room and board payments under these programs.

Employer-Provided Educational Assistance

Employers may provide their workers with up to $5,250 a year in tax-free educational benefits. This tax break now applies to graduate studies also.

Qualified Tuition Programs (QTPs)

Certain states offer programs that allow people to prepay a student's tuition or contribute to a higher education savings account. Now, the tax benefits related to such programs also apply to tuition prepayment programs offered by private educational institutions. As before, payments or contributions to a QTP are not deductible. But several changes increase the tax benefits of distributions from QTPs:

•Earnings from state programs are now tax-free to the extent they are used for certain qualifying higher education expenses. The same tax-free treatment will apply to earnings from the prepaid tuition programs of educational institutions, but not until 2004.

•The previous dollar limits for qualifying room and board expenses for students living off campus were changed to reflect the educational institution's published "cost of attendance" amounts.

•Students receiving tax-free benefits from QTPs will also be allowed to claim the Hope or Lifetime Learning Credits or receive a tax-free distribution from a Coverdell ESA, as long as the same expenses are not used for more than one of these benefits.

•Benefits may now be rolled over from one QTP to another for the same beneficiary, but only once within a 12-month period.

•For rollover and change of beneficiary purposes, the term "family member" now includes first cousins of the original beneficiary. A designated beneficiary may be changed to a family member, or an amount rolled over to a family member's QTP within 60 days of distribution, without tax consequences.

•Expenses of a special needs beneficiary that are necessary in connection with that person's higher education are now qualifying expenses for a OTP.

•Taxable distributions not used for qualified higher education expenses are generally subject to an additional 10% tax.

Hope/Lifetime Learning Credits

While the Hope Credit remains at up to $1,500 per student and the Lifetime Learning Credit remains at up to $1,000 per return, the income phase outs increased $1,000 ($2,000 for those Married Filing Jointly) and are between $41,000 and $51,000 ($82,000 and $102,000 for those Married Filing Jointly).

IRS Publication 970, "Tax Benefits for Education," has details on these and other education-related provisions.

Adorable Adoptables

Small College, Big Results

TAKING THE GAUNTLET OUT OF GETTING INTO COLLEGE, the staff of the Garrett College Admissions Office work to make access to higher education as easy and open as possible. "Because we are so small, every new student is important to us" said Crystal Roberson-Boal, GC's director of enrollment development. "We take a personal interest in getting him or her started on the right track, whatever the goal may be." Admissions Office personnel shown from above are, from the left in the first row, Shirley Furr, Robin Swearengen, Marge Mahood, Darlene Reed-Preston, and Mildred Bray. In the second row are Ed Wildesen, Dennis Gibson, Stacie Upole, and Boal. See story.

The Faces Of Garrett College: First Stop — Admissions Office

First in a series about the people who help GC students succeed

By Joan Crawford

The first stop on a student's journey to a college education is usually the Admissions Office at the college of one's choice, or at several colleges being considered. At Garrett College the seven persons who work in the admissions area are, like their counterparts across the country, there to attract new students and to guide them through the admissions process.

Although all admissions offices strive to portray the "best face" of their college to prospective students, Garrett's takes special pride in the personal service it gives. Crystal Roberson-Boal, director of enrollment development who supervises the entire admissions function, expresses this pride. "Because we are so small, every new student is important to us" she said, "and we take a personal interest in getting him or her started on the right track, whatever the goal may be."

Helping students determine and set their educational goal is Stacie Upole, coordinator of career services and member of the admissions team. Upole lets students know that her office will help them to assess their career goal and to find employment after they graduate. "My four years at Garrett have truly been a rewarding experience in helping students plan for successful futures," she said.

Roberson leads the team of recruiters who visit area high schools on a regular schedule to meet with interested students and give them information about Garrett's academic programs and services. She and admission recruiters Dennis Gibson and Ed Wildesen are frequently the first faces of Garrett College prospective students come to see.

Gibson, who is also men's basketball coach, and Wildesen, who is baseball coach, both view their jobs as very satisfying because they meet young people at the beginning of their educational journey and help them take advantage of Garrett's opportunities, then followup with them as they go on to four-year colleges or begin their careers. "The comment I hear most frequently from our former student athletes is how much they wish Garrett were a four-year college," said Wildesen.

After they have met with Garrett's representatives in the high school, interested students are then invited to the campus for a tour and an opportunity to meet with program directors, financial aid counselors, and other members of the admission team in the Student Assistance Center. Some come with their parents for individual visits; others choose to attend one of the regularly scheduled open houses sponsored by the admissions office.

Members of the admissions staff who greet new students in the Student Assistance Center are Robin Swearengen, Mildred Bray, and Darlene Preston. As coordinator of the center, Swearengen makes appointments for new students to do the placement evaluation, then to meet with an academic advisor to plan their schedule. She has been doing this job for seven years and finds her work very gratifying because she is able to make a difference in many persons' lives. "So many times students come in to thank us for helping them get started," she said.

Bray, who has been the "voice" of Garrett College at the switchboard and receptionist in the Student Assistance Center for six years, praises members of the admissions team. "They are the best," she said, "truly concerned about getting the students in and helping them lay the foundation for a better future."

Preston, with 21 years of experience in Garrett College's admissions office, continues to serve as admissions counselor and is also coordinator of Garrett's Global Education program. She has added responsibilities of guiding international students through INS processes before, during and after their educational experience at Garrett. In addition she helps them find housing and adapt to their new environment. She makes the first contact with them via e-mail and guides them through Garrett College's admissions process when they arrive. Since the fall of 2000 a total of 13 students from Estonia have enrolled at Garrett; five have graduated, and five are currently enrolled. "International students need some special attention to make them feel at home, "Preston said, "but all of us here take time to do that."

From her prospective as the person in charge, Roberson views the admissions office as the foundation of Garrett's slogan, "Small college, Big results." "All of us in the student services area, as well as the faculty and administrators, are all working as a team to make certain that each student is given the individual attention that will ensure 'big results.' It has been very rewarding in my short time at Garrett to work with the best students in the world and to watch them prosper and succeed."

Farming On The Mountaintop

Non-Insurable Crop Coverage Deadline Nears

Producers of fruits, vegetables, and other non-insurable crops are encouraged to act soon to purchase disaster coverage for the 2003 crop year, as the deadline to apply for 2003 coverage is rapidly approaching.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistance Program, or NAP, application closing deadline is March 15, and for early spring crops such as peas and onions, coverage must be purchased no later than Feb. 15, according to Steven A. Connelly, head of the Maryland Farm Service Agency.

"The NAP program provides financial assistance to producers affected by natural disasters," said Connelly. "NAP coverage is available only for crops that cannot be covered under the Federal Crop Insurance Program, so producers should check with their local FSA offices to see which crops can be covered under NAP versus those for which insurance coverage must be purchased through private crop insurance agents."

The sales closing date in Maryland for most crops for which crop insurance is available is also March 15, so producers are encouraged to act now to protect themselves fully against disaster-related production losses.

To be eligible for assistance under the Non-insured Assistance Program, producers must apply for coverage prior to the Feb. 15 or March 15 deadline. There is a service fee of $100 per crop per county or $300 per producer per county for coverage. This service fee cannot exceed $900 per producer for all counties. Producers with limited resources may request a waiver of service fees.

To receive a NAP payment, the natural disaster must have reduced the expected production of the covered crop by more than 50 percent, as the program is intended to cover catastrophic losses.

"Losses are generally determined by the percentage of loss compared to the producer's actual yield history. Lost production eligible for payment is paid at 55 percent of the value of the crop," Connelly said.

"Producers interested in getting coverage for their non-insurable crops should stop by the county office as soon as possible to complete an application for their 2003 acres," Connelly stated. "We never know what kind of weather will face producers this year, and this is the USDA's only program intended to assist producers of fruits and vegetables."

Producers should also note that to remain eligible for NAP assistance, an annual report of crop acreage and production reports are required. Connelly encouraged producers to contact the Garrett County FSA office at 301-334-6950, or the state FSA at office at 410-381-4550, for additional information or to obtain NAP coverage.

Edwards Presents Ag Bill To Gen. Assembly, Again

Delegate George Edwards (R-1A) has again introduced legislation in the General Assembly which would allow more Garrett and Allegany County farmers to join the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation.

Edwards introduced the same legislation in 2002 and 2001. The bill passed the General Assembly both years, but was twice vetoed by former Governor Parris Glendening.

HB 91 asks that restrictions be removed which require that companies give up their mineral rights on farm land before the land owners may join the foundation. The bill is co-sponsored by Delegates Kevin Kelly (D-1B) and LeRoy E. Myers Jr. (R-1C).

Because Garrett and Allegany counties have more natural resources, such as coal and natural gas, than other parts of the state, and therefore, farmers in this area are at a disadvantage if they wish to join the foundation, said Edwards.

Last year, more than 20 Garrett County farmers were interested in joining the foundation, but could not because of the restrictions.

The House Environmental Matters Committee will hold a hearing on HB 91 on Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 1 p.m. in Room 140 of the Lowe House Office Building, Annapolis.

Anyone wishing to testify on this bill must sign the witness register before the hearing begins. Persons with written testimony must submit 40 copies to the committee staff for distribution one hour prior to the hearing.

Risk Management Seminar Set For Grain Producers

The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) and the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) are hosting a "Risk Management for Grain Producers" seminar from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 10, in Annapolis.

A dry growing season, coupled with a wet harvest period, has corn and soybean production down an estimated 47 percent, according to the Maryland Agriculture Statistics Service, causing many Maryland grain producers to start seeking help with easing the burden of this weather disaster. "Most of the producers in my area are hurting after the low yields seen from this year's grain and soybean crops," said St. Mary's County farmer Donnie Tennyson. "We need to regroup and focus on learning how to minimize the hurt next time by learning about risk management and crop insurance."

Featured keynote speaker Jacquie Voeks, senior market advisor for Stewart-Peterson Inc., will share with producers how to use the tools of marketing to manage their risk with confidence. "I know first-hand of the frustration brought on by the uncertainties of farming."

Voeks was raised on a dairy and grain farm in southeastern Wisconsin and, after earning a business degree from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, owned and operated her own feed mill for 14 years. She has conducted financial planning for farms with both Purina and Domain Inc. She is a published writer for several top agriculture publications and is currently teaching risk management education for Stewart-Peterson, through a grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, as well as cattle and grain risk management for a bank in Nebraska.

Following Voeks's presentation, Michael Haigh of the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics will share information on crop yields for 2002, marketing opportunities for the coming year.

For more information about the seminar, persons may contact MGPUB executive director Lynne Hoot at 410-956-5771.

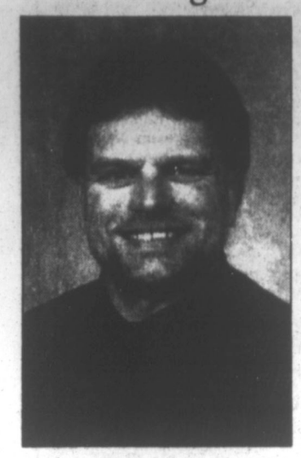
Tribbey Elected Respiratory Care Nat'l Delegate



Eric Tribbey, BS/R.R.T., was recently elected to serve a four-year term as a delegate for the American Association of Respiratory Care.

Tribbey was installed as delegate in Baltimore last Saturday as one of two respiratory care practitioners selected to represent Maryland and the District of Columbia at the National House of Delegates meetings to discuss issues relating to respiratory care for hospitals, patients, and other respiratory care practitioners.

The delegate position makes him a volunteer member of the board of directors for MD/DC Society.

Tribbey, who has been a member of the AARC since 1971, has been the director of the Cardio Pulmonary and Mobile Medical Services departments at Garrett County Memorial Hospital since 1980. He is a charter member of the advisory committee for Allegany College of Maryland's Respiratory Therapist program.

"The GCMH management team should be recognized for supporting my efforts to allow me to serve in these roles," said Tribbey.

Western Maryland Science Expo Set At Frostburg State

The 15th Western Maryland Science Expo will be held at Frostburg State University on Friday, March 21, for middle and high school students from Garrett and Allegany counties. The grand-prize winner will compete at the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair in Cleveland, Ohio, in May for more than $2 million in awards and scholarships.

"The Western Maryland Science Expo promotes science education and recognition of student achievement in science," an Expo spokesperson said. "Student-scientists in these competitions learn through hands-on, inquiry-based research and experimentation, not just through lectures and books. Hands-on research has proven to improve student learning, problem-solving, and an understanding of science."

Along with the first-, second-, and third-place awards in 13 categories in both high school and middle school divisions, there are opportunities for students to win awards from affiliate sponsors, including the U.S. Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, the U.S. Air Force Research Laboratory, and the Eastman-Kodak Corporation, which will provide certificates and awards such as $200 in cash, $50 savings bonds, and scientific calculators.

The Expo has been allocated a pre-determined number of slots for nominations to the Discovery Channel's "Young Scientists' Challenge" for middle school students. Those students will be selected from the first-, second-, and third-place winners in each category, and Challenge finalists will compete for scholarships up to $10,000 and a week's trip to Washington, D.C.

AES Warrior Run will provide "Young Edison Award" scholarships of $1,500, $1,000 and $500 to be applied toward tuition at FSU or Allegany College of Maryland. Winners will be selected from the categories of physics, engineering, and environmental science.

A Tam Achievement Award to all students who place in the high school division in physics, engineering, and earth and space categories. The Tam Award gives students preferential consideration for an FSU scholarship.

The Western Maryland Science Expo is sponsored by the Regional Education Service Agency (RESA) in cooperation with Garrett and Allegany County public schools, Frostburg State University, and Allegany College of Maryland. A number of coporate sponsors help support the Expo, including Demaree Inflatable Boats of Friendsville, First People's Credit Union, and First United Bank and Trust.

"Our new Garrett County Health Department facility [located at 1025 Memorial Drive] enhances service to the public since individuals can now receive all the services at one site," he said. "The Garrett County department is one of the last departments in the state to still offer direct health services such as home health care, dental clinics, mental health counseling, substance abuse clinics, family planning, and comprehensive cancer screening programs. Many of these direct services are provided in cooperation with local health professionals through contractual arrangements." Glotfelty, left, is shown receiving the club's certificate of appreciation from Lion president Robert Stocksiager.

It's Time to Redecorate

"Honey, I think it's time for some changes. Let's redecorate the house. OK? Do you hear me? Honey?"

Just the mention of the word "redecorate" has struck many a spouse deaf and the process has blown budgets high in the sky, yet it's hard to deny the exhilarating effects of a change of scene. A kaleidoscope of color swatches, reams of wallpaper, and a megadose of television "instruction" can certainly trigger the adrenaline.

Yes, with time, money, and effort, we can change our surroundings...and that is fine. Yet what is the answer to happiness if the "new" becomes boring once more. Perhaps we need spiritual "adrenaline"?

The answer lies in God's Word. "But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things shall be yours as well." [Matthew 6:33] What are "these things"? When you give your life to God, you will live in such a way that your spirit is always full and alive. You will feel satisfied.

Won't you worship this week? Learn the feeling of satisfaction that never fades. The results are guaranteed...when you follow the instructions.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
By Lawrence W. Althouse

A MINISTRY OF ENCOURAGEMENT

February 2, 2003

Background Scripture:
Acts 4:32-37; 9:26,27; 11:19-30; 15:36-40.
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 10:19-25.

As a brand new minister in a suburb of Harrisburg, PA, I had a very exalted, if immature, vision of my mission. Within one year I would convert all of Paxtonia, within two years, all of Lower Paxton Township and by the end of three years, all of Lower Dauphin County. It didn't work out that way, for, after five years, when I left for another church, I was still working on Paxtonia.

Many Christians may think unrealistically about Christian discipleship. We would all like to be a St. Francis of Assisi or a Toyohiko Kagawa. There is nothing wrong with that aspiration if we don't let it interfere with seemingly less spectacular opportunities.

Witnessing to the Good News is not something for the special few, but all of us. Barnabas, who grasped every opportunity to live his discipleship, is a shining example for all of us. He is mentioned only briefly in six of the chapters of Acts (also I Cor. 9:6; Gal. 2:1,9,13; and Col. 4:10), but, if we look closely, we will see that his discipleship, though not so dramatic, was very vital.

Called To Minister

Acts 4:36, tells us that his given name is Joseph, a member of the Hebrew tribe of Levi. Levites served various functions in the temple, roles secondary to that of the priests. Barnabas was from the island of Cyprus and apparently of some means, for he "sold a field which belonged to him, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet" (4:37). So he is the kind of Christian who not only hears what should be done, but does it. Without people like Barnabas the church would not have endured and spread.

Barnabas, meaning "son of encouragement," is the surname given him by the apostles. His gift to the early church was the encouragement he gave his fellow followers of Christ through both his words and his actions. Many who helped me most throughout my life were those, beginning with my parents, who encouraged me in my endeavors. Who needs encouragement? Just about everybody. There are opportunities every day.

In Acts 11, the apostles, hearing of many conversions in Antioch, sent Barnabas to that city to report to them what was happening there. Barnabas was so encouraged by the many converts that he decided to stay on in Antioch for a while to establish a congregation there. Acts tells us "he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith" (11:24). But Barnabas decided he would need help and went to Tarsus to enlist the aid of a new and untried disciple named Saul (Paul). I doubt that any other Christian leaders would have taken a chance on Paul who was better known for his persecution of Christians, than he was for his conversion on the Damascus Road.

Playing 2nd Fiddle

Note that, in the beginning, it was "Barnabas and Saul" (11:30), but by the time we get to 13:43, it has become "Paul and Barnabas." For the sake of the gospel, Barnabas, seeing Paul's great abilities, was apparently willing to let Paul assume the leadership. But, as they are planning their third missionary journey, they disagreed over including John Mark in their party. Paul did not want him along because the young disciple had apparently left their group during the previous journey. But Barnabas wanted to give Mark another chance, so they went their separate ways.

That, however, is not the end of the story. It appears that Barnabas was right in giving Mark another chance because, approximately ten years later, he was again working with Paul (Col. 4:10; Philemon 24;) and according to tradition, he founded the church in the great Jewish-Greek city of Alexandria, Egypt, where he also died and was buried.

Unlike Paul and Peter, there are not many churches named after Barnabas. But I think there should be, because most of us are closer to his level of discipleship than we are to that of Peter and Paul. Maybe we ought to start a Society of St. Barnabas to spread the Good News with a vital ministry of encouragement!

Strange But True

By Samantha Weaver

• Microsoft chairman Bill Gates is a bridge player — and a good one, by all accounts. He recently competed in the World Bridge Championships held in Montreal, and he and his partner just barely missed making the final round of competition.

• There is a recognized world record for the dubious sport of accurate wine-spitting. It's 11 feet, 6 inches.

• Many people don't know that in all the films made about Tarzan (and there are an awful lot of them), the title character never says, "Me Tarzan, you Jane." Just as in the classic Bogart-Bergman film "Casablanca," no one utters the line, "Play it again, Sam."

• Inexplicably, slugs have four noses.

• Talk about ignominious ways to die: A 72-year-old woman in Buckinghamshire, England, was killed after slipping in her bathroom and impaling herself on the toilet brush. It went through her eye and into her brain, probably killing her instantly.

• It is illegal to put livestock on a school bus in Florida.

• It has been reported that to keep cool during baseball games, Babe Ruth wore a cabbage leaf under his cap. It would wilt in the heat, though, so he had to get a fresh one every two innings.

• Play-Doh was originally marketed as wallpaper cleaner.

• The first black lawmaker to be sworn into the U.S. House of Representatives was Joseph H. Rainey of South Carolina. Some consider this surprising not only because he was elected in a Southern state, but also because of how early it occurred — in 1870.

• The man who wrote "The Prince of Tides," Pat Conroy, once said, "I've always found paranoia to be a perfectly defensible position."

• On Feb. 8, 1692, two girls are declared by a doctor to be "under an evil hand," precipitating a series of sensational accusations in the town of Salem, Mass. They were the niece and daughter of local pastor, who was immediately suspicious of the influence of his slaves.

• On Feb. 6, 1820, the first organized immigration of freed slaves to Africa from the United States departs New York harbor on a journey to Freetown, Sierra Leone, in West Africa.

• On Feb. 4, 1861, in Montgomery, Ala., delegates from South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana convene to establish the Confederate States of America.

• On Feb. 7, 1904, in Baltimore, Md., a small fire in the business district is wind-whipped into an uncontrollable conflagration that engulfs a large portion of the city by evening. Miraculously, no lives were lost, and Baltimore's domed City Hall, built in 1867, was preserved.

• On Feb. 9, 1960, Adolph Coors disappears while driving to work from his Morrison, Colo., home. The grandson of the Coors' founder and chairman of the Golden, Colo., brewery was kidnapped and held for ransom before being shot to death.

• On Feb. 5, 1988, two federal grand juries in Florida announce indictments of Panama military strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega on drug smuggling and money laundering charges. Four years later, he was found guilty on eight counts, marking the first time in history that a U.S. jury had convicted a foreign leader of criminal charges.

• On Feb. 3, 1994, nearly two decades after the fall of Saigon, U.S. President Bill Clinton announces the lifting of the 19-year-old trade embargo against Vietnam, citing the cooperation of Vietnam's communist government in helping the United States locate the 2,238 Americans still listed as missing in the Vietnam War.

Vintage Telephones

Q. I recently acquired an old crank telephone made by Kellogg. It was used in an old hotel in Kansas during the 1920s. I would like to find out how much it might be worth and, perhaps, get it restored. — Ted, Mansfield, Ill.

A. Vintage telephones have become extremely popular with collectors. Some of the earlier wall units and candlestick models, especially those manufactured by such companies as Western Electric, Kellogg, Stromberg-Carlson and Monarch, seem to be the most valuable.

A quick check of eBay found several interesting telephones that had just been sold at auction, including a Western Electric desk phone from the 1930s, $290; a Kellogg candlestick, $240; and a Stromberg-Carlson wall phone, circa 1910, $450.

The Antique Telephone Association publishes a monthly newsletter that you can request by writing editor Cindy Krizek, P.O. Box 94, Abilene, KS 67410. For repair and parts, one of the better sources is Phoneco, Inc., 19813 E. Mill Road, P.O. Box 70, Galesville, WI 54630. Its e-mail and Web site addresses are phonecoinc@aol.com and www.phonecoinc.com. Two serious telephone collectors are Bill Harfe, 251 W. Capitol Ave., Milpitas, CA 95035; and Russ Pate, 235 Sandpine Road, Indialantic, FL 32903.

Top Dog

Q. I have two dogs that have been together for two years. When one of the dogs wimps out, the other dog attacks it. Why? — Doug, via e-mail

A. What you're witnessing is something similar to sibling rivalry in humans, with a bit of pack mentality thrown in. One dog, trying for his owner's attention by "wimping out" (whining or limping in the owner's presence) is attacked by the other dog, which is jealous of this behavior and its reward.

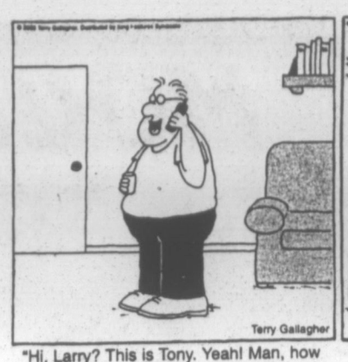
The dominant dog is easy to spot. But why is it attacking the weaker dog? Try observing your own behavior toward each pet.

When the weaker dog yelps, whines, limps, does it do this only in front of you? Does the dominant dog only attack when you (or another owner) are around? How do you react? Most likely, you try to comfort the weaker dog or at least pay more attention to it than you do the dominant dog. Some subtle behavior is at work here, and it can be difficult to resolve.

Once you've identified the behavior cycle, start making some changes in your treatment of the dogs. First, affirm the dominant dog's status: It will always be the alpha dog, no matter how nicely you treat the weaker dog. Make certain it gets the first treat, is the first dog through the door, the first to be petted, etc. Don't allow special treatment of the weaker dog, such as letting it up on the bed while leaving the dominant dog on the floor.

The dogs should still socialize for a few hours each day. However, if they inflict injury on each other they should be muzzled during this time. After a few months, remove the muzzles to see how they get along.

This unequal treatment is unfortunate, but reinforcing the hierarchy may be the only way to reduce both the attacks and the whiny behavior.



"Hi, Larry? This is Tony. Yeah! Man, how long has it been ... 10 years? Wow, time sure flies. Hey, I was wondering if you could help me move on Saturday."

"Good thing I had my cell phone."

"It never fails. They build me up, and then they throw snowballs at me."

TV PIPELINE

Ex-'World' co-star now in UPN's 'Abby'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Kadeem Hardison

Q: What ever happened to Kadeem Hardison of "A Different World"? Does he have any new projects? –M. Romero, Ohio.

A: Hardison, now 37, has worked steadily since his 1987-93 gig as Dwayne Wayne in "World." His more recent credits include "Vampire in Brooklyn," "Drive," "Blind Faith," "Fire & Ice," "Showtime," "Red Skies" and the critically acclaimed "Dancing in September," as well as the short-lived Fox sitcom "Between Brothers" and the Kids' WB series "Static Shock."

These days, Hardison is happily co-starring with Sydney Tamiia Poitier in UPN's delightful new sitcom "Abby." He also has two new films, "Design of Darkness" and "Biker Boyz," scheduled for release later this year.

Q: I love the commercial for the Chevy Tahoe in which James Garner recites a poem containing the words "and nobody knows it but me." What song or poem does this come from? –D. Pendleton, Folsom, Calif.

A: The whimsical "Nobody Knows It but Me" is by Patrick O'Leary, a General Motors advertising writer. The last lines go:

It's far far away
And way way afar
It's over the moon and the sea
And wherever you're going That's wherever you are
And nobody knows it but me.

Q: What can you tell me about James Patrick Stuart ("Andy Richter Controls the Universe")? I used to watch him on "All My Children." What else has he done, and where can I write to him? –Patti in Crookston, Minn.

A: Stuart, 34, is a startlingly versatile theater-trained actor who has quietly been stealing scenes since his soap years on "AMC" via series roles in such flops as "Encore! Encore!" and "The Simple Life" with Jean Smart, and guest appearances on hits including "JAG," "Seinfeld" and especially "Frasier," where he played a bisexual ski instructor with his amorous eye on Niles (David Hyde Pierce) in the hilarious episode "The Ski Lodge."

His film credits include "Pretty Woman," "Exit to Eden" and "Fix," as well as the TV movie "Gettysburg." (He reprises his role as Col. E. Porter Alexander in the upcoming "Gods and Generals" as well.)

Whatever the fate of the "Andy Richter" sitcom by the time you read this, you should be able to get a letter to Stuart via the show at Fox Broadcasting Company, P.O. Box 900, Beverly Hills, CA 90213.

One final note for trivia enthusiasts: Stuart, a native of Encino, Calif., is the son of Chad Stuart from the 1960s pop duo Chad & Jeremy.

In Focus

The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are back, revised and with new friends and foes, beginning Saturday, Feb. 8, on Fox.

For those who need a primer on the superheroes: A mysterious canister falls off a truck in front of a New York pet store just as a boy is leaving with a bowl of turtles. The canister shatters the bowl, green ooze covers the baby turtles, and everything winds up in the city's famous sewers.

The results are Leonardo, Raphael, Michelangelo and Donatello.

Monies Used To Turn Room Into A Rainforest

Debbie Hinebaugh and Jenny Neville, fifth grade teachers and Co-nect facilitators at Broad Ford Elementary School, received a $400 Making Activities Count grant from McDonald's. The grant was used to turn the small group room into an interactive rainforest classroom for students.

Volunteers Martha and Al McGettigan spent many hours painting the room to look like the rainforest. The students loved going into the room each day to see the work in progress, Neville said.

"We are extremely grateful to the McGettigans for their excellent artwork," said Hinebaugh.

The room is also used as a broadcast room for the school's closed circuit television program. Morning announcements, Students of the Month program, and special events are broadcast to the school.

Mrs. Neville's and Mrs. Hinebaugh's fifth grade class did an extensive project to learn more about the rainforest. After each student researched a rainforest animal, the students created a rainforest magazine titled "Rainforest Animals," which will be displayed and kept in the rainforest room for future classes.

ENJOYING THE RAINFOREST – Al and Martha McGettigan, the volunteer artists of the new rainforest room at Broad Ford Elementary, and some students recently enjoyed the grand opening of the room. Debbie Hinebaugh and Jenny Neville, fifth grade teachers and Co-nect facilitators at Broad Ford, received a $400 Making Activities Count grant from McDonald's, and the grant was used to turn the small group room into an interactive rainforest classroom for students. See story for more details.

The students also completed a web quest titled "Tropical Times" in which each students took on a role of a scientific and journalism team to write an article for the "Tropical Times" newspaper. The roles were ecologist, botanist, zoologist, and anthropologist.

The students also created persuasive posters about ways to save the rainforest. For a culminating activity, the students participated in a "Tropical Celebration." Students brought in foods that were made from products of the rainforest, such as tapioca pudding, chocolate, tropical fruits, and nuts. The McGettigans and parents were invited to join the students for their celebration.

Massage Therapists Donating Skills To Benefit Rec. Trails

Area massage therapists will join forces to raise money for the Garrett County Recreational Trails project on Saturday, Feb. 15. Coordinated by therapist Christine Felker and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, volunteers will team up at four sites in the county and provide complimentary seated massages for donations to the trails system.

As health professionals, the massage therapists of the area are "very supportive" of the trail system initiative, according to Felker. "It will provide an excellent opportunity for exercise at all levels," she said.

When the Recreational Trails Task Force announced that it was undertaking a fund-raising campaign, local therapists, who are currently forming a nonprofit association, decided to create an opportunity to bring in the needed dollars while exposing more people in the community to the benefits of massage. Felker contacted the chamber of commerce with the offer to organize groups of therapists to participate in a fund-raising event.

"I thought Christine had a great idea and immediately took it to Steve Green, who chairs the task force. Steve gave the idea a thumbs up and agreed that it was an excellent project," said Peggy Santamaria of the chamber staff. She also said that businesses were eager to cooperate and offer space for therapists to offer seated massages.

Volunteer therapists will be providing services at the Book Mark'et, Oakland; Bear Elegance Salon, located along Deep Creek Drive in McHenry; Trader's Coffee House at Trader's Landing along Garrett Highway; and in the Compton School at Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, during the Cherries & Chill Festival.

Massages will be offered between 12:30 and 4:30 p.m., but times may differ slightly at each location. "We hope lots of people will take advantage of this chance to enjoy a massage and that they will contribute generously to the trails program," Green said.

When completed, the Recreational Trails will wind across hundreds of acres and connect northern, southern, eastern, and western communities in Garrett County.

For more information on the massage therapy fundraiser, persons may call the chamber at 301-387-4386.

RELAX FOR A GOOD CAUSE – Garrett County's massage therapists, united in a fund-raising effort for the Recreational Trails initiative, will provide complimentary seated massages for a donation to the trails project. Several businesses will provide space for this event on Saturday, Feb. 15, from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. In the photo above, at the Bear Elegance Salon, Adrian "Tack" Spiker of the Recreational Trails Task Force is seated in front of therapist Emily Georg awaiting his massage. Salon owner Kathleen Seaman (right) will host therapists and contributors. See story.

No Child Left Act Confusing To State Board

by Kristin Sette
Capital News Service

BALTIMORE — State school board members were left scratching their heads Tuesday after getting a first look at the numeric formulas needed to assess the progress of programs mandated by the No Child Left Behind Act, which holds schools accountable for students' success.

A plan released Tuesday by the state Department of Education would require schools statewide to establish baseline figures for student performance based on enrollment numbers and 2002 test data.

Success standards would be set for students in eight "subgroups," including five ethnic categories and economically disadvantaged pupils, among others. The baseline, which will apply to all Maryland public schools, will likely leave the state's poorer districts struggling to catch up to those with higher performance scores and better test participation rates.

"All schools, all subgroups, have the same objective," said Mark Moody, a former assistant state superintendent who presented the plans to the board. "You set the baseline once for everybody ... Each of the eight subgroups have to perform at the minimum [level]. One [under-performing] subgroup gets you in trouble."

Board members, while confused by the proposed formulas, said they held the same concerns as many school officials and teachers since the No Child Left Behind Act was adopted in 2001: Some Maryland school systems could be ahead of the game in student performance, while others could be left two steps behind.

Earlier in the meeting, Prince George's school superintendent Iris Metts told the board she was alarmed about low test scores among African-American high school students.

"We're not going to make gains with minority students unless we have extended academic opportunities," she said. "We're very committed to working as hard as we can."

State officials recognize certain school systems will be constantly working to improve their student achievement scores, Moody said. That's what the No Child Left Behind Act requires of them.

"The Legislature has said, 'I understand you have a big step to take,'" Moody said, referring to underperforming school systems. "But you have to take that step."

Maryland's plan, while still preliminary, will be presented to U.S. Department of Education officials later this week, said Ronald A. Peiffer, deputy state superintendent for academic policy. After Peiffer and Moody review formulas with federal officials, a final plan will be brought before the state board in February.

Local Students Get ACM Scholarships

TRISHA CANFIELD

LORETTA DEWITT

Four Allegany College of Maryland students, two of whom are from Garrett County, have been awarded General Educational Development or Equivalent Scholarships for use in the current 2002-03 academic year, the ACM Foundation announced.

Trisha Canfield, Grantsville, is pursuing an associate degree to become a registered nurse. A dean's list student, she is carrying a perfect 4.0 grade point average and is an ACM Honors Program member.

After graduation, she plans to transfer to West Virginia University, where she hopes to continue her education toward a medical degree.

She is the daughter of Patricia Bittinger of Grantsville and Randy Bittinger of Phoenix, Ariz. Canfield and her husband Arthur (Joe) are the parents of a daughter, Glory.

Loretta L. (Lori) DeWitt, Mountain Lake Park, is pursuing an associate degree in nursing toward her goal of becoming a surgical nurse.

She took prerequisite courses at Garrett College before enrolling at ACM. Her health-care interest stems from more than six years with Garrett Rehabilitation Services.

DeWitt is the daughter of Joseph L. DeWitt Jr., Oakland. She has one son, Jeremy.

BEST BUDDIES SMILE – Members of the Best Buddies organization at Northern High School recently took time out for a little well-deserved buddy fun. This is the second year that the chapter has been open at Northern, and the program is reportedly going strong. On Dec. 7, the chapter held a pizza party, played games, and took pictures of each of the buddy pairs. Pictured above, left to right, are Jackie Brenneman, Heather Minnick, and Brandi Broadwater. In the photo on the right are Megan Shaffer and Angela Hoover. The group also held a Christmas Party on Dec. 19, where the buddies made Christmas cards for their parents. "Gifts were also exchanged, along with laughs and smiles," said a group spokesperson. Pictured below are Broadwater, Alta Birkby, Joey Uphold, and Lisa Rogers. The Best Buddies are planning more winter activities before all the snow is gone. The activities are made possible by the financial support of Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc.

5th Annual Deep Creek Dunk Set For February 22

Hundreds of brave souls will dip into the water of Deep Creek Lake (on the beach behind Uno's) at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 22, as part of the fifth annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk benefiting Special Olympics Maryland.

With a minimum pledge of $50, "Dunkers" will receive an official Dunk sweatshirt, a complimentary Uno's lunch, a group color photo, and an entry into the "Mountain Madness Weekend" prize drawing.

Participants must wear bathing suits, as well as shoes or surf mocs, as they dunk into the freezing Deep Creek Lake water. Prizes will be awarded to the Dunkers and law enforcement raising the most money, as well as an award for the best costume. The day will also feature food, music, and giveaways.

The event is coordinated by the Maryland State Police and local law enforcement agencies, and will benefit the athletes of Garrett County and Allegany County, part of a network of 10,000 Special Olympic athletes across the entire state who compete throughout the year.

The Dunk is the third and final event in the Winter Water Series, which has raised nearly $2.5 million for Special Olympics Maryland since 1997. Last month, the Polar Bear Plunge at Sandy Point State Park had an unbelievable 2,212 "Plungers" and raised $442,000.

For further information, persons may visit Special Olympics Maryland's Web site at www.somd.org.

The day before the Dunk, the Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park and Long & Foster Realtors will present the second annual Wisp Tubes of Fire Mountain Reggae Fest from 6 p.m. until midnight at the Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park located at Wisp Deep Creek Mountain Resort in McHenry.

The event will feature six hours of tubing and the popular Maryland Reggae band Mama Jama. A $20 donation to reggae greats Mama Jama, a complimentary meal, entitles participants to a half-price lift ticket, the chance to win ski prizes, and entry into the "Mountain Madness Weekend" prize drawing for tubing down the hill and jamming to the Reggae at the bottom, as well as games,

"AND THEY'RE OFF!" (THEIR ROCKERS?) – The leaders of the pack at the recent Uno's Snowflake Chase are setting forth at the beginning of the January benefit for the Garrett County Chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters. The event set new records by drawing nearly 300 participants, some of whom shattered course times, and by raising $1,600 for the volunteer mentoring organization, more than double last year's proceeds. Conjecture has it that the temperatures, which had "climbed" into the low teens, contributed to the faster race times as participants hustled through the course to get to the complimentary (and warm) food and beverages served during the awards ceremony at Uno's restaurant. More photos and the race results appear in today's sports section. As if this weren't enough, polar bear types will have the opportunity to go jump in a lake on Saturday, Feb. 22, when the Deep Creek Dunk takes place to benefit Maryland Special Olympics; see also the story on this page for details on how to participate in the Dunk.

Local Dog Kennel Damaged By Fire

A fire caused by a heat lamp did an estimated $4,000 in damages to a dog kennel in the Accident area last Thursday afternoon.

Volunteers from the Accident, Bittinger, Grantsville, and Deep Creek fire departments were summoned at 4:46 p.m. after fire was discovered in the 20-by-32-foot wood-frame kennel owned by John Orendorf and located at 1318 Orendorf Road.

According to Deputy State Fire Marshal Jamie Rodeheaver, the fire was caused when a heat lamp came into contact with combustible materials. The fire was quickly contained and damage was limited to the interior of the structure.

Also responding to the scene was the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

MPT Program To Feature Local Maple Syrup Farm

Outdoors Maryland, produced by Maryland Public Television, will air a show Saturday at 5:30 p.m. highlighting a Garrett County farm maple syrup operation.

Steyer Brothers & Sons, located along Gorman Road in Oakland, will be featured in the opening segment of the half-hour broadcast. The camera crew from the show filmed the maple syrup-making process last winter, according to Kay Steyer, who worked with the show's writer.

Steyer's maple products are available in local markets. The farm will also arrange tours for visitors during sugaring season. For information persons may call the Steyer farm at 301-334-2900.

Investigation Leads To Arrest Of Local Man

Investigators with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation arrested an Oakland man after a joint investigation was conducted with the Garrett County Department of Social Services.

Wayne Hill Caple, 62, was charged with second-degree sexual offense, perverted practice, and second-degree assault. According to police, Caple is alleged to have been involved in a sexual act with a handicapped male in January.

The identity of the victim is being withheld by authorities, police said.

Caple was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting a $10,000 unsecured bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

Pa. Car Crash Kills Former Resident And Children; Husband Hospitalized

A car crash on Sunday in Twin Rocks, Pa., took the lives of a former resident and her two children, and seriously injured the husband and father, sole survivor of the family.

Julie, Hailee, and Ian Branthoover, ages 38, 3, and 22 months respectively, were passengers in a van driven by Brian Branthoover, 37, when the vehicle was broadsided by a car driven by a 17-year-old boy, whose identity has not been released pending an investigation. The mother and children were apparently killed instantly, and Brian Branthoover, the teenager, and a female passenger in the teenager's car were injured.

According to reports, the Branthoover vehicle was traveling on Rt. 422 in Twin Rocks, and at the intersection of that route and Cardiff Road at about 3 p.m., the teenager's vehicle smashed into the family's van. Police in Twin Rocks have not yet charged the 17-year-old and have not verified that he ran a stop sign, although family members and other witnesses have made that assertion. The van then smashed into a telephone pole, according to reports.

Both teenagers have since been released from the hospital, but Branthoover was still a patient this morning at the Memorial Medical Center. According to his brother, Eric Branthoover (a long-time resident of Garrett County), Brian suffered fractured ribs and a fractured hand in the accident, among other injuries.

The Branthoovers moved from Garrett County three years ago to Bristow, Va. Funeral services for the mother and children are being handled by the Price Funeral Home in Manassas, Va. While the complete obituaries were not available at press time, some information about the services follows:

A viewing will take place at the Price Funeral Home on Sunday from 2 until 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. The service will be conducted on Monday at 10 a.m. Directions to the funeral home and to the church where the service will take place may be obtained by calling the funeral home at 703-257-6028.

The family has requested that memorials be made in the name of Hailee and Ian Branthoover to Children's Hospital, 111 Michigan Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20010.

The family had been visiting Brian Branthoover's terminally ill father in Black Lick, Pa., over the weekend and were heading back to Bristow when the crash occurred. According to a report in the Pennsylvanian Tribune-Democrat, the intersection of 422 and Cardiff Road has been the site of several deadly crashes in the past decade. Nearby residents are quoted in the article stating that safety improvements are urgently needed at the crossing.

Before relocating to Bristow three years ago, the Branthoover couple resided in Garrett County for about four years and were in business with Garrett's Eden, located along Rt. 219 at Sand Flat Road.

Oakland Man Jailed Twice In Two-Day Span

A 20-year-old Oakland man remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on a $5,000 bond after town police officers arrested him twice over a two-day span.

Gregory Jean Baptiste was initially jailed shortly after 1 p.m. Friday afternoon after he allegedly violated a protective order that had been served against him. Officers responding to the Vista Square Apartments located Baptiste standing on the sidewalk next to the apartment from which he had been banned. He was subsequently released on his own recognizance that same day.

On Saturday Baptiste was arrested at noon after he reportedly assaulted a dispatcher in the lobby of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. An Oakland police officer witnessed the attempt to strike a dispatcher through the open window connecting the lobby and the dispatch room. The dispatcher, who had jumped back in an attempt to avoid the assault, was struck in the arm by Baptiste.

Oakland police immediately took Baptiste into custody on a charge of second degree assault.

Three Separate Accidents Occur Within An Hour

Three separate motor vehicle accidents occurred within one hour in the Oakland area Tuesday due to icy road conditions and blowing snow, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Eileen Sue Cyphert, 52, Terra Alta, W.Va., was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital after her 1998 Jeep Wrangler drove over an embankment and overturned along Herrington Manor Road approximately 1 1/2 miles north of Tomar Drive.

Cyphert was trapped in the vehicle until private citizens and members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and Southern Rescue Squad were able to free her, police said.

Cyphert told police she lost control of her vehicle on the icy roads. She was not charged in the 4:15 p.m. incident, police said.

Approximately 15 minutes earlier, a two-vehicle accident occurred along Herrington Manor Road.

Slick road conditions and

Drop-In Center Harvey House "Here To Help"

Harvey House director Dan Snyder updated the Garrett County commissioners this week on the consumer drop-in center's progress and activities.

"The center has been making a big difference in the lives of residents with mental health illnesses," said Snyder. "We're here to help."

Located at 120 South Third Street in Oakland, the center opened in May 2002. The consumer-run center was named in honor of Louise Harvey of Friendsville, who has been an mental health advocate for many years.

Open four days a week, the center is a place for consumers of mental health services to socialize, make crafts, have Bible studies, hold support group discussions, and address mental health issues.

"It's a wonderful, productive place to be," said volunteer Nora Baker. "There is general feeling of belonging." She noted that being able to socialize with others in Harvey House's friendly setting was very helpful, especially for persons with depression.

All of the center's services are free, said Snyder, including meals and transportation to and from the center. No referrals are necessary.

The director said the center's downtown location also gives consumers "good access" to shops, offices, and the library. "It gives them freedom of choice," he said.

Snyder's wife Kelly is the center's consumer advocate. Working with various agencies, she helps the consumers get their Social Security entitlements, and medications, and with their financial situations.

Volunteers also help out at the center. In particular, veteran Howard Gerard has been a "big help," said Snyder.

A program of the Office of Consumer Advocates (OCA), Hagerstown, Harvey House is funded by the state. Snyder said the center receives $65,000 a year, of which $15,000 is spent on transportation.

Mountain Top Mental Health Associates director Trish Yoder said her agency also allocated $5,000 to the center for transportation.

Commissioner Fred Holliday asked if the center's services were available to all Garrett County residents.

Snyder said they were available to all consumers in the county, but that not all residents were accessing those services. "We try to reach the outlying areas," he

Wide Range Of Issues Addressed By Environmental Health Officer

The Garrett County commissioners heard a department update this week from the Garrett County Health Department's Environmental Health office. Among the topics that health officer Rodney Glotfelty and Environmental Health director Steve Sherrard discussed were department statistics, crows, hot tubs, and home construction at Deep Creek Lake.

"It's all Environmental Health," said Sherrard, noting the many diverse issues that his office has to address. "They're the type of things we deal with every day."

The director gave the commissioners statistics on his department's various activities in 2002. Environmental Health conducted 313 percolation tests, issued 238 septic permits and 338 well permits, and collected 1,855 water samples.

"These guys are working hard," said Glotfelty, noting that staff members sometime collect as many as 50 water samples a week. After the samples are collected, they go to the state lab for testing.

Additionally, the department issued 217 permanent food services permits and 136 temporary food permits, and conducted more than 500 food services inspections.

The director also gave the commissioners a permitting fee schedule. "We're not proposing an increase," Sherrard said. "Our budget's pretty good." There has not been a county fee increase since 1997, he added.

Glotfelty noted, however, that certain fees are "locked in" by the state. The General Assembly would have to pass legislation in order to change those fees.

The health officer also updated the commissioners on the status of autopsies that were conducted on four crows. About 175 dead crows were found in mid December at the State Highway Administration's salt dome off U.S. Route 219, south of Oakland.

The autopsies were conducted by Dr. Jim Fearer, director of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's animal health laboratory. They did not, however, determine conclusively how the birds were killed. The crows may have been purposely or accidentally poisoned by an unknown substance, Glotfelty said. The health officer stressed that the deaths were not because of the West Nile virus.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg noted that large flocks of crows have been roosting in trees in Oakland and Mountain Lake Park. "At dusk, the sky looks almost black there are so many," he said, as the crows come to roost in the pine trees behind his pharmacy in Oakland. The area where they roost looked and smelled like a chicken coop, he said.

Because there are no apparent food sources in the towns, Sherrard said he did not know why the crows were congregating there.

Glotfelty said if the birds continue to be a problem, deterrents such as predators and high frequency sounds could be used. He added, however, that crows were "pretty smart" and not easily deterred.

Another issue that Environmental Health has been addressing is complaints about hot tubs. There are more than 400 hot tubs in rental units around Deep Creek Lake, according to Sherrard.

"We're getting more and more complaints," said Glotfelty, from people who say they have gotten rashes and other aliments after being in the hot tubs.

Sherrard noted that the hot tubs were not under state regulation because the rental units they are in are considered private homes. The rental agencies are responsible for the proper maintenance of the tubs.

Certain diseases can also be transmitted in improperly maintained hot tubs and pools, Sherrard stressed. His office has issued a set of standards for maintaining them to the rental agencies.

The Health Department officials also discussed the increase in new home construction at Deep Creek Lake. With land more highly appraised now, many owners are tearing down their older homes on smaller lots and building bigger homes, said Sherrard.

Many of those older homes have their own systems and are not connected to the Deep Creek Lake sewerage system. As a result, Environmental Health works with the owners to see that the land has proper drainage and has enough room for a new sewerage system.

"What we're trying to do is get these homes up to modern standards the best we can," said Sherrard, but he added, however, that it was not always possible to do so.

Commissioner David Beard asked if sewerage system failures were much of a problem at the lake. If the older homes are on a public system, it is not usually a "big deal," said Sherrard. He noted that many owners with systems that were built in the '50s, '60s, and '70s want to connect to the public system when they build new homes.

Youth Arrested For Alleged 1st Degree Rape

A 18-year-old Baltimore resident was recently arrested by Garrett Bureau of Investigation after receiving information from the Harford County Child Advocacy Center reporting a sexual offense that had occurred in Garrett County in April 2001.

Jason Eugene Servary was charged as an adult with first-degree rape and second-degree assault.

He was released from incarceration after posting a $50,000 bond, police said.

The investigation revealed that Servary, his family, and the victim's family came to Garrett County in April 2001 to stay at the Servary vacation home. During this time period, Servary, then 16 years of age, allegedly threatened an 8-year-old female with a pocket knife if she didn't have intercourse with him. She complied with his request, police said.

New Legislation Targeting Coal-Power Pollution

Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Emissions of two common pollutants from coal-fired power plants would be capped starting in 2008 under legislation proposed Tuesday by a Bowie delegate.

The legislation, proposed by Delegate James Hubbard, D-Bowie, comes on the heels of EPA administrator Christie Whitman's appearance at the State House Tuesday to promote the Bush administration's Clear Skies initiative.

That initiative and other federal government programs aren't doing enough to curb air pollution, Hubbard said, citing the EPA's decision to roll back rules governing pollution control upgrades at older, dirtier plants, a program known as New Source Review. Pollution drifting in from the Ohio Valley is a particular concern, he said, and Maryland will have to work harder to meet federal air quality standards because of it.

"If we're not going to have a federal policy [that solves this], then unfortunately the only way we're going to get attainment is through our own policy," he said.

Hubbard's legislation targets two pollutants — sulfur dioxide, a major component in acid rain, and nitrogen oxide, which creates both ground-level ozone and nitrogen pollution in the Chesapeake Bay.

The Washington and Baltimore metropolitan areas are considered severe ground ozone problem areas by the EPA, and the state must bring the pollution under control by 2005 or risk losing federal transportation dollars.

But the federal government already regulates these emissions, and more state laws will only end up putting a bigger burden on Maryland's power producers, said Douglas Biden, president of the Electric Power Generation Association. The cost of dealing with new regulations could put Maryland power companies at a competitive disadvantage with companies outside the state as deregulation comes into effect, he said. He declined to comment on specifics in the bill, which he had not yet seen.

Each power plant receives its own licenses and permits right now, instead of there being a single across-the-board cap on emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide, said Donna Heron, an EPA spokeswoman.

Hubbard's proposal would introduce the caps in two stages, phasing in the nitrogen oxide cap between 2008 and 2010, and the sulfur dioxide cap between 2010 and 2014. Companies that produced more than 75,000 tons of nitrogen oxide in 2000 would have to reduce that to less than 31,000 by 2010, while companies under the 75,000-ton limit in 2000 would have to cut back to under 25,000 tons by 2008.

For sulfur dioxide, the dividing line would be 225,000 tons, with companies above that level being limited to 80,000 tons by 2014 and companies under 225,000 tons being limited to 50,000 tons by 2014.

In 2001, power plants released about 72,000 tons of nitrogen oxide and about 254,000 tons of sulfur dioxide, according to EPA figures.

If the legislation passes, affected companies would have to file compliance plans with the state by the end of the year.

Ten states, including Maryland, filed suit recently against the EPA, to block the agency from relaxing the New Source Review rules, which are effective March 3.

Teen Driver Bill Makes Eighth Pass In State Senate

by Eric J.S. Townsend
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Kathryn Orosz remembers the January day four years ago when her 17-year-old son died, along with his girlfriend and stepsister, behind the wheel of a yellow Ford Mustang in Calvert County. Michael Vito was playing "leapfrog" with another car when he lost control of his Ford and hit an oncoming U-Haul. The three students perished instantly, the U-Haul driver died less than one month later.

"Our teens are not adults," Orosz told the State Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee Tuesday. "We cannot expect them to always make responsible decisions behind the wheel."

The hearing marked the second time in as many sessions that Orosz, of Crofton, has spoken in favor of a bill sponsored by Sen. Roy Dyson, D-St. Mary's, that would discourage such behavior. But recent history says it may not be her last.

Dyson has advocated passenger restrictions on young drivers since 1996. And for eight years, his efforts have failed in the same committee. Now, Dyson says, statistics favor his position.

"Hey, the evidence keeps piling up and piling up, and that evidence is teenage lives," he said after the hearing.

The bill is simple. For six months after teenage drivers receive their licenses they would not be allowed to transport anyone under 18, except relatives.

"[At] 16 years old, you're 20 times more likely than an adult to die in an automobile accident, and when you're 17, you're six times more likely," said W. Minor Carter, a lobbyist for the American Academy of Pediatrics, which supports the measure.

Witnesses at the hearing said that side conversations, loud music, showboating, and excitement all contribute to statistics that show teenagers are more likely to be involved in accidents than older drivers. Maryland State Police statistics show that for the first half of 2002, there were 39 fatal accidents and 4,009 accidents with injuries involving drivers under 19.

The proposed law would be a secondary offense, meaning if police saw a group of teens together they could not pull their car over unless they saw a violation of some other statute.

Proponents include the state Motor Vehicle Administration, AAA, and the Maryand State Police.

"Our young people are killing not only themselves, but some of us," Dyson said. "We have an opportunity to really save some children's lives."

Not everyone sees it his way, for various reasons. Some opponents said they think that responsible teenage drivers would be unfairly burdened, while others say parents, not legislators, should set driving rules.

"I've always been opposed to these types of bills," said Sen. Alex Mooney, R-Frederick. "Driving is a privilege and there are reasons to restrict it, but this seems to be a blanket restriction."

Student advocates also lambasted the measure. Soham Dave, president of the Maryland Association of Student Councils, said thousands of students rely on carpools to participate in sports and extracurricular activities.

"This bill is unfair, biased, and built with sawdust instead of wood," said Dave, 17, a senior at Chesapeake High School in Pasadena. "It does not take a law. It takes a parent who cares, a parent who will not put his or her child behind the wheel of a 300-horsepower car."

No date was set for the committee vote as of Wednesday afternoon.

Last year's Senate committee defeated the bill 7-4. But recent legislative turnover has brought fresh faces, some of whom appeared more receptive than their predecessors. Still, one returning senator — who voted against the measure in 2002 cast criticism again this week.

"As much as we'd like to make our society risk-free, we're never going to be able to do it," said Sen. Philip Jimeno, D-Anne Arundel. "I think our resources are better spent on public awareness [programs]."

For Orosz, the effort is similar to others that encourage certain behavior. That's why she doesn't understand lawmakers who oppose Dyson yet support other legislation.

"They can not ignore any more the statistics and documentation that has been available for years," she said. "And I can personally say that I feel I am saving lives."

Hospice Receives Grant From Faith In Action Program

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation recently awarded a Faith In Action grant to Faith in Action in Garrett County. The $35,000 grant was awarded as a part of the foundation's commitment to expand its national interfaith volunteer caregiving program.

The funds will be administered and used by Hospice of Garrett County Inc. to recruit and train volunteers and for operating expenses.

Faith in Action grants are awarded to local groups and volunteers of many religions who work together to care for their neighbors with long-term illnesses or disabilities.

"We are very honored to have received this grant," said Brenda Butscher, executive director of Hospice. "We welcome the support to help us recruit patient volunteers from the local churches and our community. Patient volunteers provide emotional support and care for the terminally ill."

A new training class for Faith in Action volunteers will begin on March 29. For more information, persons may call 301-334-5151.

"Please call if you can afford a few hours of volunteering to be with our patients and their families," said Butscher.

Volunteer activities may include shopping for groceries, cooking meals, doing light housework, running errands, and providing companionship through visiting or telephone calls. They also may provide respite care and relief for family caregivers.

Volunteers come from churches and other houses of worship, as well as the community at large. With this volunteer assistance, members of the community who are terminally ill can maintain their independence for as long as possible, according to a Faith in Action press release.

"Faith in Action is built on the values that all religions have in common: a mandate to do good works by helping those who need assistance," said national director Burton V. Reifler, MD, MPH.

Headquartered in Winston-Salem, N.C., the program has been supported by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation since 1983. In 2001, the foundation committed $100 million to expand the Faith in Action national movement.

Currently, the Faith in Action network is composed of more than 1,100 programs nationwide, according to a foundation spokesperson.

The Robert Wood Foundation, based in Princeton, N.J., is reportedly the nation's largest philanthropy devoted exclusively to health and health care. It concentrates its grant making in four goal areas: to assure that all Americans have access to basic health care at reasonable cost; to improve care and support for people with chronic health conditions; to promote healthy communities and lifestyles; and to reduce the personal, social, and economic harm caused by substance abuse.

Accidents Occur

blowing snow were factors in the accident, police said.

The drivers involved in the accident were Amanda Grose, Terra Alta, W.Va., and Lisa Rodeheaver, Oakland. A citation is pending, police said.

At approximately 4:40 p.m., deputies responded to an accident at the intersection of Harvey Winters Drive and Broadford Road.

According to police, a 16-year-old of Swanton was attempting to stop at the intersection, but slid on the icy road into the path of a 1992 Chevy truck, operated by Edward Putnam, 49, Mtn. Lake Park.

The juvenile operator and a juvenile passenger were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for injuries.

Charges are pending, police said.

The Oakland fire department also responded to the scene.

PAWS, Republican Sponsoring Spay Day Essay Contest

Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS) and The Republican newspaper are sponsoring an essay-writing contest in observance of Spay Day USA, which is Feb. 25.

The contest is open to middle school and high school age persons throughout the area. Writers are being asked to submit a creative essay, either in their voice or the voice of an animal (cat, dog or other companion animal), which will persuade people to have their pets spayed or neutered.

Helpful information about the benefits of spaying and neutering can be found at local libraries, by contacting the Doris Day Animal Foundation at www.ddaf.org, or from the American Partnership for Pets Web site at www.americanpartnershipforpets.org.

Prizes of $100, $75 and $50 United States Savings Bonds, courtesy of F&M Bank, will be awarded to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place winners. Winning entries will be announced in early March, and will also be published in The Republican during that month.

The contest deadline is Feb. 28. Submissions should be no more than 300 words, typewritten, double spaced, and include the author's name, address, phone number, age/school year, name of school attended or whether home schooled, and a word count.

Celebrated annually for the past eight years, Spay Day USA is a national event sponsored by the Doris Day Animal Foundation and PetsMart Charities to bring attention to the pet overpopulation crisis in America. Each Spay Day, pet guardians across the country are encouraged to have at least one cat or dog, their own or that of a friend or neighbor, spayed or neutered. Animal Welfare groups are encouraged to participate by holding spay/neuter events of all kinds to increase public awareness.

This year the Spay Day theme is "Help Stamp Out Pet Over-Population Neuter or Spay – It's a First Class Act." The theme ties in directly with the September 20, 2002, release of the U.S. Postal Service's first class spay and neuter postage stamps. PAWS, Post Office employees, and local officials celebrated that occasion with a public stamp unveiling ceremony in Oakland.

PAWS also used the opportunity to launch an ongoing spay/neuter education program with the help of local businesses such as Taco Bell and civic organizations such as the Jr. Woman's Civic Club. A Spay/Neuter Poster Contest for children in grades 1 through 8 was held last fall. This essay contest is a continuation of the spay/neuter education effort.

"This contest is our attempt to reach older children with the message that a pet overpopulation crisis exists all across the United States, including Garrett County, and that the tragic euthanasia of nearly 5 million animals annually can be avoided, if pet owners would only have their animals spayed or neutered before they reach breeding age. An essay is also a good way to give kids who care about animals a voice and a way to possibly have an impact," said Annette Robinson, PAWS president.

Questions about the essay contest can be answered by calling a PAWS volunteer at 301-334-2699. Completed essays should be mailed to Spay/Neuter Essay Contest, c/o The Republican, P.O. Box 326, Oakland, MD 21550. They must be postmarked by Feb. 28.

Representatives from both PAWS and The Republican newspaper will serve as judges of the contest. Entrants are advised to adhere strictly to the word limit (up to 300 words) and the deadline noted above.

The judges reserve the right to disqualify entries that do not adhere to the rules, as well as to award prizes only in the event that adequate entries are received.

Police Arrest Woman Twice In Four Days

Jann Fitzwater Swiger, 45, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested twice by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in four days, both stemming from a disturbance at the residence of James Tucker along White Church Steyer Road.

According to police, Swiger entered the residence on Friday night and contacted Tucker in violation of an active peace order pending against her by Tucker. She was placed under arrest, and was charged with violation of a peace order.

On Monday night, deputies responded to the Tucker residence again for a reported disturbance. According to police, Swiger entered the residence, refused to leave, and assaulted Tucker.

Swiger was arrested and charged with second-degree assault, fourth-degree burglary, trespassing, and harassment.

Swiger was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $2,500 bond.

GC Towns Slate Community Legacy Kick-Off Meetings

Communities throughout Garrett County recently received funding from the Community Legacy Program to develop intensive individual strategic plans. Participating in the first round of the strategic planning process will be Friendsville, Grantsville, and Loch Lynn.

The process will help the municipalities identify development opportunities, community resources, and required financing to fully achieve the potential for their commercial and residential areas.

Residents of the three towns are invited to participate in the process. Kick-off meetings will be held on the following days from 6 until 9 p.m.:

- In Grantsville on Monday, Feb. 24, at the Grantsville Senior Center. The snow date is March 3.
- In Friendsville on Tuesday, Feb. 25, Friendsville Senior Center. The snow date is March 4.
- In Loch Lynn on Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Loch Lynn Community Center. The snow date is March 6.

The Community Legacy Program is administered by the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development.

"The program provides funding for a wide range of important activities for local governments, including the strategic plans for our municipalities," said Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

The agency has contracted with Terrell Ellis & Associates, a consulting firm in Charleston, W.Va., to facilitate the strategic planning process. The firm specializes in community and economic development planning and has extensive experience in working with rural communities like those in Garrett County, according to a company spokesperson.

Officials in the three towns are currently identifying development opportunities and will spend the next few months developing usable action plans that address those opportunities.

"We are expecting a big change in Grantsville with the location of ClosetMaid Industries," said Mayor Gerald Beachy. "We are looking forward to working with Terrell Ellis & Associates to plan for this future growth."

Friendsville mayor Spencer Schlosnagle is also looking forward to developing tourism in his town.

"We consider our community 'The Friendliest Little Town in Maryland,'" he said. "I'm confident that this strategic planning process will be very beneficial for Friendsville. We're excited to explore the prospect of tourism development provided us by our location near the [Youghiogheny] River and looking for opportunities to strengthen our commercial district."

Loch Lynn mayor Larry Friends said he hopes that the process will address many issues, including business and recreation development.

"I think the planning process will present a great opportunity for the town of Loch Lynn and its citizens to voice their input about areas of the town that need to be revitalized," he said.

For more information on the meetings or the strategic planning process, persons may call Beachy at 301-895-3144, Schlosnagle at 301-746-5919, or Friend at 301-334-8339.

Local Residents Charged With Theft Of Skis

A combined investigation involving the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force and the Garrett Bureau of Investigation culminated in the arrests of two local residents for recent thefts of ski equipment at the Wisp Ski Resort, McHenry.

Jonathan David Jones, 24, and his wife, Salena D. Jones, 25, both of Oakland, were arrested after a traffic stop was initiated by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, which revealed not only a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) and paraphernalia, but also stolen skis in the vehicle.

According to police, after the Task Force and GBI executed a subsequent search and seizure warrant of the couple's residence, additional stolen ski equipment was found.

Both individuals were arrested and charged with one count of possession of marijuana, one count of possession of CDS paraphernalia, and two counts of felony theft.

The investigation is continuing to determine if the couple is responsible for other thefts at the resort since Salena Jones is an employee of the resort, police added.

We Can't Stop...

The very first human beings just had to know what lay beyond the next mountain ridge, and though they knew it might be dangerous to try to go there, they did it anyway. If they found a cave, they had to know what was inside. When oceanic travel became possible, they had to know what, if anything, lay across the vast seas, and they went there, despite the fact that they knew they could lose their lives in the attempt.

Risking life and limb to climb the highest mountains, explore the ocean floors, and travel to the poles all followed. Then, with most of the frontiers on Earth explored many times over, and with the secret of aerial travel discovered, humankind set its sites upon the heavens, and for over four decades have been traveling beyond Earth's atmosphere to see what's out there. To date we have been willing to take the huge risks of space travel, despite losing a number of lives in several tragic incidents.

Interestingly enough, at the memorial service on Monday for the space shuttle Columbia astronauts killed on Saturday there was a unified plea from the family members of the astronauts that manned space exploration be continued. One might predict that the persons suffering the greatest agony from this loss would request just the opposite, that the risk to continue is just too great, that if only this had been heeded before, their loved ones would still be alive. But they understood the passion for exploration that these loved ones possessed, that intense desire – the absolute need – to go over that next mountain range and find out what is there.

Without exploration, albeit sometimes dangerous, there can be no discovery. So we agree that space exploration must continue. Are there safety issues that need to be addressed? Undoubtedly. And obviously all future shuttle flights should be delayed until these issues can be clearly identified and addressed. Are there situations in which robotic "astronauts" should continue to be used instead of human beings, at least for the foreseeable future? Absolutely. But to decide that we just aren't going to go there anymore would be asking human beings to do the impossible.

To the Editor:

The other night I heard our president state that America is not a nation of conquerors; that we are not out to conquer Iraq. I suspect Native Americans may disagree, as we pushed them from the shores of the Atlantic to the plains of North Dakota. Or the Mexicans, as we took over Texas and other parts of the Southwest. As we formed our nation we took what we wanted and fought wars on our own land to take control of America's rich resources. We called it expansionism. To the ones that lost, I suspect they felt conquered."

In any event, the president has decided that we must fear Iraq and its undefined weapons of mass destruction. I found myself reading and agreeing with Pat Buchanan (and I hope it was a one-time event) a few weeks ago when he reminded us that Turkey was not afraid and calling for a change of regime in Iraq. Nor was Iran or Saudi Arabia or even Kuwait. They are the closest to the danger, but were not calling for preemptive war to rid the world of Saddam. But thousands of miles away we are living in fear. Has the president ever shown any proof positive of Saddam's relationship with Bin Laden? No. Are we not still at war with terrorists?

After twisting arms at the UN (and promising things you or I will never know about) to get support of countries that do not share our fear, the president may eventually get to do what he has wanted all along. He wants to exact revenge for his father's failings and seize control of a good part of the world's oil while deposing Saddam. Anyone who doubts this is about oil is naive enough to buy the Brooklyn Bridge, twice!

We are about to kill tens of thousands of men, women, and children to help mend a failed president's pride and increase his and his friends' wealth from oil. The internal combustion engine is out of date. It pollutes the air we breathe and the water we drink. If we took the money we are going to spend killing innocent people on both sides of this war and spent it on development of alternative fuel, such as hydrogen fuel cell technology, we would lessen our dependence on foreign oil all together, and Iraq would be no one's worry.

For those who say Saddam may have weapons of mass destruction, I say, who doesn't? North Korea, Pakistan, India, Russia, China, England, and possibly Iran and other countries from the former Soviet block have them too. And the U.S. We all claim we have them as a deterrent from outside aggression. What is so wrong about that? Why shouldn't Iraq have the ability to defend itself against an aggressor? After all, Pakistan, India, and Iran are all right there with the same type of weaponry.

The bottom line is, we are severely altering our foreign policy to become the aggressor, the invader, the conqueror, and for the same reasons there has always been war, greed.

To the Editor:

I am writing you as a means to encourage adults in the county who are not "gainfully" employed, that is, who do not receive wages that meet the Self-Sufficiency Standard for Garrett County, to consider applying for Earned Income Credit.

Earned Income Credit (EIC) is a tax benefit for people who work full-time or part-time. Payments vary based on income and family size. Many working families will get up to $4,800. Workers can claim the EIC, even if they do not owe income tax, simply by filing federal and state income tax returns. The EIC does not affect food stamps, Medicaid, public housing benefits, cash assistance, or SSI.

Households may qualify for the federal and state EIC if, in 2002, they were raising one child and earned less than $29,201 ($30,291 for married workers); were raising two or more children and earned less than $33,178 ($34,178 for married workers); and, had no children, earned less than $11,060 ($12,060 for married workers) and were between 25 and 64.

The Maryland Committee for Children has launched a statewide campaign to get information out to workers who may qualify for this tax credit. The Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. is always looking for ways to support families to support themselves. EIC provides a resource to local families who otherwise might go without basic necessities for their children.

If interested, please call 1-800-492-0618 for information about Earned Income Credit, locations for free tax preparation, and information on claiming the EIC for the past 3 years.

According to the campaign – Take the money. You've earned it!

Sincerely,
Susan Athey-Oxford

Another one of Deep Creek Lake's businesses has passed to new ownership. John and Elaine Marple have sold their business after nearly 50 years of providing service to the fishing, hunting, and boating public at Deep Creek Lake. Johnny's Bait House has been on the lake for two-thirds of its existence. One can only imagine that when John started selling fish worms about the only thing going on Deep Creek was fishing.

I understand that John starting selling bait from a little shed. He must have been an enterprising young boy when he started selling fish worms. Just look at John. It doesn't seem possible that he has been operating a business for nearly 50 years. It has been rumored that John had a very large "stud worm" that he kept locked under safe and key that contributed to his success. I asked him if he was planning to sell it at the auction. He just laughed.

Just think of the number of people, particularly the young boys and girls, who enjoyed fishing on the lake and received supplies and tips from John. Johnny's map of the lake was used extensively as a tool to get to the favorite fishing hole. All of the fishing contests over the years that John either sponsored or was the source of record keeping promoted fishing on the lake. Until the big-box retailers came into prominence Johnny's was the source of most of the area's hunting supplies. John's good friend, Bill Burton, wrote and reported many stories about hunting and fishing in Garrett County. It would be interesting to know just how many hunting and fishing licenses Johnny's has sold over the years.

The familiar faces are disappearing from the businesses on the lake. Not many are left. I suppose we call this progress. Johnny's is another example of a local youth taking a chance, working long and hard hours, and turning an idea into a successful business. That business has contributed to the growth and development of Deep Creek Lake. It's sad to see it go.

On behalf of the entire lake community, I think that I can say to John and Elaine, thank you for your friendship and support over the many, many years of providing a valuable service and giving of yourselves for many public, civic, and charitable causes. May you enjoy the fruits of your many years of labor.

Just one question, John – now where is Tom Graham going to hang out?

Sincerely yours,
Wendell R. Beitzel

To the Editor:

Last week's letters to the editor hit on some very good points. I am happy to see the people of Garrett County speaking their minds. I would like to say a few words about two of these letters.

First, to Kim Knox, I would like to say Bravo! I am glad to see that I am not the only parent out there expressing my opinion to the board of education. I have phoned the BOE many times due to concerns of buses traveling in the inclement weather. I realize that this is Garrett County, and snow is a part of our lives here; however, when conditions become dangerous, the board of education shouldn't even have to think about closing school. It should be an automatic response. Yes, children and teachers may have to go to school a few extra days this summer, but at least they will be alive and well.

The second letter I would like to comment on is that written by Laura Skipper. I am pleased to know that teenagers still have values and that they value life. Abortion should not be a right. Women have the right to choose if they are going to have a sexual relationship with someone. When they choose to have a sexual relationship, they are also choosing to take a chance on becoming pregnant. They know the chance they are taking. Young girls as well as older women need to put their hormones aside, and rationally think about the fact that they could become a mother, and need to decide if they are ready. If they aren't, then they need to take a stand for their body. I know that is not something most women want to think about; however, if more women would think, we would have fewer abortions in this country. Ms. Skipper, I applaud you for taking such a difficult stand at such a young age.

Sincerely,
Wendy Jones

To the Editor:

The events of this past Saturday morning with the loss of the space shuttle Columbia and the death of its crew have caused me to pause many times over these several days and reflect on their meaning.

I am very much a child of the space age. I was less than 2 years old when the Sputnik first orbited this planet on October 4, 1957. I was 5 years old and just beginning school when Alan Shephard entered space in his Redstone rocket on May 5, 1961. This was followed shortly afterwards by John Glenn orbiting the Earth three times in February 1962. When Neil Armstrong landed the lunar module and walked on the moon on July 20, 1969, I can remember every detail as a riveting memory from my high school days. I had returned to Garrett County and was working in Oakland for less than a year when the Challenger shuttle exploded in January 1986. That memory is similar to the one of President Kennedy's assassination in that I can remember where I was at and the emotions felt when I first learned of the explosion. This Saturday – February 1, 2003 – will be a similar memory because of the loss of the Columbia.

Dreams of being an astronaut are part of almost every childhood, and I was no different from anyone else. As I built my first telescope I looked into my own October skies and dreamed of the future. I became enamored with science, and that love is an integral part of my life today. As I sit at my computer and type this note I am surrounded by pieces of technology and scientific knowledge which are at least partly, if not completely, a result of the learning that allowed the space program to progress.

As I listened to the initial reports of this explosion and much speculation on the news, I couldn't help but think that we should stop and reflect on the individuals in the Columbia shuttle. The essence of these people and their endeavor may be lost in the mountains of minutiae now spewing forth upon the airways and may, in some way, belittle their legacy.

They had the opportunity to live their dream and be an astronaut, and by so doing were also living our dream. Without a doubt, they were as alive as any of us can ever be, and died in this effort. We should all be blessed enough to die while fully alive and living out our dreams. Perhaps, especially in this day of terrorism and impending war, we all need a grand adventure to which we can aim our telescope and with our imagination visualize a brighter future. Instead of our past westward manifest destiny, we should continue to advance towards the "starward" destiny of our future.

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your editorial last week (Jan. 30, 2003) and to the recent letters concerning school delays and cancellations.

I believe that most parents, as well as myself, agree with your editorial, as far as it being difficult to predict the weather in Garrett County. I also believe that Mr. Refosco and Mr. Teets make some very tough decisions. My concern, however, is the same as that of Ms. Jones in her

THE COLUMBIA DISASTER

Q. I thought the dangerous part of space travel was the rocket blast off. What happened to the space shuttle Columbia?

Neither NASA nor anyone else has all the answers yet, but it appears the space shuttle suffered a form of "component failure" that hasn't been seen before.

The most dangerous time of any flight is not the take off, but the landing. Among airplane pilots, there is an old saying that "takeoffs are optional; landings are mandatory." This is doubly true for travel into space.

The activity of coming back into the atmosphere at high speed is called re-entry. It is a very advanced combination of science and engineering.

In orbit, a spacecraft travels faster than 11,000 miles per hour. As it starts to descend for a landing, that number has to drop below 1,000 miles per hour well before the landing strip comes into sight. Since energy goes as velocity squared, this means that 99% of the energy of the space vehicle has to be eliminated as the vehicle descends through the atmosphere. The only way to throw away energy is to transfer it to air molecules. All that kinetic energy of the moving spacecraft has to turn into hot air.

At an altitude of a million feet (200 miles up), there are so few air molecules that virtually no energy is exchanged; the "drag" force is zilch. At 500,000 feet the drag effect of the atmosphere is still tiny, but at 300,000 feet it's noticeable. By 200,000 feet the density of the atmosphere is enough to cause a major braking effect on the spacecraft. That doesn't take all that many molecules; the density is still far less than on the surface of the earth, and no one could breathe at the air density of 200,000 feet.

200,000 feet is about the place where the slowing effect is the greatest: which means, where the drag force is greatest and where the stress on the spacecraft is greatest. Below about 150,000 feet the speed is reduced and the heat-transfer burden is lessened – the spacecraft is "out of the woods."

Any spacecraft is covered with a heat shield made of a most interesting material: it doesn't just absorb heat and store it; the material is designed to get rid of heat. Nearly 40 years ago, G.E. invented a material named Refrasil® that is a combination of silica glass fibers and a chemical called phenolic; this material ablates, which means lots of tiny flakes of it tear off gradually and go off into the air. As they do so, the pieces take away heat with them. The early spacecraft, such as the Apollo voyages to the moon, all had such coatings, which only had to be used once. Today the various Apollo capsules are on display in various museums.

The space shuttle has a large fraction of its front and bottom surfaces coated with ceramic tiles that can survive up to very high temperatures. Just like bricks glowing red in an oven, ceramic tiles throw away heat by radiation. If a brick in an oven is missing, it lets an awful lot of heat through the opening. If any of those ceramic tiles should be missing, the intense friction with the air will deposit heat right into the underlying metal of the vehicle. It's hot enough to melt aluminum.

How could any tiles be missing? That's a mystery being investigated right now. Could the glue that held the tiles in place have deteriorated, so that some of them vibrated loose? In the case of Columbia, it was observed in films of the lift-off that some debris fell down past the space shuttle as it was rising. Did that debris knock away some tiles? We may never know.

Over the years, the public has become complacent and inattentive as NASA has flown one successful mission after another. But in any form of space travel, there is always danger. An awful lot of energy is being transferred from one form to another. Engineers know that great care is required to make the whole system work right, and the failure of even "boring" components – like bricks or ceramic tiles – can spell disaster.

Never doubt for a moment the bravery of those who venture into space.

Letters

letter of Jan. 16, 2003.

On Jan. 8, 2003, they started with a two-hour delay. This was expected since there were several roads closed due to the blowing and drifting snow. There were also several accidents that morning, one of which caused Route 50 in our area to be closed. But, despite the severe road conditions, the board decided it would be better to put a few thousand young lives in danger rather than cancel school and add another day at the end of the school year. I, along with several other parents, called the board that morning to express our concern, but it seemed to fall on deaf ears. This is just one example of the carelessness of Mr. Refosco and Mr. Teets.

As to the concerns of Ms. Knox's letter last week, I strongly agree with her about the severe cold temperatures. On one of these mornings, my children's bus became disabled due to the fuel gelling up because of the bitter cold. If I had not been able to sit with them at the bus stop in our car, they would have been exposed to the sub-zero temperatures for at least a half an hour before another bus took a detour to pick them up. While the second bus was picking up children on our route, he could have had children on his own route standing in the bitter cold. Then there were the children on the disabled bus; who knows how long they waited for a warm ride.

Anyone who lives in Garrett County knows how difficult it can be to predict the weather here. My point is that, when the weather is already here, the board should take it seriously and stop putting our children's lives on the line. Having our children go to school a few more days in the summer will be a lot better than not having them at all because someone sitting at the board in Oakland says the roads are safe throughout the county.

To the Editor:

Your editorial on the slot machines of 23 January 2003 wandered in so many directions and had so many mixed metaphors that I frankly got confused after awhile. The subject, of course, is that of gambling and the introduction of further gambling into the state of Maryland by using slot machines. Some of us older folks can remember when southern Maryland, in our youth, had slots machines in every conceivable location, including restaurants, bars, grocery stores, etc., and they were omnipresent. They were outlawed because of concerns about the gambling and what it was doing to families as well as to some of the criminal element that came in trying to control it.

The basic motivation for gambling is an attempt to get something for nothing; that is, to gain monies without working for it. For the idle rich, this is great fun and diversation and causes no pain to them. However, the majority of the people who gamble are people who work hard for their money and need it for family expenses. If they gamble it away it causes hardships. You point out correctly that it is a choice to be made, but unfortunately, the addiction of gambling frequently overrides choice.

For some reason you got off the deep end in talking about alcohol and ice cream and automobile driving, which seemed to be far off the point. There is a moral issue in gambling, and whether the state of Maryland has already introduced gambling through horse racing and lotteries, it does not excuse bringing in further modes of gambling just because gambling is already here. You point out that the state is in deficit budget because they have spent too much money. I assume that any money made by gambling will be used to further spend for the needs of the state. The citizens will have to decide whether or not they wish that money spent or they want to tighten their belt and decrease the spending.

I find it ironic that on page A-3 of that issue there is an article noting that Gov. Erlich has boosted the mental health funding while cutting tobacco and cancer programs, two of the major leading health concerns in the state. It is also of note that the new governor has cut the budget of the Dept. of the Environment, the Dept. of Natural Resources, the Waste Management Administration dealing with lead paint and recycling, the Fishery Service, and the Chesapeake and Coastal Watershed services managing the Bay and the watersheds. It seems tragic to allow our state to deteriorate through these cuts. So we have parodox, to find more money, but not raise taxes and maybe use gambling funds instead. There are talks suggesting expanding the presence of slots to a more general distribution. Where in Garrett County would you suggest they be placed?

Sincerely yours,
George E. Urban Jr.

To The Editor:

An innocent life is snuffed out every few seconds in America's animal shelters. Some of these animals have been given up because of behavior problems. Many others just had the bad luck to be part of an unwanted litter, born to parents who had not been spayed or neutered. Most had the potential to be loving pets. All deserved to live full lives as cherished companions.

Although animals suffer the most from this tragic state of affairs, there is a human cost as well. American taxpayers pick up the tab for this misery to the tune of over $1 billion per year, deeply cutting into other social programs. And preliminary results from the Institute for Psychological Research and Application at Bowling Green State University show that 75% of shelter employees experience euthanasia-related stress in the form of nightmares, depression, loss of sleep, and difficulty concentrating."

Spay/Neuter is a proven means of successfully addressing these problems. While the number of cats and dogs kept as pets has increased by 116% since 1973, the euthanasia rate has fallen from 13 million to approximately 5 million today, thanks to the implementation of spay/neuter and educational programs. Spay/neuter works because it prevents the births of unwanted litters, and it eliminates the risk of a number of serious health and behavior problems — conditions which often lead people to give up their pets. To put it simply, spay/neuter is good for the animals, their guardians, and the community.

Spay Day USA, a national program sponsored by the Doris Day Animal Foundation to promote the spaying and neutering of companion animals, is Feb. 25. 'A' number of spay/neuter activities will take place in Garrett County over the next several weeks, as local animal welfare organizations seek to observe this event by increasing public awareness of the benefits of altering companion animals. The Garrett County Humane Society will soon be launching its annual Spay Neuter Awareness Month program. Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety, as part of its ongoing education program, is joining with The Republican to launch a month-long essay writing contest for area children of middle and high school age, on the benefits of spaying and neutering. (See article in today's paper for details.)

I urge area citizens to participate in these events in whatever way you can. If you have a pet that is already altered, thanks, and good for you! If you know of someone who needs to have an animal spayed or neutered, make sure they are aware of assistance that is available. Contact the Garrett County Animal Shelter — they can direct you. Consider donating the cost of a spaying or neutering to the pet of someone you don't know.

The way we treat our fellow creatures speaks volumes about who we are as human beings and how we are likely to treat each other. Do your part to help end the suffering of homeless, unwanted animals. Support spay/neuter, animal rescue, and animal adoption efforts.

Thank you.

Howard County Man Jailed For DUI After Wreck

Maryland state troopers who were assisting the driver of a vehicle that slid into a ditch Tuesday arrested the motorist for driving while under the influence (DUI).

Montgomery Co. Men Arrested On CDS Charges

An early Monday morning traffic stop along Interstate 68 resulted in the arrest of two Montgomery County men on drug charges, according to Barrack W of the Maryland State Police.

Laine Andrew Baker, 20, Bethesda, and Justin Stuart Shapiro, 19, Silver Spring, were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after the 12:30 a.m. traffic stop near Shade Hollow Road. The stop was initially made for a speeding violation.

Both Baker and Shapiro were subsequently released on their own recognizance.

Oakland Traffic Stop Results In Marijuana Bust

Oakland Police officers jailed five people early Saturday morning after suspected marijuana was discovered in a car during a traffic stop on Oak Street.

At approximately 12:15 a.m. officers stopped a blue Mazda sedan for failure to drive to the right of center. After a K-9 police dog scan indicated the possible presence of drugs, the vehicle was searched and a smoking pipe bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue was discovered.

Arrested at the scene were the driver, who was a juvenile, and four passengers, two of whom were also juveniles. The remaining passengers were adults, Jamie Lee Shiflett, 19, Terra Alta, W.Va., and Joshua Aaron Donoghue, 18, Mtn. Lake Park.

Each suspect was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Shiflett and Donoghue were released on their own recognizance, while each of the juveniles was released into the custody of their parents.

Rte. 495 Closed After Tractor Trailer Jackknifes

Route 495 was closed for 1 1/2 hours early Tuesday afternoon after a tractor trailer jackknifed in the vicinity of Bittinger Road and Spring Lick Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

James Michael Bishop, 49, Cumberland, was operating the 1996 Altoona Pipe and Steel tractor trailer southbound on Route 495 when it slid on the icy roadway, struck an embankment, and jackknifed before coming to rest across the road.

Bishop was not injured in the 1:21 p.m. incident.

Speaker Claims Garrett County's Economy Is Steadily Evolving

The national economy is struggling through an "ugly soft patch" while Garrett County continues steadily along its course toward economic evolution. This was the message delivered by the featured speaker, economist Anirban Basu, at the "Our Story" conference last Friday at Garrett College, presented by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and co-sponsored by Smith Content, a Baltimore-based marketing company.

Billed as a "strategic thinking conference," the forum brought together experts in technology, politics, education, business, and rural development to examine present trends in the national, state, and local economy. In addition to delineating current economic conditions, presenters and seminar leaders suggested tools to enhance growth in Garrett County businesses.

Basu, who hosts a public information radio broadcast in Baltimore, reviewed statistics on public confidence, unemployment, and retail and real estate sales, among others. "Anirban has an amazing ability to take a seemingly dry topic like economics and animate it with humor and intelligent wit. He held the complete attention of all 100 plus people in room. Outbursts of laughter from the audience peppered his presentation," said chamber president Charlie Ross.

Funneling the economic statistics to the local level, Basu showed Garrett County's growth in key industries: construction, finance, health, retail, and administrative services. Growth in the local housing market, he pointed out, has outstripped regional and state levels. According to Basu's charts, the median home price in Garrett in December 2001 was $159,000 and in December 2002, $179,900, while neighboring Allegany County reflected a decline in the same period from $74,500 in 2001 to $72,000 in 2002.

In summation, Basu noted, "Because the county's transformation has been so rapid and profound, policy makers must pay special attention to workforce development so that citizens may partake in new opportunities and industries may expand predictably."

Carol Hirschburg, a public relations consultant in the Baltimore/Washington area, spoke about the 2002 state gubernatorial election and the outlook for businesses under the administration of Gov. Robert Ehrlich.

Dr. David Barbe of the Maryland Technology Enterprise Institute at the University of Maryland discussed educational programs to promote new technology ventures and strengthen businesses.

In afternoon seminars, Kim Scott Carl of Genesis Publishing & Advertising presented brochure marketing for businesses; John Starling of Smith Content and Macdonald-Starling Strategic Planning and Development LLC, discussed use of the interactive marketing model; Hannah Byron, director of the Maryland Office of Tourism Development, spoke on tourism marketing; Bill Walker, States Representative for the Appalachian Regional Commission and Duane Yoder of Garrett County Community Action addressed issues of rural development; and Chuck Manto of TLA Associates in conjunction with the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland examined ways to improve access to broadband infrastructure in western Maryland to "cross the economic divide."

Jim Hinebaugh, director of Garrett County Economic Development Department, attended the conference and applauded the concept of such a symposium in Garrett County. "I commend the chamber for taking the lead in this. Certainly it is something that I would like to see repeated annually. This office would offer to join the chamber to co-host the conference next year," he said.

Hinebaugh noted that not only did the conference provide a great deal of information, but speakers also validated programs and policies being developed and pursued in the county. "Basu talked about the need to upgrade the skills base through education. That is what we are doing in our programs with the college and the board of education. We are developing adult trades training courses for that purpose," he explained.

BASU NOTES SPIKES IN ECONOMY – Leading economist Anirban Basu addressed more than 100 attendants at the "Our Story" Conference sponsored by Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and Smith Content. He described an evolution in Garrett County's economy exemplified in spiraling real estate values. See story for more details.

Town Council Candidates
by Lucretia Sines

Municipal voting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 11, at the town hall from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Residents of Friendsville will be voting for three town council members to hold office for the next two years. The four candidates who are running for town council are Jane Fox, Wayne Friend, Robert Sines, and Philip Smith.

Jane Fox is a life-long resident of Friendsville and is well known in the community. She has a master's degree from Frostburg University in the field of elementary education and spent 26 years in the Garrett County School system. She participates in both Grace Lutheran and Friendsville Methodist churches. Since her retirement as principal at Friendsville Elementary School, she has served on several county boards and is presently serving on the Garrett County Historical Society board.

Mrs. Fox expressed her love for Friendsville and the desire to help improve it. "After 9/11 and seeing the unrest and terror in the world, I appreciate living in a small American town so I would like to contribute some service to the town" stated Jane. " The affairs of the town should be conducted in a fair and just manner and I would like to see progressive change for the betterment of all citizens. Communication between the town council and its citizens is vital to improve understanding and harmony. I would hope to create an interest in the town government by younger citizens."

Wayne Friend is a longtime resident of Friendsville and has served on the town council for eight years. He says he enjoys the job by getting out around the town and keeping in touch with all of the things that need to be done. He is a member of the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad, Lions Club, VFW, and American Legion, and is a retired Marine from WWII. He attends the Friendsville United Methodist Church and is a retired truck driver after over 40 years. As a Lions Club member, he helped to get the project of the Friendsville Town Park started and has worked on it during his eight years as a council member.

Robert Sines was born and reared in Friendsville and is the father of five children. He is an active member of the WOW Lodge 45 as escort, and also served on the WOW board. He has served six years as a member of the town council and during his time has helped work on the town park. He is also proud of his role in trying to keep the voice of the people being heard and carried out, which he feels he is sometimes alone in doing. He would like to achieve the repaving of our town streets and continue to serve the residents of Friendsville.

Philip Smith was born in Cumberland and has been a resident of Friendsville for the last seven years, where he resides on Maple Street. He has been pastor of the Freedom Chapel for over five years and an entrepreneur of the Candlesmith Candle Company. Mr. Smith is married and has two young sons, is an Air Force veteran, is on the Friendsville Planning Commission, and is a Northern youth basketball league coach. He decided to run for town council to get more involved in the town that he loves.

"I would like to see Friendsville prosper," stated Phil," and one of my goals is to try to improve the growth of businesses. I think it would be great to sit down as town residents and council members with the business property owners to talk about possibilities. It would be great to also bring the historical value of the town out by improving the sign introducing the town and give the street signs a facelift. I think by becoming a member of the town council I would give a different perspective."

Remember to get out on Feb. 11 and vote. Your vote can make a difference.

"When Tomorrow Starts Without Me"
by David M. Romano

When tomorrow starts without me
And I'm not there to see;
If the sun should rise and find your eyes
All filled with tears for me.

I wish so much you wouldn't cry
The way you did today;
While thinking of the many things
We didn't get to say.

I know how much you love me...
As much as I love you;
And each time that you think of me,
I know you'll miss me too.

But when tomorrow starts without me
Please try to understand,
That an angel came and called my name
And took me by the hand.

She said my place was ready
In heaven far above;
And that I'd have to leave behind,
All those I dearly love.

But as I turned to walk away,
A tear fell from my eye;
For all my life, I'd always thought
I didn't want to die.

I had so much to live for
So much yet to do;
It seemed almost impossible,
That I was leaving you.

I thought of all the yesterdays,
The good ones and the bad;
I thought of all the love we shared,
And all the fun we had.

If I could relive yesterday
Just even for awhile,
I'd say goodbye and kiss you
And maybe see you smile.

But then I fully realized
That this could never be;
For emptiness and memories
Would take the place of me.

And when I thought of worldly things
I might miss come tomorrow;
I thought of you, and when I did,
My heart was filled with sorrow.

But when I walked through Heaven's gates
I felt so much at home;
When God looked down and smiled at me
From His great golden throne.

He said, "This is eternity
And all I've promised you;
Today your life on earth is past
But here it all starts anew."

"I promise no tomorrow,
But today will always last;
And since each day's the same day,
There's no longing for the past."

"But you have been so faithful
So trusting and so true;
Though at times you did do things,
You knew you shouldn't do."

"But you have been forgiven
And now at last you're free;
So won't you take my hand
And share my life with me?"

So when tomorrow starts without me,
Don't think we're far apart...
For every time you think of me,
I'm right here... in your heart.

Sadly Missed...
All Our Love...

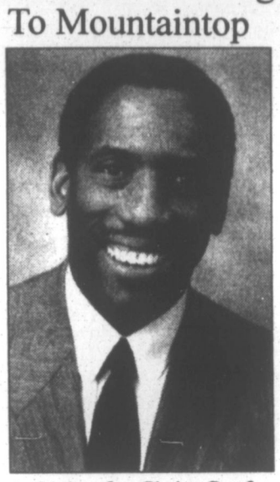
Richard Allen Farmer Returning To Mountaintop



Living for Christ Conferences has announced that space is still available for its 17th annual get-away weekend conference, Mountaintop 2003, to be held March 7-9 at Oglebay's Wilson Lodge in Wheeling, W.Va.

Richard Allen Farmer, pianist and vocalist, will appear in concert at the Saturday evening "Festival in Celebration of Hope in the Lord" with Peculiar People, a drama team starring Charlie and Ruth Jones. He will also lead the musical worship throughout the event.

From Dallas, Dr. Farmer is in full-time ministry as a Bible expositor and concert artist. He formerly served as pastor of Bethany Baptist Church in Pittsburgh, dean of the Chapel at Gordon College in Wenham, Mass., and dean of the Chapel at Taylor University in Upland, Ind.

Having ministered to congregations on every continent but Antarctica, Farmer continues to travel throughout the world with the goal of "making the scriptures and Christian music come alive" for audiences. Several recordings of his music have been produced, and he has written a hands-on-approach book about creativity, It Won't Fly If You Don't Try.

In addition to the concert, Dr. Farmer will present a break-out seminar, "The Reasons and Seasons of Prayer," where he'll discuss why pray and how to pray more effectively with insights from the scripture, classic writings, and personal experience.

"Since our first conference in 1987, Richard Allen Farmer has played a prominent role in each of the Mountaintop weekends. Attendees look forward to his concerts with great anticipation because he is not only a gifted musician but he has a wonderful sense of humor and is an inspirational communicator," said Anne Robinson, Wheeling, co-founder of Living for Christ Conferences, the nonprofit sponsor.

The featured speaker for this conference is Scotty Smith, acclaimed author and pastor of the growing Christ Community Church in Franklin, Tenn. Smith will speak at five sessions during the weekend on the topic "Coming Alive to the Compelling Love of God," based on his best-selling book Objects of His Affection.

"'Mountaintop' is one of only a handful of similar events in the country, in that it's not affiliated with any church and is for both men and women of all ages," said Robinson. "Our goal is to provide an atmosphere away from the rush and strain of life, where folks can be challenged to grow spiritually." Nearly 3,000 people have participated in this event since its founding. It has been described as "the spiritual highlight of my year" and "life-changing" by former attendees.

For more information or to register, Living for Christ Conferences may be contacted at 304-455-5322.

Story Hour will begin on June 18 and run through Aug. 20. These are always on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. Volunteers read stories, make crafts, and/or find a special activity to make all children feel welcome.

The Summer Reading Program will begin on June 16 and run through Aug. 8. This is an eight-week happening that involves children in grades 3-9. A celebration will be held Aug. 22 to recognize all participants.

The library windows have been decorated by first graders for Valentine's Day. Viewers will notice a few different items in the windows, such as a valentine bug and a valentine butterfly. The students trip to the library had to be canceled because of the weather. A valentine story was to be read and a valentine film strip shown. The classes plan to set another date to visit.

Donating books, pamphlets, and/or periodicals have been: Kaye Garlitz, Naomi Cook, Milton Crum, Luther Parrack, Pearl Gordon, E.M. Sypolt, Mary McLaughlin, Tracey Keller, Hildegard May, Paul Eary, Donna Keener, Alecia Boyer, Jeannie McGinnis, Sharon Roy, Marion Clutter, Cathy Clutter, Laurie Noland, Betty Boyer, Winnie Wilhelm, Lori Cage, Albert Ossman, and Anna Mayne. Dottie Csamer has donated several audios to the library.

Students have been busy working on their social studies fair projects. They have used reference books, computers, and some fiction books. There are many categories. Some are working by themselves, and others have paired up to prepare their projects.

The library has income tax forms available, however the order was cut back. State and Federal forms are available.

The local library staff was "arrested" on Thursday for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Volunteers from all over the county were "on the scene." Dottie Schwer and Edna Britton filled in at the library while the staff was "locked up."

The 7th annual James A. Gregg Memoiral Walk-a-Thon will be held on Friday, May 16, at 6 p.m., rain or shine. Details are available at the library.

CHICAGO

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:53 - Released 12/27/02

One gets the sense that there is a new—or at least a renewed—trend in Hollywood: the revival of big-budget Broadway musicals as feature films, starring established "serious actors" whom we had no idea could sing or dance. It's been a while since the likes of Oklahoma!, South Pacific, and The Music Man were playing on the large screen, but after the phenomenal success of last year's Moulin Rouge (which was written as an original film, but had all the trappings and over-the-top performances of a standard product of the Great White Way), and the similar reaction to this new Rob Marshall-directed version of Chicago, which copped three Golden Globes last week in the musical/comedy category [best picture, best actor (Richard Gere), and best actress (Renée Zellweger)], and was nominated for several more, it's safe to say there may be more of the same in the near future. Perhaps in the next few years we'll see My Fair Lady starring Jennifer Love Hewitt and Robin Williams, or West Side Story with Jennifer Lopez and Antonio Banderas. Maybe even the all-nude musical Oh! Calcutta!, starring Elizabeth Hurley, Salma Hayek, Halle Berry, and Britney Spears. Hey, a movie critic can dream, can't he?

Anyway, this film (adapted by screenwriter Bill Condon from the 1975 Broadway version by Fred Ebb and Bob Fosse, which itself was based on the play by Maurine Dallas Watkins) has all the sparkle, all the razzle-dazzle, and all the old-time Broadway charm you could hope for, with virtuosic performances not only by Zellweger and Gere, but by supporting performers Catherine Zeta-Jones, Queen Latifah, and John C. Reilly, who all, as the credits make perfectly clear, performed their own singing and dancing for the film's numerous musical numbers. Also deserving of praise is first-time feature film director Marshall for his energetic production values and his choreography, the level of which could make or break a film like this, and cinematographer Dion Beebe for assembling it all within the lens. I have never seen a stage production of Chicago, but I daresay I could not have enjoyed it more live than I did in this version. When actors who usually play more subtle roles are up there hoofing it and belting out Broadway melodies, you can't help but feel you're getting your money's worth.

Roxie Hart (Zellweger) is a bored housewife in 1920s Chicago who knows she could make it in vaudeville if someone would just discover her. In fact, despite the fact that she's only marginally talented, she sees her entire life as a lavish musical (starring her, of course), with every person she meets playing a supporting part. A sort of singing and dancing version of Walter Mitty, she is far more talented in her optimistic fantasy world than in real life, but it is the fantasies that we see played out as she imagines them, with director Marshall deftly cutting back and forth between her glitzy version of events and the often grim reality of the situation. When her extramarital lover (Dominic West) reneges on his promise to get her a job at the Onyx club, she shoots him dead and is promptly arrested and sent to a women's prison, where she meets several other man-killing females including famous Onyx performer Velma Kelly (Zeta-Jones). With the financial help of her ignorant doormat husband (Reilly), she seeks the counsel of famous attorney Billy Flynn (Gere), who, according to the openly corrupt prison warden (Latifah), has never lost a case. But Flynn is also Velma's lawyer, which sets up a conflict between the reigning nightclub queen and her up-and-coming wannabe replacement. Flynn, who prizes celebrity even more than his standard $5,000 retainer fee, teaches Roxie that to win favor among the public (and the jury), you've got to "razzle-dazzle 'em"—that life is just one big show—which, of course, fits perfectly well with Roxie's take on life anyway. Also present are Christine Baranski as the local tabloid reporter and Lucy Liu as another popular murderess who threatens to steal the spotlight.

America's tastes in entertainment seem to be ever-changing, and the movie industry tries its best to keep up in whatever way will earn the most dollars. Perhaps the late 20th/early 21st century popularity of gross-out comedy and risk-oriented "reality" programming has finally begun to wane (please, please…), so now the pendulum begins to swing back toward the classics. Whether Chicago is an early example of an emerging trend or simply a welcome anomaly, it is welcome indeed, reaffirming the old-fashioned notion that film performers have to actually have talent, and use it, in order to succeed. ★★★★½

Adorable Adoptables

"CATS ARE SMARTER THAN DOGS...you can't get eight cats to pull a sled through snow." Two especially intelligent looking cats, who appear ready for most anything but mushing, are shown here as they await adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Both neutered males, Tommy, above, is a young adult who "loves to help out" around the facility, while Snowball, below, is a 4-year-old who has the lounge mode down pat. The shelter, which is open from 8 to 4 p.m. weekdays, with additional evening hours on Thursdays until 6 p.m., is located at 152 Oakland Sang Run Road, just north of the Oakland Golf Club. The facility may be reached by calling 301-334-3553.

Harvey House

said.

Though transportation is available to Harvey House, no one in the Grantsville or Finzel areas has been using it, he said.

Yoder explained that people tend to want to use services in their own communities, rather than travel. She added, however, that services at the northern end of the county were "very minor."

"We're trying to get sites more geographically centered," she said.

Snyder read a letter from a consumer asking the commissioners to support the idea of another psychiatric rehabilitation program (PRP) in the county, noting that another program would give consumers another choice.

Baker also agreed that another PRP would be very helpful in the county.

Yoder stressed that an actual facility would not have to be built in the northern end of the county, only a service established.

In addition to receiving help themselves, Harvey House consumers also help others. They attend informative workshops on mental health issues and conduct public awareness campaigns. During the Garrett County Fair and Autumn Glory Festival, the consumers distributed mental health information.

A workshop will be held at Harvey House on Feb. 19 from 9 a.m. until noon. "Stigma...In Our Work, In Our Lives" will look at the various stigmas about mental illness and ways to address them. (More information about this workshop can be found on page C-12 in this issue of The Republican.)

Harvey House's annual open house will be held sometime in May. Snyder invited the commissioners and the public to attend that event or visit anytime.

In the winter, Harvey House is open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from noon until 4 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. For more information, persons may call 301-334-1314.

Correction Noted To Photo Caption

ACT Supplies Writing Tips To Students

By 2005 some college-bound students will be required to complete writing tests as part of their college entrance exams. Even students who aren't required to take a writing test for college need strong writing skills. According to ACT, writing is one of the top skills needed for success in college and the workplace.

The Education Trust reports that 17 percent of college freshmen can't write well enough to do college-level coursework, and are required to take non-credit remedial writing and grammar courses in order to raise their writing skills.

ACT provides the following tips on how students can strengthen their writing skills and prepare for college and beyond:

•Read and write frequently. According to Dale Allender of the National Council of Teachers of English, students should read as much as they can from a variety of sources, including all types of fiction, poetry, news stories, plays, business writing, magazine features and essays. "Students should read as much as they can to experience different styles of writing," he said.

•Practice writing in different formats and in as many real situations as possible. Instead of just writing for school assignments, Allender recommends that students write letters to the editor, or letters to a company requesting information or commenting on a product or service. Writing e-mails is good practice, as long as persons realize that writing for school and business is usually more formal than an e-mail to a friend.

Allender offers these additional tips:

•Notice how adults use reading and writing in their daily lives. The skills will be important beyond one's years in school.

•Ask friends or family to recommend a good book. Sometimes finding a good book can make all the difference in one's interest in reading. Listening to audio books is another way to expose oneself to good writing.

•Try some extracurricular writing – School newspapers, yearbooks, and creative writing clubs offer opportunities to express ideas in writing.

•Notice the writing that one already does, such as writing in a journal or sending instant messages to friends.

For more information on college planning, persons may go to ACT's Web site at www.act.org.

Thank You

We would like to express our thanks to our many friends and family members who supported us during our recent loss. Contributions of food, cards, flowers, and your many prayers of comfort were greatly appreciated. A special thanks to the Southern Rescue Squad, staff at the Emergency Room, Rev. Ackerman, the ladies who prepared our meal following the service, and all the former employees of Heck's store. Your kindness will always be remembered. Our sincere thanks.

Family of Bea Rhodes

Thank You!

On December 13, 2002, I was involved in a serious car accident in LaVale. I never expected the outpouring of cards,prayers, phone calls, meals, donations, flowers and help when I was released from the hospital, not to mention everyone who traveled to Cumberland to visit me in the worst of weather conditions. I would like to thank everyone who was involved and helped afterwards. I tried to thank all of you personally, but to those whom I may have forgotten, now is the time to express my appreciation for what has and continues to be done for me. I'd like to thank God above for giving me another chance at life and the ability to walk with a broken neck and back. I thank Him for the strength through my recovery as well as the strength and patience He has given those around me. Thank each and every one of you from the deepest part of my heart!

With All My Love and Thanks Forever,
Amber (Wilson) White and Family

Gerichten To Serve As GLAF Exec. Director

Sarah Gerichten, a resident of Morgantown, W.Va., was recently appointed executive director of Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

She graduated from West Virginia University with a bachelor of science in business administration and a minor in music. Her previous employment includes work in marketing, sales, and advertising. She is a classically trained vocalist and dancer, and teaches tap and jazz at Morgantown Dance studio.

"I'm thrilled to have the opportunity to merge my background in business with my passion for the arts," Gerichten said.

Wayne Johnson, GLAF president, said he is also excited to have Gerichten on board.

"Sarah is a bright young lady with a lot of energy," said Johnson. "I think she will be a tremendous asset to GLAF."

Presently, she is working on preparations for the upcoming GLAF season.

"I just had to dive in head first," she said. "However, I've been very fortunate to have a wonderfully involved and supportive board of directors behind me."

She said she is also impressed with the Garrett County community.

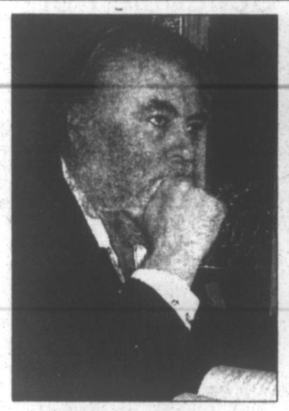
"Garrett County is a lovely place. The folks I've met thus far seem to be very devoted to the arts. I look forward to meeting as many residents as possible to share my excitement about the arts and about the upcoming GLAF season," she said.

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival kicks off its season March 29 with a classical piano performance by Roberto Plano. Plano, a native of Italy, is a 24-year-old piano virtuoso and first prize winner of the 2001 Cleveland International Piano Competition.

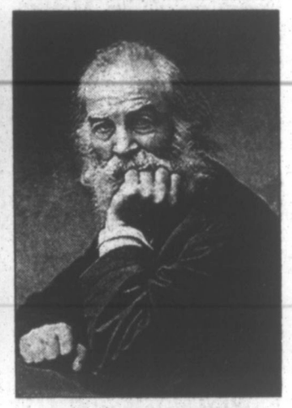
Persons may contact GLAF at 301-387-3082 for more information.

LOCAL ACTOR TO PERFORM IN ENGLAND — Landing a lead role in a major production in England is Matt Sincell, a native of Mtn. Lake Park, 1997 graduate of Southern High School, and 2001 theatre graduate of West Virginia University. Sincell, pictured second from left, was one of four actors selected to present Shakespeare's R&J (Romeo and Juliet), an off-Broadway hit during the 1998-99 season, adapted and directed by Joe Calarco. The play will debut in England at the fifth annual Bath Shakespeare Festival in March. The show, which features only four male actors, imagines a quartet of students at a strict Catholic boys' school who act out the forbidden text of Shakespeare's tragedy in secret. The lines between reality and illusion begin to blur as the Bard's story begins to resemble the repressive atmosphere of the school. R&J began at the microscopic Expanded Arts on the Lower East Side and, following solid reviews, transferred to the John Houseman Studio Theatre. It went on to have award-winning productions in Chicago and Washington, D.C. The play will run March 11-15 at the 1,000-seat, 18th century Theatre Royal Bath before what is expected to be sellout audiences, and then run March 18-22 in the Coventry Belgrade Theatre. It will have eight invitation-only previews at the Manhattan Theatre Club in New York. Producer Seth Goldstein said he hopes to move the show to London's West End following the festival in Bath and Coventry. Sincell, a son of Don and Suzie Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park, just completed performing a role in a New York showcase production of an original comedy, Activity Placemats. His resume includes a wide variety of stage and film credits.

FSU To Present "A Reading By Walt Whitman"



KEITH SCHLEGEL



WALT WHITMAN

Frostburg State University will present the premiere of "The Good, Gray Poet: A Reading by Walt Whitman," a one-man show created and performed by FSU English professor Dr. Keith W. Schlegel, on Monday, Feb. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Schlegel's monologue is a historical characterization of America's most well-known poet as he might have appeared to the public during America's Centennial. Following the monologue, "Walt Whitman" will respond to questions from the audience. After that, Schlegel will step out of the Whitman character to respond to further questions. FSU English professor Dennis Gartner will moderate.

In 1857, Whitman outlined to himself his plans to become a "wander-speaker" as a means to "hold the ear of the people." He lamented late in his life, "The people, the crowd – I have had no way of reaching them. I have sometimes thought of going out and around and reading my poems: I felt that the people would listen – and would get to know what I am about." However, the lack of a critical audience and ill health prevented that.

Although Whitman did speak publicly in the 1870s and '80s, he did so not to read his most significant poetry, but to commemorate the life of Abraham Lincoln and to read his most popular, if least characteristic, poem, "O Captain, My Captain." In these well-attended events. Whitman was fully the "Good, Gray Poet," with little of the original American rebel evident, according to Schlegel, who said that, the moment to appeal directly to the public in his initial form had passed.

Schlegel, who is chair of the FSU Department of English, has taught at Frostburg since 1971. His dissertation is on Whitman's great dejection ode "As I Ebb'd with the Ocean of Life." Researching and scripting "The Good, Gray Poet" was the major project of his fall 2002 sabbatical.

For more information, persons may contact the Department of English at 301-687-4221

Mountainmade To Host Demos, Winter Sale

The public is invited to celebrate the long holiday weekend, Valentine's Day and Presidents' Day, with a visit to the MountainMade Artisan Gallery in Thomas, W.Va. Two artists will demonstrate their crafts, and a Winter Sale is going on now through Feb. 28.

Potter Mary Bethune of Gauley River Pottery and hooked rug artist Susan Feller of Ruckman Mill Farm will offer a demonstration of their crafts from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 15, at the MountainMade Gallery, located just off Route 32 along Douglas Road in Thomas.

Selected items are 30 to 50 percent off, now through the end of February. The Gallery features everything from furniture, glassware and pottery to quilts, CDs, books, music, cards, prints, and photographs.

Mary Bethune will demonstrate her hand-thrown pottery technique. She and her husband John operate Gauley River Pottery in Mount Nebo, W.Va. The couple were drawn to the area as white-water enthusiasts and decided to make it their home. They now produce a line of functional hand-thrown pottery inspired by the beauty of the landscape around them. Their collection includes mugs, plates and other houseware items, as well as one-of-a-kind incense burners. The Gauley River itself inspires their signature glaze, "Gauley Green."

"The glaze flows on the pieces so much like the river that it reminds people of the rivers that are so near the birthplace of each piece of [our] pottery," said the Bethunes.

Along with the pottery demonstration, Susan Feller of Ruckman Mill Farm in Augusta, W.Va., will demonstrate the craft of traditional wool rug hooking. Originally from Warren County, N.J., Feller learned the rug hooking craft in 1994. A member of the American Traditional Hooking Association, Feller has had numerous designs featured in rug hooking and craft magazines. Most recently, her rug "America the Beautiful" was included in a slide lecture at the American Folk Art Museum.

"The craft of rug nooking interests me because of its use of the recycled materials," Feller said. "It is an American heritage, and the primitive designs created are like painting with wool."

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information about MountainMade, persons may visit www.MountainMade.com.

MountainMade is a program of the non-profit MountainMade Foundation of Thomas, designed to assist West Virginia artists with marketing and business education opportunities. MountainMade is partially funded by a grant from the Small Business Administration.

Young Readers Invited To Join Readers Club

Students age 9 through 11 are invited to join the Young Readers Club at the Ruth Enlow Library, Oakland. On Thursday, Feb. 27, at 4:15 p.m. the group will discuss Bat 6 by Virginia Euwer Wolff.

Those interested in participating in this discussion group may pick up a copy of the book at the Oakland library, read as much as possible before Feb. 27, and join the others for a discussion.

"Bat 6 – that's the softball game played every year between the sixth-grade girls of Barlow and Bear Creek Ridge. All the girls – Beautiful Hair Hallie, Manzanita who gets the spirit, the twins Lola and Lila, Tootie, Shadean – they've been waiting for their turn at Bat 6 since they could first toss a ball. This time there's a newcomer on each team: Aki, at first base for the Ridgers; she just returned with her family from a place she's too embarrassed to talk about. And Shazam, center field for Barlow, who's been shunted around by her mother since her father was killed on Dec. 7, 1941.

"The adults of the two towns would rather not speak about why Aki's family had to 'go away.' They can't quite admit just how 'different' Shazam is. And that is why the two girls are on a collision course that explodes catastrophically on the morning of Bat 6, the day they've been preparing for all their lives," according to the book's publisher.

The library also offers book clubs for teenagers and adults.

For more information, persons may visit www.relib.net or call 301-334-3996.

Rams Top Huskies Again, Then Win Thriller At Beall

For the second time in less than a week, the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team defeated cross-county rival Northern, topping the Huskies by a 59-45 margin in Oakland on Friday.

Then the Rams survived a major scare in Frostburg Tuesday evening, as the upset-minded Beall Mountaineers took the Rams into double-overtime before Southern managed to prevail, 51-46.

The pair of Western Maryland Interscholastic League victories upped the Rams' WMIL mark to 7-1 and their overall record to 13-2, allowing them to continue this week as the area's top-rated team.

Starting seniors Dennis Tressler, Matt Stephens, and A.J. Bender paced the Ram offensive effort against the Northern Huskies on Friday, as they scored 17, 16, and 10 points, respectively.

Tressler also pulled down a game-high nine rebounds, Stephens, who scored half of his points in the second quarter, grabbed seven rebounds, and Corey Tressler recorded six. Bender, who finished with five assists, continued to excel at the point guard position, from which he committed only one turnover in a two-game stretch.

The final score was not indicative of the closeness of the contest, as it really wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Rams seized final control. Southern was on top 13-5 at the end of the first period, led by four at halftime, 28-24, and took a 41-33 advantage into the fourth quarter.

Matching Tressler's 17-point effort was Northern's Jason Rice, who scored nine of his points from three-point range. Aaron Mitchell just missed double figures, as he finished with nine points.

The Southern junior varsity won the preliminary game, 46-33, with Evan Lantz and Aaron Louden leading the winners in scoring with 11 and 10 points, respectively. Brent Beachy had 11 points for the Huskies, while Chris Speicher was right behind with 10.

The Huskies went on to fall to visiting Westmar on Tuesday evening (see other story).

Tuesday night's game in Frostburg was a real nail-biter for fans of both schools, and particularly for the Southern side when Beall seemingly broke open a low-scoring, tight contest in the third period by taking a six-point lead, 28-22.

The Rams held a 12-10 lead at the end of the first quarter, and the Mountaineers were up by one, 17-16, at halftime.

Making up most of the deficit for the Rams in the fourth period was Corey Tressler, who scored eight of his game-total of 12 points in that stanza, six of which were on a pair of crucial three-point buckets.

Twice it appeared that the Rams had basically sealed the victory, but twice the Mountaineers hit shots at the buzzer to send the game into each overtime period.

With the Rams up by three points, 36-33, Beall's Brady Engel let loose an at-the-buzzer desperation shot from half court and banked the ball into the net, tying the score at 36-36 at the end of regulation.

In the closing seconds of the second extra period, it appeared that the Rams had the win sewn up when Tressler hit two free throws with less than four seconds to play to give the Rams a 40-38 lead, but this time Ryan Harris, the fastest player on the Beall team, raced down court and drove in for a tying lay-up, again right at the buzzer to force the second overtime.

Until the second overtime period, the Rams were not hitting their usual high percentage from the foul line. But they did finally begin to connect when the Mountaineers were forced to foul in the waning two minutes of play.

Dennis Tressler once again led Southern in scoring with 19 points, Corey Tressler netted 12, and Bender finished with 10.

Harris led Beall with 16 points and four steals, while Jared Kline pulled down seven rebounds.

The loss dropped the Mountaineers to 6-10 overall and 1-6 in WMIL play.

The preliminary game was almost as exciting, as the jayvee Rams and Mountaineers also played to over-time. The Rams emerged with a 56-54 victory behind a 19-point performance by Evan Lantz. Matt DeRosa scored 17 to lead Beall.

The Rams will go after their seventh win in a row and 14th of the season this Friday at home against Tucker County. They are then scheduled to travel to Petersburg next Tuesday.

Huskies Downed By Rams, Clawed By Westmar 'Cats

The Northern High School boys' basketball squad dropped a pair this week, beginning with a 59-45 defeat Friday at the hands of the host Southern Rams before Westmar took a 61-49 win at NHS Tuesday. (See Southern game coverage for details on Friday's contest.)

Tuesday at the Cove, Westmar got off to a strong start by taking a 17-8 first quarter lead. The Huskies cut the margin to five during the second stanza, which closed with the guests up 24-16. The Wildcats rampaged through the third quarter, however, and were up 40-27 as the final eight minutes got under way.

Junior Jason Rice led the Huskies with 14 points on five field goals, four of which came from three-point range. Classmate Andrew Frantz hit for eight points. Westmar's Jason Lee led all scorers with 17 points.

The NHS junior varsity took its contest by an unreported score as it boosted its record to 11-5.

The Huskies (6-10, 1-7 WMIL) host the Salisbury Elks tonight, (7:30 p.m. varsity/6 p.m. JV), before traveling to Union tomorrow for a contest that will be aired on 104.5-FM WKHJ, with pre-game coverage beginning at approximately 7:15 p.m. Northern returns home Tuesday to host Fort Hill.

Former Ram To Be Honored At Camden Yards

Former Southern High School ace pitcher Bryson Meyers, now a member of the Potomac State College baseball team, was named the Most Valuable Player of the 2002 Maryland All-Star team and will be honored at a banquet at Orioles Park, Camden Yards, on Saturday, Feb. 15.

While playing for Potomac State this past season, Meyers has been attracting the attention of various major league scouts. The left-hander from Oakland was Maryland's most effective pitcher in last summer's all-star tournament, held in Oklahoma.

Ram Freshmen Whip Fort Hill

A 22-point performance by Brett DeWitt paced the Southern High School freshman boys' team to a convincing 50-32 victory over host Fort Hill on Monday.

The Rams were ahead by only five points at the end of the third period, but opened it up in the final stanza to win going away. Joey Tressler finished with seven points for Southern.

Leading the Sentinel freshmen in scoring was Steve Jackson with 13. It was the 13th defeat in 14 starts for Fort Hill.

DNR Releases Schedule For Trout Stocking

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Service is set to begin stocking nearly 429,000 adult trout in 127 lakes, ponds, and stream sections across 18 counties in Maryland.

Pre-season stocking will begin in mid-February, and the full season stocking will begin during the second week of March, in preparation for the opening day of trout season on Saturday, March 29. Between the first thaws of this month through the first week in March, 50,000 pre-season trout will be stocked in 50 streams and ponds across the state.

Most of the trout are 16- to 18-month-old yearling rainbow trout, with 40,000 yearling brown trout, that average 9 to 12 inches long. DNR is also stocking over 40,000 holdover trout that are up to 3½ years old and average from 1 to 6 pounds. The stocking schedule, which is available at most DNR Fisheries offices, license vendors, and on the Web site, lists the sites and numbers of trout to be stocked on a weekly basis.

Most of the put-and-take trout fishing areas have brief closures periods for stocking. These closure periods allow stocked trout to spread out and acclimate to their new surroundings. Additionally, having a set opening day gives all fishermen an equal chance at catching fish. Anglers are advised to check their 2003 Freshwater Sportfishing Guide for details concerning closure periods for their favorite waters. In addition, a trout stamp is required to possess trout in Maryland and to fish in special trout management areas.

For a complete listing for the trout stocking schedule, persons may visit the DNR Web site: www.dnr.state.md.us/fisheries/springtroutstock.html.

NHS Falls To Meyersdale, BW, Beall; Frantz Hits 1,000th Pt.

The Northern High School girls' basketball squad dropped three straight outings this week as the Huskies' record fell to 6-11. The closest contest came last Thursday, as Meyersdale took a narrow 46-42 win. NHS lost to Bishop Walsh Saturday by a 49-39 margin, and were downed by Beall Monday 48-37.

There was a bright spot to the action, however, because senior Amanda Frantz reached a big milestone for the Husky girls' varsity, as she became just the second NHS player to pass the career 1,000 point mark. After Frantz's 16-point performance against Meyersdale, the forward joined girls' career scoring leader Kristen Edwards (class of 1990—1,280 points), and six Northern boys in the 1,000-plus point category.

Northern fell behind early to visiting Meyersdale Thursday as the Red Raiders mounted a 14-7 first-quarter lead and a 21-14 halftime advantage. The Huskies made a strong run in the third stanza by outscoring the guests 14-7 to tie the score at 28-all as the fourth quarter got under way; however, the Raiders wore their hosts down over the final eight minutes to take the game by four points. The fatal blow came with 40 seconds remaining, when Meyersdale hit a three-pointer.

NHS's Frantz tied for game-high honors with 16 points, classmate Heather Lander netted 11 points, and sophomore Jeseca Gibson tallied seven points. Erin Johnson had 16 points

Rams Nipped By Ryken; Rampage For Three Wins

The Southern High School girls' basketball team had a busy week, starting with a rare loss Friday to a powerful St. Mary's Ryken squad by just two points, 56-54. The Rams rebounded to take their next three straight, downing Century 54-49 the following day, crushing six-ranked Allegany Monday 60-45, and blasting Beall last night by 21 points, 68-47.

SHS playmaker Robbin Gregg paced the squad in all contests on offense, averaging 20 ppg during the run. The junior-laden team put forth a balanced effort, as usual, with classmates Becca Flanagan and Justine Pagenhardt also turning in fine performances among many Ram standout showings. The action gives Southern a 13-3 record, and a perfect 7-0 WMIL mark as the Rams won their 30th consecutive league game last night.

Southern fell behind early Friday to host St. Mary's, and was down 15-11 after one quarter, 32-23 at the half, and 49-39 as the fourth stanza opened. SHS almost pulled off a miracle though, when clutch buckets by Justine Pagenhardt and Becca Flanagan capped a Ram rally that knotted the score at 54-all at the two-minute mark.

A St. Mary's basket with 30 seconds to play gave the hosts a two-point lead. Southern missed a three-point attempt at the other end of the floor that would have given the Rams the lead, and also tried a half court "Hail Mary" that missed its mark as the buzzer sounded.

Gregg led all scorers with 21 points, including two three-pointers and 5 of 6 free-throw shooting. Flanagan hit for 17 points and snagged eight rebounds, and Pagenhardt recorded nine points while hauling down 12 rebounds. Gregg handed out four assists. St. Mary's was led by 14 points scored by Abby Angel.

SHS took the junior varsity contest with ease, crushing St. Mary's by a 51-33 margin. Julia Bosley's 12 points sparked the Ram romp.

Southern returned to the win column the following night with a five-point win over Century. The hosts took an early lead, 9-7, after one quarter of play, but the Rams rebounded to take a 29-21 halftime lead. SHS was up 40-31 as the final stanza got under way, but things got dicey when a Century rally cut the margin to two points. Southern took the pressure off by hitting seven free throws and several buckets down the stretch to seal the victory.

Gregg led all scorers with 19 points, including four successful foul shots in five attempts, and dished out five assists. Flanagan tallied an 8 for 10 mark from the free throw line, including four crucial free throws in as many attempts during the crucial fourth quarter stretch, on her way to 16 points. She also pulled down eight rebounds. Pagenhardt netted 15 points, grabbed six rebounds, and handed out five assists. Mandy Psensesky had 14 points for Century.

Southern's Kendra McLaughlin turned in a fine performance during the JV battle, as she paced the Rams to a 43-34 win by scoring 22 points.

Monday's contest with Allegany started off with SHS taking a 16-13 lead after one quarter. The Rams upped their advantage to 12 points at the half, 38-26, with a 22-13 second quarter run. Southern was up 46-37 as the fourth quarter got under way.

RAMS RISE ABOVE WMIL – It was a milestone last night for the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball program, which downed visiting Beall by 21 points to take its 30th straight WMIL win. The Rams' last league loss came on Feb. 7, 2000. Among the players contributing to the team-oriented SHS effort against the Mounties were forward Melissa Flanagan (#40), the squad's lone senior, who is shown above popping a bucket from short range. Teammates Nina Stoner (#23) and Mandi Stahl (#24) can be seen jockeying for rebounding position. Junior Justine Pagenhardt (#10) is pictured below taking full advantage of a rock solid pick set by classmate center Becca Flanagan (#20), which sprang the speedy guard for two of her 15 points. The 13-3 Rams will attempt to continue their WMIL streak Monday at Westmar, in a 7:30 p.m. contest set for live broadcast on 92.3-FM The Train. (By the way, the Rams' jayvee unit is 14-0.)

Gregg scored 21 points in leading all scorers, Flanagan contributed 17 points and eight rebounds, and Pagenhardt added 11 points while handing out seven assists. Nina Stoner hauled down eight rebounds, and Casey Taylor snagged six steals. Erin Wilson recorded 17 points for Alco.

The Ram jayvees took their contest, 39-34, as Kayla Nazelrod hit for 12 points.

Last night against visiting Beall, Southern sped out to an early 24-11 lead, and were up 37-25 at the half. The Rams had the game pocketed by the time the final stanza got opened, as they had widened the gap to 56-38.

Gregg paced all shooters with 20 points, while Pagenhardt contributed 15, and Flanagan dominated the paint with 10 points, seven rebounds, and four assists. Sophomore Jasmine Scheffel, who replaced her older sister Sabrina (sidelined with a sprained ankle), turned in seven points and was a terror on defense, snagging five steals as did Gregg. Kacey Kahl had 15 points for Beall.

Southern's JVs took their record to 14-0 by mashing the Mounties 63-32. Bosley netted 17 points, and Nazelrod was just one point shy of that pace with 16. Kaitlin Greg scored 16 for Beall.

The Rams have just one contest on their schedule this week, a Monday road trip to Westmar. The outing is slated for live broadcast on 92.3-FM The Train, with pre-game coverage getting under way at approximately 7:15 p.m.

ConDoerr Takes #2 Skiles In Mtn. Top Hoops Play

A sterling performance by Ronald Rhodes paced top-ranked ConDoerr to a convincing 63-51 win over Skiles Sunday in Mountain Top Basketball League action. The contest had pitted the two top squads on the circuit, and ConDoerr solidified its spot at the top of the standings by improving its record to 10-1, while Skiles fell to 9-4.

Rhodes scored 33 points to pace the victors, while Skiles was led by 16 and 15 points from Justin Stevens and Nathan Long, respectively.

Third-ranked Smiley's blew a chance to climb into the No. 2 spot. Even though Smiley's smashed Automotive Machine 92-59, the game went down as a Smiley's forfeit because it failed to provide scorekeepers for the previous game. Jason Brenneman hit for 33 points for Smiley's, now 9-5, while Ricky Reams scored 28 points for Automotive Machine.

The day's biggest drama played out in an overtime thriller that Midas took from Automated Packing, 86-83. Midas was led by the golden touches of Adam Daskivich and Joey DiSimone, who ripped the nets for 35 points apiece, while Brad Parks tallied 17 points for Automated Packing.

In the final game of the day, Scott Ford took its second win of the season with a 57-54 victory over Plaza Hobby, as Chad Reese scored 19 points for the winners. Brett Rice netted 25 points in Plaza Hobby's losing effort.

The league will be idle this weekend, as no gym is available. No games will be played this Sunday, Feb. 9.

for Meyersdale, and teammate Erin Sines recorded 12 points and 13 rebounds.

The Husky junior varsity squad dropped its game by a score of 35-25. Jamie Miller led NHS with 13 points, and Vanessa Housel had eight points for the guests.

At Bishop Walsh on Saturday Northern battled to a 12-all tie after one quarter of play, but fell behind 24-16 at the half. The Spartans held a 35-26 lead as the fourth quarter opened, but a 9-0 NHS run knotted the score at 35-35 with just under six minutes to play. BW went on a rampage of its own over the remainder, however, as the 14-4 flurry gave the hosts their 10-point victory.

Lander paced Northern with 12 points, while Frantz hit for nine and Butler had eight. Bishop Walsh's Karen Knight paced all scorers with 18 points. The Spartans lived up to their moniker during the contest, as their physical style of play sent the Huskies to the foul line 29 times.

The Huskies dropped the junior varsity contest by a 35-21 margin. Tiffany Yoder had 10 NHS points, and Rebecca Geiger tallied 17 for BW.

It looked as if the tide might turn for the Huskies Monday at Beall as, after falling behind 14-6 in the first stanza, NHS cut the margin to 20-19 at the half. Northern played hard through the third quarter and was still in the thick of the hunt as the fourth stanza opened with the hosts holding a slim 31-28 lead.

Frantz paced the Huskies with 16 points, and Lander contributed 10. Kacey Kahl led the Mountaineers with 11 points, and teammate Kaiti Robinson scored 10 points.

NHS's jayvees took their contest by a 39-12 margin, as Yoder netted 15 points for Northern, and teammates Sarah Stewart and Amy Shaffer netted 13 and 10 points, respectively. Kaitlin Greig led the Mounties with 12 points.

Looking ahead, Northern will host Salisbury tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. (6 p.m. jayvees), and on Wednesday the Huskies travel down the hill to Hancock.

"Snowflake Chasers" Brave Elements To Run For BBBS

The Uno's Snowflake Chase 5-mile run and 2-mile walk to benefit the Garrett County Chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters took place at Deep Creek Lake State Park during one of this winter's coldest mornings. The mercury was at 5 degrees on Jan. 18, the day of the event, and warmed up to about 10 degrees for the start of the race.

"Weather this cold would keep most people in bed sipping hot cocoa, but we attracted nearly 300 runners and walkers," race director Dave Ritchie commented. "I really believe the worse the weather gets, the better the turnout is."

The event drew a record turnout of 164 runners and 112 walkers ranging in age from 8 to 75, and hailing from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, New Jersey, and Canada. The benefit raised $1,600 for BBBS, more than double last year's proceeds.

To add a little incentive for the runners, High Mountain Sports sponsored cash bonuses to the runner who set a new course record. Consequently, all four course records were broken, three of which were set in 2001.

Jeff Gorman of Morgantown earned top honors by finishing the 5-mile race in 26:50, bettering the course record by 43 seconds. In the Men's Master's Division, Ed Frohnaphel, also of Morgantown, successfully defended his title, and set a new course record for the second straight year by breaking his old record by 6 seconds with a 27:13.

Records were shattered in the women's divisions as well. Finishing eighth overall, Morgantown's Heather Bury took her third title and bettered her own record by more than a minute and a half in 29:29. Maria Spinnler of Hagerstown broke the Women's Masters record, clearing it by two minutes with a 35:26 and finishing second overall for the women.

This year's run also had a big boys division sponsored by Britt - Getty Law Offices, for the male runners over 200 lbs. The Iceberg Division champion was John Wilcox (hometown not provided) in 37:10. In the 2-mile walk the winner's laurels once again went to Frostburg's Art Siemann, who tallied a time of 19:39. Finishing third overall and first for the women was Suzanne Wilburn of Oakland with a time of 20:01.

The complete list of division winners follows:

This year the first 100 pre-registered racers received running gloves compliments of Railey Realty, and after the race participants gathered at Uno's Restaurant for the awards ceremony and complimentary lunch of pizza and beverages.

The following sponsors were also listed on the race shirt: Allegheny Power, Aquatic Center, Bill's Marine Service, Coke, Comfort Inn, Communications Workers of America, Deep Creek Lake State Park, Dr. David Tuel, Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy, Highland Engineering and Surveying, Lakeside Creamery, Markwood Family Dealerships, Oakland Farmers Market, Wachovia Securities, Wal-Mart, Wisp, and Yellowstone Log Homes.

LOCAL RACER ON CHAMP'S PIT CREW — Jeremy Murphy, who established himself as one of the region's top go-cart racers, joined the pit crew of Frank Kimmel last year and helped Kimmel win his fourth consecutive national ARCA championship. The ARCA Re/Max Series awards banquet was held recently in the Northern Kentucky Convention Center in Covington, Ky., an event attended by Murphy and several members of his family. FLINGING AN OPPONENT into the air is sometimes used by a wrestler, as demonstrated above left by Northern High School's Michael Wolf in his bout last night against Chris Brown of Fort Hill. Unfortunately for Husky fans, Wolf was later pinned by Brown, and as a team the Huskies went down to a 42-34 defeat. Above center, Northern's Mitchell Guard works his way to a decision win over Jesse Lambert in the 130-pound division, and below center, Mitchell's twin brother Michael is pictured nearly pinning Artie Butler in the 140-pound clash. Lakers Fall To Hawks, Then Top Takoma Park, Catonsville

The men's basketball team of Garrett College went 2-1 on the road this past week, falling to host Hagerstown on Saturday, 106-98, and then bouncing back for an easy 94-56 win over host Montgomery-Takoma Park on Monday and a 71-66 victory at Catonsville last night.

The results upped the Lakers' overall record to 15-7 and their Maryland JUCO mark to 8-6.

Turnovers led to the Lakers' downfall at Hagerstown on Saturday, as they committed an uncharacteristic 30 of them, while the Hawks recorded 19.

Garrett trailed by a single point at halftime, 37-36, but fell behind late in the contest and could not recover.

A Laker highlight was the performance of Lee Parris, who finished with game-highs of 29 points and 16 rebounds. Kevin Essex recorded 19 points and four assists, Antuon Townsend scored 17 points, and Alvin Jones and Rashaun Copeland each netted 11 points. Nine of Townsend's points were scored from three-point range.

Pacing the Hawks offensively was Rexson Kenley, who poured in 25 points. Cliff Carie had 17 points and six assists, while Gebront Gaddy finished with 14 points, Andrew Brooks scored 12, and Nate Naylor chipped in with 10. Thomas Johnson grabbed nine rebounds.

It was Copeland who led the Lakers' scoring at Montgomery-Takoma Park on Monday, as he finished with 23 points, including a dozen from three-point range, while Essex and James Jones each provided double-double efforts.

Essex connected for 18 points, pulled down 13 rebounds, and had five assists, and Jones recorded 10 points and a game-high 14 rebounds.

Also reaching double figures were Lee Parris with 13 points and Alvin Jones with 11.

The Lakers took the lead in the opening seconds of the game and were never seriously threatened. They had double the points of Takoma Park at halftime (48-24).

Derek Baum led Takoma Park and all scorers by netting 24 points. Eddie Scott recorded 12 points and 11 rebounds, and Stanley Harley also reached double figures with 10 points.

One of the most impressive victories for the Lakers and Coach Dennis Gibson was the one recorded last night when they trailed by 17 points in the second half, but rallied for the five-point win.

Down 39-25 at intermission, the Lakers fell further behind early in the second half. But they began to chip away at the Cardinals' lead, and back-to-back three-pointers by Tristan Largent suddenly put Garrett on top by four with about three minutes to play. Four crucial free throws by James Jones in the final minutes secured the Laker victory.

Jones was 6-for-6 at the line and finished with 21 points, plus a team-high seven rebounds. Kevin Essex hit 17 points, Copeland finished with 11, and Largent chipped in with 10 points. Largent also had four assists.

Catonsville was led offensively by Jan Wieland, as 21 of his 22 game-high points were scored on seven three-point buckets. Devon West had a double-double with 19 points and 11 rebounds.

The Lakers will finally be back home for their next contest, a 7 p.m. match-up against Anne Arundel this Saturday. They will host Potomac State College on Sunday, with that game slated to get under way at 2 p.m., and then they will entertain CCBC-Essex next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Anderson Leads GC Past Takoma, Butler; Hawks Repel Laker Rally

Freshman guard LaSha Anderson continues to light up the scoreboard for the Garrett College women's basketball squad, as her hot shooting touch led the Lakers to big wins over Takoma Park and Butler, and sparked a second-half comeback last night that nearly caught the host Rockville Hawks, who eventually won by 14. Garrett will carry an 11-4 record into a big homecourt game Saturday against national powerhouse Catonsville.

Anderson's scoring average for the season stands at 22.7 points per game, putting her in a nip-and-tuck battle with Anne Arundel's Kayla Bristol for the top slot in Maryland JUCO point production.

The Lakers left little doubt of who was the better squad Saturday at Takoma Park, as Garrett crushed the hosts by 55 points, 89-34. GC was up 42-15 at the half.

Anderson paced the victors with 21 points, including a trio of three-point buckets. Natasha Robinson and Southern High alumna Charlena Reeves each had 14 points, and Tiffany McFarland scored 11. Reeves snagged a double-double by adding 10 rebounds to her scoring tally, and she dished out five assists as well. Angel Kendall had 10 assists and six rebounds. Isabella Ahaannottee had 14 points to lead the host Falcons.

Anderson dominated Garrett's 75-47 romp over Butler Monday with 28 points. She hit four of GC's three-pointers, and connected on four of five free throws. A terror on both ends of the court, Anderson also ripped down six rebounds, snagged three steals, and handed out two assists. McFarland just missed a double-double with an excellent 15-point, nine rebound tally, and Kendall contributed six steals and four assists. Butler's Ashley Ritzart led her squad with 26 points, 15 of which came from three-point range.

The Lakers had built a commanding 38-24 lead by the halftime intermission.

Anderson ripped the nets for 31 points last night at Rockville, a contest that was closer than its final 78-64 margin of victory for the host Hawks. After falling behind by 19 points over a miserably played first half, Garrett slowly dug itself out of the hole over the second half, and cut the gap to six points with three minutes to go; however, the Lakers were forced to foul in the closing minutes, sending the hosts to the charity stripe repeatedly for a slew of free throws.

Anderson recorded a double-double on the night by adding 11 rebounds to her 31 points. Kendall contributed 10 points.

The Lakers are slated to host Catonsville on Saturday in a 5 p.m. contest. Up until very recently, the Cougars had held down a spot in the national JUCO rankings. The College of Southern Maryland visits McHenry Sunday, then Garrett travels to CCAC Allegheny Monday and Hagerstown Wednesday.

Ten members of the Southern High School wrestling team recorded pins Tuesday night, as the Rams cruised to an easy 66-15 team victory over visiting Preston High School.

Rx and OTC Medicines for Rheumatoid Arthritis

Of the most common types of arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis (RA) is the most disabling. The body's own immune system attacks the joints. The result is joint swelling, inflammation, and pain. Typically, the smaller joints in the fingers, hands, and feet tend to become inflamed first. Rheumatoid arthritis can occur at any age but usually begins to appear between the ages of 25 and 50.

Fortunately, prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medicines relieve RA symptoms in 3 out of 4 of those who suffer. However, 1 in 10 eventually become disabled from this condition. The primary medicines used for RA are a large group of drugs called the "NSAIDs." This group includes aspirin, ibuprofen, celecoxib, and rofecoxib NSAIDs reduce swelling in affected joints and alleviate the pain in most people. If NSAIDs don't work in 2 to 3 months, slower acting drugs such as gold thiomalate may be helpful. Penicillamine is used sometimes when gold thiomalate isn't effective. Hydroxychloroquine is used in less severe RA. Once-a-week oral Methotrexate with or without other drugs, is being used more frequently in persons with severe RA.

Sample Test Questions Are On The Web

The Maryland State Department of Education has published sample test questions on the Web for the Maryland School Assessment, the state's new measure of reading and math achievement. The direct Web address for the sample test questions is www.mdk12.org.mspp/k_8/index.html.

Also available at this Web address is general testing information, explained via audio clips that feature department staff.

Educators and parents have been eager to see sample test questions for the Maryland School Assessment, which will be administered March 3 through 6. Third-, fifth-, and eighth-graders will take the Maryland School Assessment in reading and math, and tenth graders will take the test in reading. In future years, testing will be expanded to include reading and math in grades 4, 6, and 7, and science in grades 3, 5, and 8, according to a spokesperson for the Maryland State Department of Education.

The Maryland School Assessment includes multiple-choice questions and questions that require written responses. The sample questions posted on the Web are considered "prototypes," which mean they won't be used in actual test administrations.

The sample questions will be used specifically to help educators and the public understand what the Maryland School Assessment will look like. Once the first test administration has been completed, the department will make public actual test questions with sample student responses.

The Maryland School Assessment was developed in response to recommendations from Maryland's Visionary Panel for Better Schools, and to fulfill requirements of the federal No Child Left Behind Act of 2001. The Maryland School Assessment replaces the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program (MSPAP), which could not produce individual scores as required under the No Child Left behind Act.

Hypnotherapy Certification Curriculum Set

Garrett College will offer a curriculum leading to hypnotherapy certification for the spring term. All-day sessions are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday the weekends of March 8, 15, April 5, 12, and May 3, 10, and 17. Sessions will begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5:30 p.m.

This innovative, seven-weekend curriculum is designed to certify participants as hypnotherapists, and to provide a working understanding of hypnotherapy techniques and practices. The curriculum is certified by the college through the International Medical and Dental Hypnotherapy Association (IMDHA).

According to the instructor, Marcia Proctor, CHT, RBT, MAPHP, "Hypnosis is a state of increased suggestibility and concentration. Contrary to what most people believe, a person under hypnosis is not asleep, and does not lose contact with the surroundings or relinquish his or her will. This course of study is down-to-earth, concentrating heavily on the how-to-do aspects."

Proctor has several hundred hours of formal training in hypnotherapy and related modalities. She has been a practicing hypnotherapist, working with a variety of clients in her private practice since 1996.

Curriculum participants will spend 14 days of intensive classroom instruction. The entire curriculum consists of 160 hours of classroom and directed study. In order to successfully complete the course, students must attend all sessions, engage in directed study (including required readings), demonstrate required competencies to the instructor, and reach a minimum competency on a final written evaluation.

The curriculum consists of three modules taken as a block: basic hypnotherapy, intermediate hypnotherapy, and advanced hypnotherapy. Requirements for entry include a high school diploma with good reading and interpersonal skills, an application with supporting documents, and an interview with the program director and/or instructor. This is a clock hour, not-for-credit curriculum.

Prospective students must submit application materials to CET by Thursday, Feb. 20. Students will receive associate membership in the IMDHA upon registration, and will be eligible for regular membership upon completion of the curriculum and certification as hypnotherapists.

To obtain a curriculum brochure or application, persons may contact Carol Newman, the Continuing Education and Training office secretary, at 301-387-3088 or via e-mail at cnemman@garrettcollege.edu. For more detailed program information, persons may contact Tom Kierstead at 301-387-3084 or via e-mail at tkierstead@garrettcollege.edu.

TV PIPELINE

Orbach created Gere's 'Chicago' character

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Jerry Orbach

Q: My daughter insists that I am wrong in believing that Jerry Orbach of "Law & Order" has a lovely singing voice and that he was on Broadway in "The Fantasticks" at one time. Who is correct? –Jean Forlano, Murrels Point, S.C.

A: "The Fantasticks" was off-Broadway, not on, but otherwise you are correct: Orbach played El Gallo, the bandit-narrator, in the original cast of that record-breaking musical. He earlier had made his New York stage debut as Mack the Knife in a revival of "The Threepenny Opera."

Next, Orbach landed his first Broadway role in the musical smash "Carnival!" after which he scored his first Tony Award nomination for a mid-1960s revival of "Guys and Dolls."

Orbach won the Tony as best actor in a musical for re-creating the role Jack Lemmon played in the film "The Apartment" in a Broadway musical adaptation called "Promises, Promises." He scored yet another Tony nomination for his work in the original cast of "Chicago," creating the lawyer role played by Richard Gere in the current movie release. Orbach later had the male lead in Gower Champion's 1980 Broadway adaptation of the vintage movie musical "42nd Street."

Those are only the highlights of Orbach's musical career, but by now your daughter will be holding her hands over her ears and screaming "Stop!"

Q: What series did the star of "Monk" used to appear in? –Dee Haas, Pedro, Ohio.

A: Tony Shalhoub, who returns for another USA Network season as Adrian Monk in summer 2003, starred as horror novelist Ian Stark in the short-lived NBC sitcom "Stark Raving Mad," but is best known to many viewers as unlucky cabbie Antonio Scarpacci on "Wings."

Q: Am I the only one in the world who remembers a TV musical called "High Tor" with Bing Crosby and a very young Julie Andrews? Maybe it's never mentioned because it was terribly bad. –Mary Natteford, Stockton, Calif.

A: Based on a play by Maxwell Anderson, who also supplied the lyrics to Arthur Schwartz's musical score, "High Tor" today may be only a faint footnote in American musical history, but lovers of show music would welcome a chance to see even a fuzzy film transfer today, since the March 10, 1956, CBS premiere captured the radiant, 20-year-old Andrews just five days before she opened on Broadway in "My Fair Lady." For the record, "High Tor" starred Bing Crosby as a man who falls in love with a Dutch ghost (Andrews) haunting a mountain in upstate New York.

Let's Get Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

The Balanced Body Studio

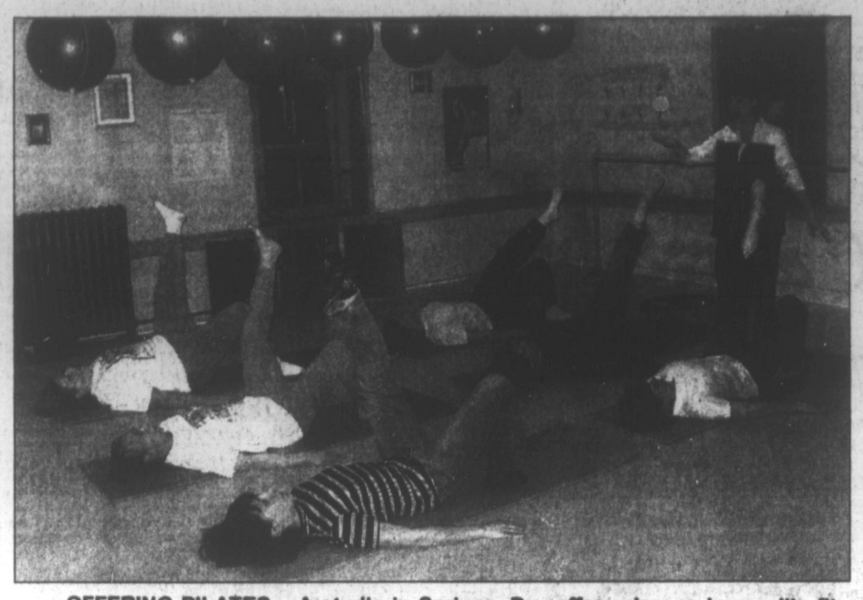
A studio, located at 226 Springs Road in Springs, Pa., offers classes in an elite fitness program normally found in the big cities which helps the young and old and the fit and injured. Jennifer Christophel of the Balanced Body Studio is now offering this program – Pilates (pronounced pi la' tez).

Christophel is a certified Stott Pilates instructor, and is also certified to teach the Vagnova Method of classical ballet. In the past, she has taught at the Morgantown Dance Studio, Garrett College, and Frostburg State University.

Not only does Christophel offer classes in a variety of styles and levels, she also teaches small, private ballet classes.

In the future, she said she plans to offer more Pilates classes for all levels and ages.

She said she wants to make people aware of what Pilates is.



OFFERING PILATES – A studio in Springs, Pa., offers classes in an elite fitness program normally found in the big cities which helps the young and old and the fit and injured. Jennifer Christophel of the Balanced Body Studio is now offering this program – Pilates. Christophel is a certified Stott Pilates instructor, and is also certified to teach the Vagnova Method of classical ballet. Stott Pilates builds strength and flexibility through more than 500 controlled movements focusing on strengthening and stabilizing the body's torso. Christophel is pictured above instructing a class. In the front from the left are Dawn Walker (aerobic instructor) and Deanna Bender. In the middle row are Phyllis Tice and Leigh Huelskamp, and in the back are Jennie Magneson and Jeannie Johnson. See story for more details.

Stott Pilates builds strength and flexibility through more than 500 controlled movements focusing on strengthening and stabilizing the body's torso. According to Christophel, this is a safe and highly effective program that not only improves balance, posture, and overall fitness and athletic performance, but also prevents injury.

Pilates is based on six principles, the most important being concentration. The other principles are control, centering, fluidity of the exercise, precision, and breath.

Pilates is different from other forms of exercise because it is low impact, safe, and really works on using the body as a whole. It is different from yoga because it uses a whole line of equipment, including springs and pulleys.

The studio, which has been open for two years, is located at 226 Springs Road, Springs, Pa. Christophel can be reached at 814-662-2215.

After-school programs keep kids safe, help working families and improve academic achievement.

Partners After School • Garrett County

- More than 2/3 of children in Garrett County have parents who work outside the home. More than 700 children attend Partners After School programs.
- Many kids have no place to go once the school day ends.
- Studies show that students involved in after-school programs get better grades, attend school more and have improved behavior. They express greater hopes for the future and more interest in school.
- Teens who participate in after-school are less likely to skip class, use marijuana and other drugs, smoke, drink alcohol or engage in sexual activity.
- About 13 percent of children and adolescents are now seriously overweight. After-school programs can provide physical activity and reinforce healthy behavior.

B VITAMINS AND HEART ATTACK RISK

The family of vitamins we refer to as the "B vitamins" includes folate (also called folic acid or B-9), pyridoxine (B-6), and cobalamin (B-12). Folate helps the body make new cells and hemoglobin, which the blood uses to transport oxygen to tissues. Folate is crucial during the first trimester of pregnancy for the prevention of birth defects in the unborn. Pyridoxine deficiency is rare, but can occur in alcoholics or women taking birth control pills for long periods of time. Cobalamin works along with folate to produce the body's red blood cells. People over 50 sometimes are encouraged to supplement cobalamin because the body's ability to absorb cobalamin declines with age.

When folate, pyridoxine, and cobalamin are used together they may lower the risk of heart attacks, and repeat surgery and death in persons who have undergone angioplasty (surgery to clear heart arteries). The 3 vitamin combination has been shown to lower blood levels of homocysteine, a by-product of protein metabolism that is associated with increased risk of heart disease.

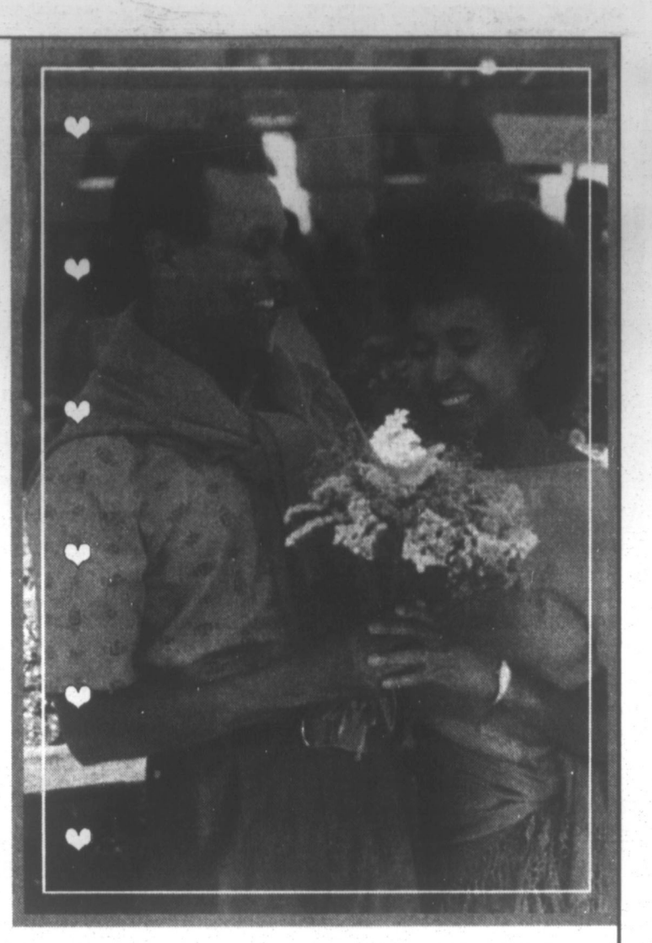
The Most Special Valentine Gift



Do you have a special "valentine" this year? Perhaps you have had the same Valentine for a lifetime...or for only a short while. Yet, as Valentine's Day approaches there are the same questions. Will my valentine remember what day it is? Should I leave a little hint? Maybe the dilemma is, "I need a special gift for my sweetheart. What will it be?"

This year can be different. Material gifts are fine, of course, but the greatest gift you can give that special love in your life...that treasured relationship...is not one you can buy. It is priceless.

That gift is the one you give away when you give your heart to God this Valentine's Day. In Hosea 2:19-20, the Lord said, "And I will betroth you to me for ever; I will betroth you to me in faithfulness; and you shall know the Lord". Knowing the Lord as a couple is the greatest gift you can give yourselves to ensure the closeness you crave and to strengthen your bond when the world threatens to separate you.

Won't you worship together this week? If you don't yet have that special person in yor life, that's all right, too. God has a plan for each of us that belong to Him.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

UNDER NEW ORDERS

February 9, 2003

Background Scripture:
Acts 25:23 through 26:32.
Devotional Reading:
Ephesians 3:1-13..

Is it possible for us to be followers of Jesus without ever having experienced a life trans forming experience? Some of us can tell dramatic stories of Jesus coming into our lives and curing us of alcoholism, drugs, and so forth. But many of us sincerely believe we live lives from which we do not need to be converted.

I believe transformation is essential, but it is something that is so varied that one style does not fit all. It may be subtle and externally unobserved. Dramatic changes are easy to observe, but inner growth may not be. Although it sometimes may be visible, it is not so much about external appearances, but inner focus.

When Paul stood before King Agrippa, he sought to explain what had transformed him from Saul the persecutor of the Way to Paul the apostle for Christ. He began his journey on the Damascus Road "with the authority and commission of the chief priests" to seek out and persecute the followers of Jesus, but his experience gave him new orders.

The Same, But Different

How dramatic was Paul's change? There was a dramatic change, but it did not mean the complete annihilation of the old Saul. He was still a single-minded and zealous man who poured himself unreservedly into his spiritual missions, still a man whose personality, if he were a clergyman today, would make him a hard to place in a local church. What transformed his life was a new focus.

So it is, too, with most of us. What we need is not to become totally different, but totally focused on following Christ. An alcoholic's life is focused on his or her next drink. A gambler's life is focused on the next bet. A Christian's life, however, needs to be focused on the next step in discipleship. We do not have to become like Paul or Mary Magdalene. But, like them, we are called to focus our lives on Jesus.

Before King Agrippa, Paul didn't use the term "focus" but he did speak of the old commission which he gave up for a new one. The old one was the "authority and commission of the chief priests" in Jerusalem. The new commission, however, came from the risen Lord: "...to appoint you to serve and bear witness to the things in which you have seen me...delivering you from the people and from the Gentiles—to whom I send you" (26:16). Paul is under new orders!

Transformed To Transform

Those new orders are spelled out carefully: *"...the Gentiles...that you may open their eyes, that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a

Nippon Porcelain

Q. I have inherited several dozen pieces of porcelain, all marked as Nippon. I was told by my mother that the collection dates from the 1920s. Where can I find out more about Nippon and if what I have has any value? — Cynthia, Norman, Okla.

A. The word "Nippon" was first used in 1891 to identify porcelain crafted by Japanese artisans. The practice ended in about 1921 when "Japan" became the mark of choice.

Look at your pieces closely. Are they hand-painted and elaborate in design? If so, your Nippon could be quite valuable. As the popularity of Nippon has grown, so has the danger of reproductions. Some of the fakes, especially those pieces being crafted in China, imitate the earlier Nippon designs and techniques. Collectors must be extremely cautious.

Recent online auction results have included a vase depicting an American Indian near a campfire, $750; a tankard with irises, $650; a small dish with a floral design, $50; and a set of four egg cups featuring floral bands, $90.

The International Nippon Collectors Club publishes a newsletter and is especially good at helping collectors steer clear of the numerous fakes in the marketplace. The postal and Web site addresses are 1531 Independence Ave., Washington, DC 20003; and www.nipponcollectorsclub.com.

Kathy Wojciechowski is both a dealer and Nippon expert. Her address is P.O. Box 230, Peotone, IL 60468.

Battling Boredom

Q. I appreciated your advice to the person who lost the hamster. I wonder if you could advise me regarding my two cats. Is it unhealthy to keep cats indoors at all times? Do they get bored? Also, my 6-year-old female cat has always had an enlarged left pupil, and I notice brown (color) below the enlarged pupil. She seems fine. Does this need to be treated? Thank you — Jody P., via e-mail

A. As long as cats have adequate space, food and water, clean litter and a cozy spot in the sun, they will do just fine indoors — in general. There are cats that just insist on going out for a few hours each day, but if yours don't complain or scratch at the front door, then you have no problem.

Most indoor cats enjoy toys, catnip and scratching posts. Tie a feather to the end of a stick (or purchase something similar at the pet store), and they'll chase after it endlessly. And make sure they have access to a sunny window so they can watch the world outside.

Regarding your older cat's enlarged pupil: Although she has always had it and doesn't seem to be in any pain, have the veterinarian look at it at her next checkup. Your vet can check to see whether the pupil reacts to light, and look for any possible problem. Several conditions exist that can cause an enlarged pupil, including glaucoma, nerve damage or blindness. Your cat doesn't seem to be bothered by it, but cats can be rather stoic. The larger pupil may be nothing, but have it checked out for your peace of mind and her health.

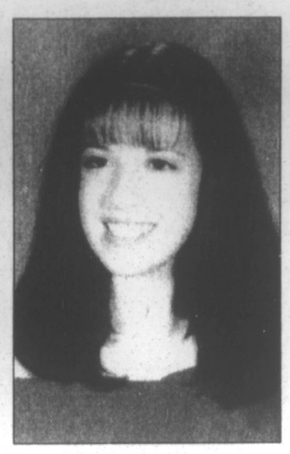
Garrett County Students Named 2003 Service Stars

TINA OPEL



AMANDA RAY

Two Garrett County students, seniors Tina Opel of Northern High School and Amanda Ray of Southern High, will be honored as Maryland "Service Stars" during the annual State Service Learning Conference, set for Thursday, March 20, at Villa Julie College in Stevenson.

Each year two students from each county in the state are recognized for completing quality service activities. In order to qualify for the Service Star Award, students must be enrolled in high school, exceed expectations for Service Learning in their district, and have accumulated a minimum 100 hours or more of documented service through at least three different service sites.

Opel has obtained her Service Learning hours through many community organizations. She is an active participant in her church's outreach activities, which have included volunteer service at a homeless shelter, joining a missions trip, and assisting people in need, as well as work with her church's vacation Bible school. She has volunteered at the Highland Thrift Shop and World's Attic, has participated in the Garrett County Relay for Life, and is a member of a youth puppet ministry.

Opel plans on attending college in the fall and majoring in wildlife biology. She is the daughter of Jeff and Rose Opel.

Ray has also accumulated her service hours through a variety of organizations. She is active in her church and has assisted with vacation Bible school, soup kitchen, and various other church events. She has volunteered with the Garrett County Community Action Food Program and Head Start Program centers.

Ray's other service activities have included the Garrett County Relay for Life, Southern Garrett Rescue Squad mock disasters, the Rotary Christmas Project, and the American Red Cross swimming program. She has also assisted at the Garrett County Farm Bureau's booth at the Garrett County Fair.

Ray plans to attend college in the fall and major in the fine arts. She is the daughter of Wayne and Karen Ray.

CUB SCOUTS EARN WEBELOS SCIENTIST PINS — These first- and second-year Webelos, all fourth- and fifth-grade members of Cub Scout Pack 31, recently traveled to the Carnegie Science Center in Pittsburgh. During their visit, which was sponsored by the Oakland Elks Lodge, the Scouts attended a three-hour Carnegie Center class, performed experiments, and fulfilled other requirements to earn their Scientist pins. During the afternoon, Webelos were given free time to explore the Science Center and the nearby SportWorks attraction, which featured a climbing wall, Virtual Reality games, and hockey. In the front row, from the left, are Dylan Paugh, Bo Vanderbilt, Ben Vanderbilt, and Nathaniel Walkling. In the second row are Matthew Broadwater, Jeremy Sharpless, Mackenzie Futch, John Compton, and Jesse Paugh. Pack 31 is based at Dennett Road Elementary School,

Earned Income Tax Credit Is Available For Some Workers

"Workers earned it. Don't forget to claim it," says the Internal Revenue Service. The Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) lowered federal tax liabilities for 19 million lower-income workers last year, according to the IRS.

Some taxpayers may be eligible to claim the EITC for the first time, especially if there were changes in the family such as a new child, divorce, or decrease in earnings during the past year.

To qualify for the EITC, taxpayers must have earned income during the year. Married taxpayers who file a joint return may qualify if at least one spouse has earned income. For tax year 2002, earned income includes all taxable employee income, such as wages and tips, and net self-employment income.

All taxpayers must meet certain other rules to claim the EITC. The taxpayer:

- must have earned income,
- must have a valid SSN issued by the Social Security Administration (SSA),
- cannot file as "married filing separately,"
- must be a U.S. citizen or resident alien all year,
- cannot file Form 2555, "Foreign Earned Income," or Form 2555-EZ, "Foreign Earned Income Exclusion,"
- cannot have investment income in excess of $2,550, and
- cannot be a qualifying child of another person.

To qualifiy for the credit, the taxpayer's earned income and adjusted gross income must be less than:

- $33,178 ($34,178 if married filing jointly) with more than one qualifying child,
- $29,201 ($30,201 if married filing jointly) with one qualifying child, or
- $11,060 ($12,060 if married filing jointly) without a qualifying child.

The maximum amount of the credit is:

- $4,140 for a taxpayer with two or more qualifying children,
- $2,506 for a taxpayer with one qualifying child, or
- $376 for a taxpayer without a qualifying child.

To be a qualifying child, the child must meet age, relationship, and residency tests.

However, a taxpayer (and the taxpayer's spouse, if filing jointly) who does not have a qualifying child must be at least 25 years of age but under age 65, not be claimed as a dependent on someone else's tax return, and have made his or her home in the U.S. for more that half of 2002.

For tax year 2002, there are new rules when two taxpayers have the same qualifying child. Only one taxpayer may claim the child for EITC purposes.

If two or more people have the same qualifying child, they can choose which person will use the child to claim the EITC. However, if both claim the credit using the same child, the child will be treated as the qualifying child of the following person under the new tie-breaker rules:

- the parent, if one person is the child's parent;
- the person with the highest adjusted gross income, if neither person is the child's parent;
- the parent with whom the child lived the longest during the tax year, if both persons are parents of the child and they do not file a joint return together; or
- the parent with the highest adjusted gross income, if both persons are parents of the child, if they do not file a joint return together, and if the child lived with each for the same length of time during the tax year.

The IRS Web site at www.irs.gov and tax instruction booklets contain more information on this credit. Publication 596, "Earned Income Credit," is available on the Web site under "Forms and Publications" or by calling 1-800-TAXFORM (1-800-829-3676).

RAM Notes

PRINCIPAL'S LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

The Leadership Academy has offered suggestions to live by. The following are weekly suggestions for all students and staff to make as a part of our everyday lives at Southern High School: Feb. 3-7, "Show pride in yourself"; Feb. 10-14, "Respect yourself."

RAM STUDENT OF THE MONTH

January's second RAM (Random Acts of Maturity) student is senior Dennis Tressler, nominated by Mr. James Maddy. Dennis has been giving up his free time to help tutor a classmate who has been struggling in math. Looking out for others is a wonderful character trait that demonstrates maturity and selflessness, said Maddy. Congratulations, Dennis.

RAM BUSINESS PARTNER OF THE MONTH

Six years ago Oakland was introduced to Our Town Theatre. Since that time, Garrett County has been witness to over 200 productions involving countless members of the community, from students to adults, promoting positive social interaction and self-growth. The board of directors of OTT has worked tirelessly since its inception to create a community theater where Garrett County citizens can enjoy the tremendous array of artistic talent available locally.

In addition to vibrant plays and productions, which involve not only actors and actresses but also stage and lighting crews, costume designers, and many other volunteers, OTT also lends itself to a diverse array of other activities. These include adult and teen coffeehouses, improvisation nights, recitals, meetings, parties, dances, classes, and other community delights.

Our Town Theatre is run by a board of directors headed by Jane Avery, who acts as the artistic director. She develops lists of activities, in conjunction with members of the board, to be voted on to develop a schedule of events. The theater operates as a non-profit organization. Therefore donations are needed to keep the theater supplied with its many necessities, such as costumes, lighting, props, and programs.

OTT exposes students and children of the community to diverse cultures, develops their sense of presentation, raises their self-esteem, and cultivates friendships. Students of the community are encouraged to participate in the productions as actors, technical crewmembers, costume designers, and concession participants. Also, students of Garrett College are given the opportunity to participate in the wide range of theatrical activities offered at OTT while earning college credit at the same time. These students are encouraged to gain first hand theatrical experience, build personal portfolios, and earn an associate of arts degree in fine arts.

Our Town Theatre has become one of the most vital parts of the Garrett County community since its founding over six years ago. This culturally in-tuned organization has helped to open the community to various socially stimulating activities, the opportunity to grow, learn, and meet new people, and the open-mindedness to take on new challenges and accept diversity. With the support of the community, Our Town Theatre is here to stay.

Thank you Our Town Theatre – Your support is appreciated!

Broad Ford Students Offer Much Help To Their International Peers

School named "Ambassador" by UNICEF

Far-away peers of the students at Broad Ford Elementary School will benefit from the local children's efforts this year to fight the scourge of polio. Teacher Jenny Neville led the fifth graders through a series of projects and presentations to enlighten them to the plight of children across the world who do not have the benefit of vaccinations or adequate health care. Moved by what they learned of their international peers, the local students raised $1,500 for UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund), which in turn bestowed the honor of Ambassador School upon Broad Ford Elementary.

As part of the entire project, which spanned several months, the children learned how to publicize their efforts via the news media. They created advertisements for their various fund-raising events, and they worked on news articles. A few of these articles are published on this page today, along with several related photographs.

THERE'S NOTHING QUITE LIKE THE ENERGY OF KIDS when you give them a reason and a way to help out. This was proven beyond a doubt this year at Broad Ford Elementary School, where fifth graders worked hard to not only raise money for UNICEF, but to learn about the plight of children in countries where there is inadequate health care and a lack of disease prevention. The result of the students' many months of fund-raising and studying was a check for $1,500 for UNICEF. See stories on this page. Pictured from left are Teddy Lascaris, Abby Wildesen, Cortney Schroyer, Anna Keefer, Brittany Perron, Molly O'Brien, J.D. Moon, and Andrew Mowbray.

KIDS HELPING KIDS
By Brutus Scheffel

Broad Ford fifth grade students are working to make a change in the lives of children in other countries. We read Times for Kids and learned how polio affects kids in 10 different countries. The countries that are affected the most are Somalia, Afghanistan, India, Egypt, Niger, Nigeria, Sudan, Angola, and Pakistan.

We decided to collect money to help cure polio. In order to be an ambassador school, we set our goal at $1,000. In late September, we were given UNICEF boxes to help collect money to start on our goal. Donations were greatly appreciated.

We only had $450, so we had a dance to help reach our goal. After the dance, our goal was met. Each fifth grade student was given a country to research that needed our help, and then to present it to the fifth grade. It helped us learn the many problems facing other countries.

Polio is a disease that affects children all over the world. Everything we do brings us one step closer to finding a cure. Such an easy task for such a deadly disease.

KIDS HELPING KIDS
By Jesse McComas

Broad Ford Elementary fifth grade students have been working hard to help UNICEF eradicate polio. We started the project in late September We were learning about communicable diseases in health. Then Dr. Miller came in to talk to us about polio. Each class split into groups and researched two or three countries. We made project boards on the research information we found and presented them to the whole fifth grade.

We raised money by collecting change when we went trick-or-treating, or just asking people we knew if they had any loose change. That got us up to $450. Then we had a Halloween dance and we reached our goal of $1,000 and became an ambassador school.

This project helped us in all of our subjects; for example, when we made our graphs to see which country we should give our money to. That helped us in math because we had to compare the percent of polio in each of the countries. We learned about spreadsheets on the computers.

When Dr. Miller came in, he told us what polio was. He said polio was a disease that affects the spinal cord.

When we had the Halloween dance, parents brought in food and drinks. We had a costume contest for the prettiest, ugliest, and most original costumes. We also had other gifts and prizes.

When we made the project boards, we learned about the Gross National Income of the country. We also learned about the weather in the country and compared it to our weather. When we presented the project boards, each person got to say something that was on the board.

When we made the graph, we used a computer to compare the percent of polio. We also compared the number of male and female schooling. We found out that there was more male schooling than female in 10 countries.

KIDS HELPING KIDS
By Teddy Lascaris

Broad Ford School fifth grade students are going to give kids in other countries that have polio a good message. We started this project in late September 2002. The fifth grade students are trying to eradicate polio from the earth. We raised money by trick-or-treating, sponsoring a dance, and bringing money from home.

We have learned about ten countries that have polio. These countries are very poor. We made graphs with Mrs. Conway showing polio rates, safe water, how many males go to school, and how many females to go school. The countries don't have very much money.

We got the idea from Times for Kids. There was a spot that said polio that we looked at and then we started our project for UNICEF.

After that, Dr. Miller came in and talked about polio and cancer. He brought in poster boards with information on polio and other diseases.

A couple days after Dr. Miller was at the school, a guy from the Rotary Club came in and told us about diseases.

We planned to have a dance to raise $1,000 for UNICEF. We got over $1,000.

KIDS HELPING KIDS
By Cortney Schroyer

Broad Ford fifth grade students are giving other kids in other countries a better chance for a wonderful, educated life.

"I think it is great that we are doing this and sharing with others," said Mrs. Neville, fifth grade teacher.

We are trying our best to raise enough money to give kids vaccines and safe water and sanitation. We are trying to get the kids to school more, too.

We started in late September learning about the countries. We got the idea from Times for Kids. Then we made poster boards about the ten different countries in need. Those countries are Egypt, Sudan, Somalia, Angola, Afghanistan, Asia, Niger, India, Nigeria, and Pakistan. We presented our poster boards to the entire fifth grade. You might have seen an ad for UNICEF. Our goal was to raise $1,000. We were successful.

We have had school dances, researched other countries, and we went trick-or-treating for UNICEF. We had three guest speakers come in and talk to us. Dr. Miller talked about polio and other diseases. Mary McEwen came to tell us how to make a feature story for the newspaper, and we had a man from the Rotary Club tell us how to raise money.

KIDS HELPING KIDS
By Kali Fike

Broad Ford fifth grade students are working on a project called Kids Helping Kids. This project is about fifth grade students raising money to help kids with polio. Our goal was to raise $1,000. We had Dr. Miller come in and talk to us about polio. We raised money by having a Halloween dance and by trick-or-treating for UNICEF. We also learned in class about polio in our country and other countries.

Polio is a virus that affects muscles in different parts of your body. Polio can cripple a person for life. Broad Ford fifth grade students are trying to help get rid of polio in the world. The money we raised is being donated to help supply vaccines for people in other countries who need them.

Many countries need our help to eliminate polio. We don't need to worry about getting polio in the United States because babies are vaccinated early. Broad Ford fifth grade students, with the help and guidance of Mrs. Neville, are proud to help the world get rid of polio.

PRESENTING THEIR CASE – The fifth graders at Broad Ford Elementary presented their case for collecting money for UNICEF by informing their peers about the health care crises in other countries. After doing extensive research on a number of countries, the pupils presented their work to the entire fifth grade. Teacher Jenny Neville, who led the project, is pictured above on stage as she lends her support to one of many students to speak.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

When the terrorists hit in New York near a former home of mine and the number of casualties was horrible, I was shocked and sad, but I didn't actually shed any tears. On the other hand, today with the space shuttle Columbia disaster, I spilt hours of tears. It reminded me so much of the other shuttle disaster I saw live on TV, and even more sad, the launch pad accident with Apollo One when I was just a young girl.

Back in the 1960s every launch was a major television event, and my family gathered around our old black and white TV before school to watch one. The splashdowns were also full of drama. My big brother Rodney was crazy about science fiction and technology, but the idea of space travel had no appeal to me. I was too grounded on earth. To imagine being where there was no grass, woods, fields, and trees seemed terrible to me. The only kind of exposure to me was not on motorcycles or in a rocket, but just soaring over something on my horse.

Back then American dreams were shared by all Americans, including me. The space race to explore a new frontier was so innocent compared with the arms race with the Soviets. I believe that my tears today were for the sweet innocent Americans who were lead by a young, inspired, handsome leader who could spin words into a shared vision for Americans. I might have cried a little bit when little John Kennedy Jr. saluted his father's coffin, and I knew even way back then of the loss of a leader. A few years later when his brother Bobby was also felled by an assassin's bullet, I was very angry.

I don't think I ever cried about John, Bobby, or Martin Luther King until the folk song came out: "Has anyone seen my old friend, John? Can you tell me where he's gone? Has anyone seen my old friend Bobby? my old friend Martin, my old friend Abraham? They freed a lot of people. It seems the good die young..."

I might add the name Sadat. If Sadat were not assassinated, we would live in a different world now. Did anyone ask why a young Arab man killed Bobby? Why an Arab would hate the best hope for peace in America? But that song never really hit home until my own little brother Scott died far away from home in Africa when he was only trying to make better lives for some of the wretched on earth.

So I guess today I couldn't stop crying for all the bright, young, and talented who died too young, not on a battlefield, but on the front line of the fight to forge a brave new world for all people. That crew we lost today represented the best of American dreams and promise: the brightest, best, young, white men and two young women, an African American, and an Israeli. The American space program came so far from the early days when only white military guys could be astronauts. So I cried for broken dreams, wasted promise, shattered families.

I wonder if the space shuttle Columbia flew over Bittinger last week. Was it one of the streaking lights I saw when I was stargazing?

I am glad I finished that because I only want to get it in the past. I am sure I will not forget it. Sometimes I almost wish I had a worse memory. No, I do not wish that, not after I had wished that I would get sick so I would get a little break from a break-neck paced life in the spring of 1994, and look what happened to me! I was tired, as I was of doing everything in the role of a mother, wife, professor, and any odds and ends jobs I got on my plate.

But now since I have almost nothing to do, I wish I could go back to that hectic life. Perhaps that is why the Columbia accident got me so hard, as it was not that different from my accident. My life was full of potential and important work streaking along at supersonic speed. Then without warning and suddenly, as I was just doing my job, everything exploded and shattered me into pieces. I survived, but only with some major problems. Whether the space shuttle program will survive or not is in question. Whether they lost too many bright stars or damaged the confidence and drive in the many small cogs in the machine, or how many will just drop out of their careers as space scientists, or whether the money needed to repair or build a new one will be available, are all anyone's guess. But from my personal experience, my recovery was too hard and too costly for many people to stick with it.

I got lucky this Tuesday afternoon to be able to recount an old friend who was really a twin soul to me. I mean the movie, National Velvet, which starred a young Elizabeth Taylor. Velvet Brown was a dreamer and felt everything in real hot fire. She gave her heart impulsively and totally to the horse "Pie" and a drifter, Mr. Taylor. She arranged with God to have that wild horse for herself and spent the days of the summer galloping cross-country. She called him to go faster and faster, and jumped every hedge, fence, or gate they encountered, risking her neck to feel the ultimate thrills. She got the idea from her wise mother who said you can do something that everyone says is impossible. Her mother's mission was to be the first woman to swim the English Channel, so she bought into the idea that her young daughter could make a world champion horse from an unwanted cast-off.

I think that Velvet was full of unthinkable dreams, and no one could see things as she could see in her mind's eye. There is no one more lonely than dreamers or artists because they have no person to share their dreams with. Of course, they often risk lots of things, as Elizabeth Taylor did when she insisted to do her own riding in the film. I just saw a scene in which I believe that Liz injured her back, which led to a long life of pain and health problems. She took a hard fall after a jump and landed square on her lower back. That kind of fall, bone-shattering landing knocks most of your breath and nerve, bruising your body and spirit, sometimes only temporarily, and sometimes forever. Life has many kinds of hard falls, not just on horseback.

Lenny and Torrey Poholsky attended the Pirates Fest at Carnegie Science Center in Pittsburgh on Sunday, where they got sports memorabilias and autographs of the Pirates.

Cindy and Sam Stanton and Ferne Beachy met Lou and Dorothy Pochet for brunch at the Stone House Restaurant on Sunday.

Dave and Nancy Beachy visited Kent and Kelly Beachy at Grand Rapids, Mich., over the weekend to celebrate Wyatt's 5th birthday.

My mother, Ruth DiPaolo, braved the weather today in gale-force winds to go to Grantsville — wind blasts like I don't know what. But it was not surprising when she told me it is was the worst right here between my house and Rodney's. We should have named our farm "Arctic Farm."

Tom Glotfelty, Detroit, was in the area for a short visit last week, and he and his son Tim spent an evening enjoying tubing at the Wisp. Dwaine, Lisa, Adam, and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg, spent the weekend with relatives here, and took in some ice fishing and skiing while here.

Paul and Alberta Nolder, Arlene Meyers and two children, Allison and John, Baltimore, and Bernadette Henson and daughter Michaele, St. Albans, W.Va., were here last week to attend the funeral service for the late Russell Klotz, Hoyes, on Thursday. They stayed at the home of the late Elwood and Beatrice Glotfelty, now owned by Tom Glotfelty, and returned to their homes Thursday afternoon.

Farming On The Mountaintop

State Ag Stats Service To Hold Workshop At Wisp

The Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service will conduct a workshop for field staff at the Wisp Conference Center, McHenry, on Feb. 11 through 13. Members of the West Virginia Agricultural Statistics Service, headquartered in Charleston, W.Va., will also be in attendance.

The purpose of the workshop is to prepare for the Agricultural Resource Management Costs and Returns Survey. This survey gathers information from area farmers about the costs of agriculture production, farm management and marketing strategies, farm assets and liabilities, and characteristics of the farm family.

Results of the survey are used to determine what it costs to produce various crop and livestock commodities and to characterize the demographic and financial situation of agricultural producers.

In Maryland, this information is useful to farm organizations, universities, legislators, and lenders and they direct programs and research in agriculture. The information is also used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Congress to make national policy decisions, and by the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis to calculate the farm sector portion of the nation's Gross Domestic Product (GDP).

Agriculture producers who have been selected for the survey will be contacted for an interview in late February or early March. The results of the survey will be available in July 2003 from the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service office in Annapolis. Survey results will also be posted on the Internet at www.usda.gov/nass.

State's Farmers' Markets Report A Banner Year

Maryland's expanding network of farmers' markets had a banner year in 2002, according to results of a county-by-county baseline survey conducted by the Maryland Department of Agriculture. The 60 of 67 farmers' markets responding to the survey estimated gross sales of $7.1 million and more than 600,000 shopping visits by customers. With the opening this year of a market in Centreville, Queen Anne's County, there was at least one market operating in all 23 counties and Baltimore City.

"Our survey confirms that farmers' markets are more popular than ever among consumers, and farmers are benefiting with direct income," said Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "Increasingly, people are seeking a diverse array of fresh, local foods, and farmers are responding with high quality products. The markets also are popular gathering places that provide a sense of community and connection with the farmer."

Of the 60 markets responding, 28 reported increased business over the past year, citing more vendors, expanded product lines and market days, better locations, and increased use of Farmers' Market Nutrition Program coupons among senior citizens and WIC program participants. Only six reported less business, blaming less supply on the drought, new locations, and last fall's sniper attacks for keeping customers away.

Additional highlights of the survey include: 526 vendors selling at a total of 1,540 market days, and a greater variety of products. In addition to those with fresh produce, markets included 64 vendors with plants and herbs, 23 bakers, 19 other foods, seven with meat, four with seafood, and three dairy operations. Wine, emu meat, and fresh compost were among the most unique products. Expansion of the network with eight new markets was noted. Only two previously operating markets closed.

For further information or county-specific details, persons may contact Tony Evans, Maryland Department of Agriculture, at 410-841-5770.

NHS STUDENTS VOLUNTEER WITH BLIND SKIERS – Four students from Northern High School spent a day on the slopes of the Wisp skiing with students from the Maryland School for the Blind. The group spent the morning skiing, and after sharing lunch enjoyed an afternoon of tubing at the Bear Claw Tubing Park. The activities were part of the blind skier guide program sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club. Over 30 Northern High students are volunteering with the Blind Skier Program, and receive community service learning hours for their participation. Many have already completed their service learning requirements, but still return to assist with the blind skiers each year. This year's program will continue through Sunday, Feb. 16. The NHS students pictured with the blind students are, seated in the middle, Evan Graham, while standing from the left are Tommy Menges, Kris Carr, and Chad Carr.

Event Slated To Address Mental Illness Stigmas

Mountain Top Mental Health Associates will conduct a two-session workshop titled "Stigma...In Our Work, In Our Lives." This workshop targets anyone directly or indirectly involved with the mental health or substance abuse arenas.

"Stigma...In Our Work, in Our Lives" is an interactive workshop designed to reduce stigmatizing attitudes, behaviors, and practices within the mental health community.

The first session will be held Wednesday, Feb. 19, from 9 a.m. until noon at Harvey House, Oakland. This session is for consumers, family members, and the general public.

The second session will be held Wednesday, March 19, from 9 a.m. until noon in the conference room at the Garrett County Health Department, Oakland. This session is for providers of mental health services.

Through a variety of learning approaches, participants will identify stigmatizing behaviors and attitudes, and deepen their understanding and awareness of how stigma affects everyone in the mental health community.

They will discuss the impact of stigma on the design, delivery, and receipt of mental health services, and design a plan to combat stigma on both a personal and group level.

For more information, persons may call Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc. at 301-334-8144.

Children's Dental Health Month

by Cynthia Heselbach, RDH
Garrett County Health Department
Dental Care Center

A very common question I am asked is "When should I take my child to the dentist?" The American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry recommends the first visit to the dentist be when the first tooth comes in, between 6 to 12 months of age. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that the first visit should be at age 3.

So when should the first visit be? If your child doesn't have any risk factors for developing cavities, such as walking around all day with sippy cups containing sugary liquids or sleeping with a bottle, and the teeth seem to be developing normally, then you can probably wait until they are 3 years old. If the habits I mentioned are occurring you may want to consider making that first dental appointment. Also, if your child has developed any other problems such as stains, cavities, and toothaches, consult your dentist immediately.

At the first dental appointment the dentist or dental hygienist can help educate you about your child's oral health by identifying risk factors for developing cavities, teaching proper brushing techniques, giving diet recommendations, discussing persistent thumb-sucking habits, giving recommendations for treatment, and discussing any other possible problems or concerns.

For more information about your child's dental health, call the Garrett County Health Department's Dental Care Center at 301-334-7660. "We're here to give you something to smile about."

THOSE RELENTLESS DRIFTS – We keep plowing and it keeps blowing, on and on this winter. The drifts know no boundaries, though, and the wind has been fierce this week. While living at the end of a long driveway has its advantages, they aren't so obvious in the middle of winter, as illustrated in the picture above. The harsh weather has caused school closings and countless postponements of a wide range of community events. More snow is predicted this weekend, with some talk of a significant storm. Families are much more likely to stay at home these cold days, perhaps dusting off board games for a good round of play, or putting out jigsaw puzzles. There is hope, though, in the fact that spring will indeed come, and this winter will be one to be remembered.

First Phase Of Third Street Bridge Finished

Engineer Dwight Emory of the Roads Department reported to the Garrett County commissioners this week that phase I of the Oakland Third Street bridge project was been completed.

CSX has approved the height of the proposed bridge, and a type, size, and location (TS&L) application has now been submitted to the state for its approval as well, Emory said.

"Once the TS&L is approved," the engineer said, "then the final design, the true nuts and bolts design, will be submitted for approval." After that approval has been received and the federal funding secured, the project will be advertised for construction bids.

"At this point," Emory said, "we're trying to get the final design by December of this year."

The final stage of the project, the actual construction of the new bridge, may take six to eight months. The bridge could be finished by October 2004.

Emory stressed, however, that given the complexities of the bridge's design and its funding aspects, a definite completion date was difficult to predict.

The engineer described the two-lane structure as a "through-girder or beam bridge." It will be designed to blend with the rest of the town's architecture and will include a pedestrian walkway and period street lamps.

Additionally, both the top and bottom of the raised

RECEIVES HONOR FROM STATE – Howard Kepple, owner of Appalachian Iron, was recently recognized as the state's first Microbusiness Person of the Year. The event was hosted by the Microenterprise Council of Maryland (MCM), a statewide nonprofit network of public agencies and private companies who provide direct services and support to people starting their own microbusinesses. A microbusiness is simply a business with five or fewer employees. Pictured above, from the left, are Commissioners Fred Holliday and David Beard; and Mikal McCartney, executive director of MCM; Donna Butts and Kepple of Appalachian Iron; Tim Magrath, western Maryland field representative for Senator Paul Sarbanes; Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.; and Commissioner Ernie Gregg. Hafer Sponsors Bus Safety Bill, Hearing Today

Senator John Hafer (R-D1) has again introduced legislation in the General Assembly which would increase penalties for drivers who fail to stop for school buses with activated flashing red lights.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee was scheduled to hear SB 370 today, Feb. 13, in Annapolis at 2 p.m. The legislation is co-sponsored this year by 12 other senators.

Kepple Recognized As State's First Microbusiness Person Of The Year

Local and state officials, community and economic development organizations, banking partners, family, and employees gathered in Garrett County recently to recognize Howard Kepple as the state's first Microbusiness Person of the Year. The event was hosted by the Microenterprise Council of Maryland (MCM), a statewide nonprofit network of public agencies and private companies who provide direct services and support to people starting their own microbusinesses. A microbusiness is simply a business with five or fewer employees.

Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. (GCCAC), greeted guests and introduced Mikal McCartney, executive director of MCM. McCartney formerly served as the vice president of Community and Economic Development for GCCAC. "Almost 65% of the small businesses in Maryland are microenterprises," said McCartney in her remarks to the attendees.

Garrett County commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernie Gregg, and David Beard presented Kepple with a commendation from Garrett County. Yoder read a proclamation from the Maryland State Senate signed by Senate President Mike Miller and Senator John Hafer. Tim Magrath gave remarks on behalf of Senator Paul Sarbanes and joined in presenting the awards made to Kepple from MCM.

Funding for the GCCAC Microworks program has been provided through the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development Neighborhood Business Development Program and Community Development Block Grant Program, USDA IRP Revolving Loan Program, Appalachian Regional Commission, and M&T Bank. David Worthing from M&T told the group, "microenterprise is a valuable strategy in the economic development picture

Commissioners Reduce Business Property Tax Another 25 Percent

The Garrett County commissioners this week officially reduced the business personal property tax by an additional 25 percent. The reduction will go into effect in the next fiscal year.

County administrator Monty Pagenhardt described this latest reduction as "historic."

According to Financial Services director Wendy Yoder, the cut will decrease the county revenue realized by the tax by approximately $705,853 in the FY 2004 budget.

"We feel this will be regenerated into the local economy by the businesses and that we'll get this back," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

The reduction is part of a multi-year plan, which began in 1999, to eventually delete tax on business personal property. This year's cut brings the total reduction of the tax to 75 percent.

"I feel we need to support all business, those [in business] now and the ones coming," said Commissioner Fred Holliday, adding that the tax was "unfair." "As a businessman, I often paid more in taxes for an unsold item that was sitting on a shelf than it was actually worth."

Newly elected Commissioner David Beard noted that reducing and eventually eliminating the business tax was one of his campaign promises. "I don't make promises I don't keep," he said. He described the 25 percent reduction as "significant," adding that it would encourage growth in the commercial and business areas.

Hearing Set For Liquor Board's Bills

A hearing will be held next week in Annapolis for three bills that were requested by the Garrett County Liquor Control Board.

Introduced on behalf of the board by Senator John Hafer, SB 275 would allow Garrett County microbreweries to sell beer in nonrefillable containers for off-premises consumption.

SB 276 would authorize the Board of License Commissioners of Garrett County to subpoena records or papers pertaining to a business or establishment that is licensed for alcoholic beverages.

The third bill, SB 278, would enable the board to issue wine and beer tasting licenses. The board would regulate the quantity of wine or beer served.

The Senate Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee will hold the hearing on the bills on Thursday, Feb. 20, at 1 p.m. in the West Miller Senate Building.

A fourth bill, which was requested by the Garrett County commissioners, will also be heard by the committee at that time. SB 277

House Slightly Damaged By Fire, Then Gutted After Second Alarm

An investigation is continuing into a suspicious fire that resulted in major damage to a two-story wood-frame house located at 57 Steyer Gorman Road on Monday.

It was the second time in two days that area volunteer fire departments were called to the residence, owned by Ella Mae Ford and occupied by her and five members of the Jeffery Travis family, with the first incident occurring Saturday night.

According to a report from the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, a visitor at the house on Saturday smelled smoke, and upon investigation, a small fire was discovered in an exterior wall at the rear of the house. Gorman and Mt. Storm firefighters responded to the scene at 10:18 p.m. and the fire was quickly extinguished, with the damages estimated to be $35.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Steve Wendling ruled the cause of the fire as arson, and issued a public request for any information persons might have about the crime.

Then at 8:16 p.m. Monday, firefighters from Gorman, Oakland, Bayard, Mt. Storm, and Tri-Towns VFDs were called to the residence once again, and this time found the entire rear of the house ablaze.

Ford and Jeffery, Christina, Cecil, Ashley, and Nancy Travis all escaped the house and were uninjured.

It took the approximately 55 volunteers about two hours to bring the fire under control. Wendling's report estimated the damages to be $40,000 to the structure and an additional $15,000 to contents.

One firefighter, Marshall Neel of the Gorman VFD, was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad, where he was treated and released for smoke inhalation.

The causes of both fires remain under investigation.

Inglese Gets 10 Years In DOC For Drug Conviction

An Oakland man was sentenced last week in Garrett County Circuit Court for possession with intent to distribute cocaine. Judge Fred A. Thayer (ret.) sentenced Michael Anthony Inglese to 10 years in the Department of Corrections for the conviction.

Inglese, 51, had pleaded guilty to the charge in October, and the court conducted a pre-sentence investigation prior to his sentencing.

Officers with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force executed search and seizure warrants at the Inglese residence and business in January 2002. Items relating to drug use and distribution, as well as gambling paraphernalia, and money were seized, said State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Inglese and his wife Phyllis both pleaded guilty to gambling charges in Garrett County District Court last fall. Phyllis Inglese also pleaded guilty to possession charges and served a sentence in Garrett County, including jail time and house arrest.

The U.S. Attorney's Office is handling cases involving the forfeiture of the Inglese business property and monies seized from their home, business, and bank accounts, according to Thayer Welch.

"READY TO ROLL, MOM AND DAD!" – Young Courtney Minnick is shown demonstrating the proper use of her rear-facing child safety seat as she gets in the act for National Child Passenger Safety Week, which continues through this Saturday, Feb. 15. Chilling government statistics show that motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children age 4 to 14, and studies have shown that correctly used child safety seats can save a child's life up to 71 percent of the time. "Keeping children safe on the road means putting them in the right restraint at the right age," said Highway Safety coordinator Diane Lee of the Garrett County Health Department. "Securing your child in the right restraint at the right time is one of the most important things you can do to protect your child." See inside this section for a story on child passenger safety, complete with more photos.

SMOKE, NOT SNOW — Smoke rolled above the McHenry Cove at Deep Creek Lake yesterday afternoon, as volunteer firefighters from Deep Creek and Accident VFDs were summoned to the Point View Inn after a blaze broke out in a small cabin adjacent to the inn. The single-story, wood-frame structure, which was already being demolished, was gutted by the fire. The cause was reportedly a heater that was too close to combustible material. Additional information was unavailable this morning. Fire units remained on the scene for about two hours. Photo by John McEwen.

Budget Battles May Force General Assembly Into Extended Session

By TOM LOBIANCO
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Budget battles may force the General Assembly into an extended session, state leaders said Wednesday. Senate Finance Chairman Thomas M. Middleton, D-Charles County, said he thinks an extended session is likely, but passing a good budget takes precedence over ending the session on time.

The budget must be passed by the 90th day, or the final day, of the scheduled session; otherwise, legislators must stay until the budget is passed. Already the budget is expected to reach the Senate one week later than is typical, Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, told senators Wednesday. The budget must pass the House of Delegates before the Senate can vote on it.

"We're going to be in a crunch time the last couple days of session," Miller told senators Wednesday.

The last extended session was in 1992, during a time of similar fiscal problems, said Warren Deschenaux, director of the Office of Policy Analysis. He said it is too early to determine whether an extended session is necessary.

"I think it's something that you need to be prepared to do," Middleton said. "Not only is this the biggest deficit that I've ever seen since I've been up here . . . you have a very controversial piece to the budget and that adds a whole lot of uncertainty."

The state faces a $1.2 billion budget gap in fiscal year 2004. Gov. Robert Ehrlich proposed legalizing slot machines to produce $400 million in revenue to close part of that gap and has told lawmakers he will veto any tax increases.

House leaders will have a difficult time passing the budget without slots revenue, Miller said. House leaders, including Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, and House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, oppose slot machines and offered budget alternatives to their revenue. Barve said he has enough votes to block slots legislation in the House.

"The bottom line is we can balance the budget without legalizing slot machines," Barve said. Closing corporate tax loopholes could offset the loss of slots revenue, he said.

"You can't just say 'No, no, no,' or vote no and participate in demagoguery," Ehrlich said. "This is a serious budget situation, we have a shortfall. We've identified a new revenue source. We think it makes sense. . . . Just saying 'No' is not good enough."

Ehrlich said he and Miller have enough combined clout to legalize slots this session. He also has said he has a supermajority of lawmakers waiting to vote for the proposal.

"He's not completely correct," Barve said. "I can't see how he says he has a 'supermajority.'"

Before any budget is passed, leaders in the House and Senate need to start talking with each other, said House Health and Government Operations Committee chairman John Hurson, D-Montgomery.

"We haven't come to an understanding," Hurson said, a few hours after a fiscal policy meeting between House and Senate leaders was canceled. Regardless of where legislators stand on the governor's proposal the debate will take time, Middleton said.

"You just aren't going to be able to put together a bill and run it through," Middelton said. "It can be very, very complicated and require a lot more time."

Local Resident Wins Title Of "Miss Teen Frostburg"

Garrett County resident Kenzie Craig will be on her way to the Miss Teen Maryland Pageant this summer after winning the Miss Teen Frostburg Pageant this past weekend at Beall High School. The 14-year-old Southern High School freshman is the daughter of Mark and Randee Craig of Deer Park.

The Frostburg Pageant contestants were judged in the categories of judges' interview, talent, eveningwear, and sportswear. A panel of four judges rated the competitors.

During her portion of the judges' interviews, Craig explained her interest in promoting literacy in the youngest of children. She has been volunteering for a year with the Books for Babies literacy program, and makes frequent visits to child birthing classes, where she speaks to expecting parents about the importance of reading to children of any age. She also distributes books and pamphlets on the topic at child birthing classes.

"I want to be an elementary teacher. I love being with children," Craig said, adding that she has tutored first graders. She also makes a point of reading to her charges during the many babysitting duties she performs for families in her neighborhood.

Craig donned a 1950s-style prom dress to sing "Stupid Cupid," an old Connie Francis hit, during her talent portion of the competition.

The Frostburg contest was divided into two age categories, with a teen level and a group older than teens. The top winners in each group were selected as Miss Frostburg, while the runners-up in each group were named Miss Mountain City. While Craig won the Miss Teen Frostburg title, Jessica Seminerio of Frostburg was Miss Teen Mountain City. Miss Frostburg honors went to Laura Kelly (hometown not available), while Miss Mountain City was Rachel Ellsworth of Fort Ashby, W.Va.

CRAIG IS MISS TEEN FROSTBURG — After winning the Miss Teen Frostburg Pageant this past weekend, 14-year-old Garrett County resident Kenzie Craig will be on her way to the Miss Teen Maryland Pageant this summer in Hagerstown. The Southern High School freshman is the daughter of Mark and Randee Craig of Deer Park. Garrett County elementary school teacher Kim Grimm-Weimer, former Miss Maryland, served as master of ceremonies for the Frostburg event. See story.

The plans for Spruce Forest Artisan Village's fourth annual Cherries & Chill Festival have been finalized. The event will be held this Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14-15, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on both days. Admission is free. The village is located east of Grantsville along the Old National Road.

The event will feature the village's professional artisans, who will be at work inside their log cabin studios on both days of the festival.

Saturday activities include the Cherry Dessert Contest in the Village Church, with entries due between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. There is no cost to enter, and prizes and gift certificates will be awarded to the winners in each category.

A public tasting will follow the judging and awards presentations at 11 a.m.

A children's Cherry and Scavenger Hunt begins at noon, under the direction of members of the D&D Wildcats cheerleaders of Westmar Middle School. Prizes will be awarded.

Dennis Morris, a teacher at Fountain Primary School, will portray Abraham Lincoln at the Village Church at 1 p.m. He will deliver the "Gettysburg Address" and be available for photos. At 2 p.m. "President Lincoln" will tell stories about his boyhood. There will also be interactive storytelling, singing, and dancing with him.

New to the festival this year are complimentary seated massages, which will be given by certified massage therapists in the Compton School from 12:30 until 4:30 p.m. Optional donations will be designated for the Garrett County Recreational Trails Project.

Refreshments and door prizes will also be available. The festival will be held rain, snow, or shine. For details, persons may call Trish Morgan weekdays at 301-895-3332.

Anne Arundel Co. Woman Injured In Sunday Accident

Maryland State Police troopers assigned to Barrack W at McHenry reported two accident investigations of this past week.

A Sunday morning crash on Garrett Highway at Sang Run Road resulted in minor injuries for a Crofton resident, who was charged in the mishap. Shortly before 11 a.m. Ariel Michael, 30, was traveling north when she came upon a line of traffic waiting for a lead car to make a turn. Michael's 2002 Kia Spectra reportedly failed to slow for the traffic, and struck a 1996 Dodge Stratus in the rear. The Dodge was pushed into the rear of a 2002 Land Rover Discovery. Neither the Dodge driver, Jennifer Grant, 20, Oakland, nor the Land Rover operator, 32-year-old Cara Curreri of Baltimore, were injured in the collisions.

Michael was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company assisted at the scene.

Michael was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

In other accident investigations, two Grantsville juveniles were injured Saturday when their car slid off a snow-covered Bear Hill Road and struck a tree. Their names and injury status were not released.

The 17-year-old driver was traveling north when she lost control of her 1990 Plymouth Sundance at 10:41 a.m. just south of Jennings Road, according to police reports. Both the driver and her 15-year-old passenger were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad, which was assisted by the Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department.

War Stories TV Program Reset For This Sunday

This weekend's installment of War Stories With Oliver North, a Fox News Channel military history television series, will include interview footage with World War II veteran and Loch Lynn resident George Perrine. This is a rescheduled broadcast of a program (previously announced in The Republican) that was pre-empted because of ongoing news coverage of the Columbia space shuttle disaster.

The nationwide broadcast of "The Desert War" episode is set for 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16, with a second airing slated for 1 a.m. Monday, Feb. 17. The episode will focus on the American effort to liberate North Africa from the German army of occupation. Then-Pvt. Perrine served in the campaign as an armored car crew member in a reconnaissance battalion of the U.S. Army's 2nd Armored Division.

Solid Waste Dept. Now Managed By General Services

The Garrett County commissioners this week transferred the comprehensive management of the Office of Solid Waste and Recycling to the Department of General Services. The county government will now have a Division of Solid Waste and Recycling under the authority of General Services.

"It was evident that county government needed management direction and a concentrated focus to assure that all issues are addressed and completed on a more proficient basis," said county administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

He said the decision was made after examining the number of "significant" Solid Waste projects going on at this time and the department's "administrative, environmental, and operational areas of responsibility."

Gary Mullich, director of General Services, will now be responsible for administrative management of solid waste and recycling responsibilities.

Former Solid Waste and Recycling director Gary Love will remain with the Department of General Services as supervisor of solid waste. He will report directly to Mullich.

"Gary Mullich has been a proven manager with our organization, and he has over 25 years of management experience," said Pagenhardt. "The Board of County Commissioners and I are very confident he will provide the leadership and attention that is essential at this time."

Garrett County government operates the main landfill operation and six refuse collection sites, and oversees the countywide recycling program.

LOCAL COMPANY, NEWSPAPER HONORED — Sincell Publishing Company, publisher of Garrett County's weekly newspaper The Republican, was recently named the recipient of the 2002 Outstanding Media Award for Region XI, Mid-Atlantic Division, of the American Cancer Society. The Republican was selected from among scores of print, radio, and television media in the 26-county region (West Virginia and western Maryland) for providing extensive coverage of the ASC programs and fund-raising efforts. The award was presented at a recent ACS volunteers meeting in Bridgeport, W.Va. Accepting the plaque in behalf of all of the company employees was Don Sincell, editor of The Republican, who is pictured above with Diana Harrison, vice president of Region XI.

Bridge Phase

bridge will be bowed in order to accommodate trains passing beneath it.

A truss-type bridge was considered. "But [it] didn't look as nice as beam, and it didn't look work out economically," said the engineer.

Part of the street leading to and from the bridge will have to be built up in order to accommodate the raised structure. Utility lines will have to be relocated, and Water Street may have to be realigned as well.

As a result, adjacent property owners have raised concerns about how the changes will affect them. "We are addressing those concerns," said Emory. "There were questions about approach work and how it will affect them. We are looking at alternatives."

He and Oakland officials met with the property owners and reviewed the TS&L drawings and profile views of the bridge.

Eighty percent of the projected $1.2 million funding, which was allocated to the FY 2001 transportation budget, will come from the Federal Bridge Program. The state, however, approves the bridge's design and other aspects of the projects, said Emory.

"The town believes it can get CSX to contribute to the remaining 20 percent cost share," he added.

Once the bridge is completed, Oakland will be responsible for the structure's maintenance, and it will no longer be on the county's inventory list, according to Emory. "Mayor McCain has indicted that the town will take over [responsibility of the bridge]," he added.

The TS&L drawings of the bridge and the profile views that CSX approved are available for public review at Oakland city hall.

A formal presentation of the bridge's final design will be held after it is approved by the state, said Emory.

Another Editor's Thoughts...

The bulk of this column today is composed of "stolen" words of another editor, for which we will give credit near the end. The following paragraph is a portion of a February 5 editorial:

"We believe that it would be a mistake for the United States and its allies, confronted with continued intransigence, to shrink again from decisive action in Iraq. Unless unexpected change takes place in Baghdad, the United States should lead a force to remove Saddam Hussein's dictatorship and locate and destroy its chemical and biological weapons and its nuclear program. The Iraqi regime poses a threat not just to the United States, but to global order. The removal of Saddam Hussein would advance the task of containing the spread of weapons of mass destruction to rogue states. It also would free millions of Iraqis from deprivation and oppression...,"

What follows are the words of the same editor in an editorial published this morning:

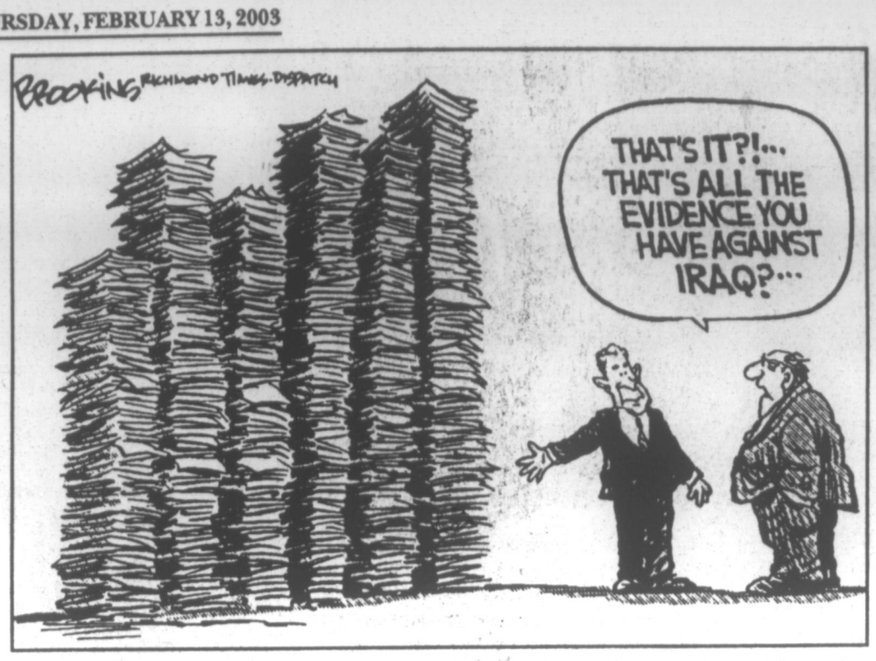
"For more than two decades, the country tried a strategy of not poking the hornet's nest — a strategy of accommodation, half-measures, and wishful thinking. In the 1980s the United States sold arms to the Iranian government that had kidnapped American citizens, and withdrew its Marines from Lebanon after a suicide bomber destroyed their barracks. In the 1990s a warlord's attacks prompted America to retreat from Somalia, and a fundamentalist government in Afghanistan allowed thousands of Islamist extremists to learn to kill Americans while America, knowing what was happening, did not interfere. Terrorists bombed the World Trade Center in New York in 1993, a U.S. military dormitory in Saudi Arabia in 1996, two American embassies in Africa in 1998, the USS Cole in 2000 — and each time America responded feebly or not at all. During the past decade the United States vowed many times to disarm Saddam Hussein, who made no secret of his hatred and enmity toward the United States; but when the Iraqi dictator resisted, the United States chose to abandon its vows rather than use the force that would have been needed to enforce them. In every case, the calculation, stated or unstated, was the same: Pay tribute, don't make trouble, and maybe nothing worse will happen.

"In the ruins of Lower Manhattan in September 2001, most Americans saw evidence that this calculation was incorrect as well as craven. The nation's enemies would not be deterred or mollified by a gentle response; they would be emboldened. President Bush rightly concluded that the nation had to defend itself more vigilantly — but also that no defense could succeed unless accompanied by an offensive against the terrorists and the states that sheltered them.

"The resolve to disarm Saddam Hussein, finally, 12 years after the United Nations first insisted, grows inescapably from this new understanding..., To allow him once again to outmaneuver the United Nations and continue his quest for nuclear weapons would subject Americans to unacceptable risks. It would also show other terrorist sponsors that, brave 9/11 rhetoric notwithstanding, they still have nothing to fear. The longer he remains unchallenged, the greater the risk...,"

One might guess that these are the words of an editor of a right-wing publication, or possibly some kind of military newspaper. In fact (brace yourself), these are the words of the editor of the Washington Post, a publication typically hated by conservatives, and one that has been rarely, rarely supportive of a Republican administration.

As much as we dread even thinking about going to war, the logic expressed by the Post editor makes a lot of sense. It was Theodore Roosevelt who said, "The only man who makes a mistake is the man who does nothing." America simply cannot allow the patterns of the past 12 years to continue, and they will continue — and get worse — as long as Hussein is allowed to stay in power.



The Appropriate Time?
By Beth L. Bowers

I was rummaging through the attic this weekend, looking for any hidden "treasures" I might find. Under old book reports and art projects, I came across a large trunk, and I couldn't remember what was in it. It was full of my journals, reams and reams of my life. I can very clearly remember the first entry. It was Dec. 31, 1986, and I was a freshman in high school. I can even remember exactly where I was sitting and can even picture the first page as I made my first entry. I had received the journal and matching pencil for Christmas, and as I made my first entry I knew this would be something I would continue every day.

In fact, I wrote each day for about 10 years. I would like to be disciplined enough to start again, although these entries would be entirely different. They would consist of Carter's latest adventures, like when he cleaned out the ashes from the fireplace with his hands and proceeded to rub them into the carpet, or Tyler's latest comments about his "sponserbility" (responsibility) as a big brother.

Those who have kept journals know the importance and value of them. They are not to be read by anyone else, for that would be a violation of the person's soul. My college roommate and I both kept journals, so we each knew how important it was to feel that one's journal was safe. We would both sit on our tiny little couch side by side and write for hours. We could even keep our journals on our eclectic Salvation Army table, and we each knew the other wouldn't even think of taking a peek.

Even as I opened the trunk, I knew that this was not the time to start the walk down memory lane. Not that there is anything incriminating in the journals; I could run for public office and no tabloids would be able to use any of those entries against me. But for some reason, I have always envisioned myself reading them when I am much, much older.

Maybe that is because I did read my entry about the birth of my first child while I was three-quarters of the way through my pregnancy with the second child. I hadn't been keeping a daily journal, but a nurse suggested I write my experience down. I did, and it was great to get it all down on paper. I had forgotten how there is almost a sense of relief when writing for one's self. Writing news stories on a daily basis is such a different exercise. I had put the pages in Tyler's baby book, and while cleaning out some drawers (I was in the nesting stage), I came across the book and started flipping through it. I started to read my writings about my labor and delivery. It is amazing how selective one's memory becomes. There were many details that I had completely forgotten, and at 8 months pregnant I wish I would not have remembered them. I remember getting that little bit of panic and wondering, "What am I doing? I have to go through that again?"

I think that is when I realized that rereading journals too close to the time of entry isn't the best thing to do, but maybe if it keeps snowing I might dig them out some weekend so I can jet back to a different time, maybe even a warmer, less snowy time.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

It should be noted that many of these are toptier and high level jobs, the jobs of bosses and bosses' bosses, which don't come under the merit system but do come with commensurate pay scales in the $80,000 to $120,000 yearly salary range.

May we suggest an easy solution for the budget crisis?

Don't fill any of these positions! Empty the positions, but leave the administrative assistants and executive secretaries to all these highfalutin' spots in place. After all, they do all the real work, have all the records, type all the memos and proposals, and know where all the bodies are buried!

If the average wage of the positions of these big wigs is $100,000, and 500 appointed positions are slashed, we save $50,000,000 in unnecessary salaries! And if there are 7,425 full-time paid state employees who would otherwise be appointed to these positions as they suspect may be the case, we would conservatively save $500,000,000 — a half-billion dollars — in salaries right there, or almost a third of the projected budget deficit for the next fiscal year!

So Governor Ehrlich can just do what we all know is true anyway. He can give full faith and credit to the wonderful and hard-working administrative assistants and secretaries who already perform their bosses' jobs, and save tens to hundreds of millions of tax-payer monies! He will even get a political bonus, as this will truly show he isn't for the fat cats (as claimed), but the little people!

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

To the Editor:

If your surname is Savage and you live in the Garrett, Fayette, Preston County tri-state area, you are probably descended from Robinson T. Savage, who, in the late 1700s, settled along Buffalo Run near Blooming Rose, Garrett County. If you are a Casteel, Markley, Hoye, or any of dozens of other old Garrett County families, you may also be descended from old Robinson.

Robinson T. Savage Sr. was one of the early pioneers of Garrett County and the first school teacher in western Maryland. He was a contemporary of the famous Garrett County pioneer and hunter, Meshack Browning. Browning, in his well-known book, 44 Years in the Life of a Hunter, describes how he and Robinson Savage were both sergeants in Captain Beall's regiment during the War of 1812.

I am R. Blair Savage, author of the family history book Savage is My Name, and I am continuing my research on the Savage descendents of Robinson T. Savage and have constructed a family tree with close to 4,000 names. This document may be viewed on the Internet at <www.genealogy.com/users/s/a/v/R-B-Savage. (This address is case sensitive.)

The Savage book can be found at the public libraries in Oakland, Uniontown, Pa., and Morgantown, W.Va., and at the Friend Library in Friendsville.

I am in need of local help to place two individuals in their proper location in the Savage tree. One of these individuals was Brewston Savage, probably Brewston Amos Savage. He was born circa 1812 and died circa 1848. He reportedly married Catherine Casteel in 1837. He is believed to be a son of Robinson T. Savage. The second individual was Calvin R. Savage. He was born circa 1835 and married Sarah A. Smalley. In 1880, Calvin and his family are listed in the Wharton Twp., Fayette Co., Pa., census. I believe Calvin may have been a son of Brewston Savage.

If you have any old Savage family history that could help identify these two individuals, or have information that you would like added to my web site, I would deeply appreciate your help. I may be contacted by e-mail at rbsavage@comcast.net; by regular mail at 3863 Jungle Plum Dr. E, Naples, FL 34114; or by phone at 239-304-0528.

To the Editor:

After the recession of the early 1990s, the unemployment rate began to drop until it reached 3.9% in 1998. Full employment is achieved when the unemployment rate hits 4% or lower. Full employment means that everyone who wants a job can, in essence, find a job.

However, as the unemployment rate approached 4%, Corporate America began to complain to the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, the Federal Reserve chairman Alan Greenspan, President Clinton, and Congress that there were too many jobs and not enough workers. As a result of this imbalance, corporate executives were fearful that they would have to pay their employees more to keep them from jumping to other companies. Corporate executives slyly convinced the aforementioned that if they had to raise salaries to attract and maintain workers, the inflation rate would increase and American companies would be less competitive in the global economy. As a result, Alan Greenspan and the Federal Reserve Board started to look for ways to slow the economy.

The solution to slowing the economy was not to raise taxes. With the approval of Congress and President Clinton, Alan Greenspan began to raise the prime interest rate. This slowed the economy in 2000 creating the present recession.

In 1994, the Republicans introduced their infamous "Contract with America." A part of the contract called for a constitutional amendment for a balanced budget every year, no exceptions.

No exceptions meant a balanced budget during times of war, recession, national emergency, etc. The Republicans pointed to the states as an example. Most states are required to balance their budgets every year. The Republican argument: Why not the federal government?

In the 1994 off-year elections, the Republicans gained in both the House and Senate. President Clinton then declared that the era of big government was over. With the help of the Republican House and Democratic Senate, Clinton cut the size of government and eventually submitted budgets that resulted in not only a balanced budget, but also an annual surplus in the budget to be applied to the national debt.

Under Bill Clinton's plan, we the people could have paid off the national debt by the year 2010, applied the interest on the national debt to Social Security, and extending the solvency of Social Security to the year 2053.

After the Electoral College voted George W. Bush (GWB) in as president, he took office in 2001 and immediately cut taxes and increased government (military) spending. GWB sold his tax cut as an economic stimulus plan. It never materialized. The Republicans and the Bush administration now argue that it actually reduced the harmful effects of the recession.

In 2001, after the GWB tax cut, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) began forecasting deficit spending and an increase in the national debt. The events of September 11, 2001, compounded this problem as government spending increased at an ever-alarming rate.

Now, GWB wants to cut taxes again and is trying again to sell it as an economic stimulus plan.

When Ronald Reagan reduced taxes in the 1980's, Federal Reserve chairman Paul Volker at that time was reducing the prime interest rates.

When you reduce interest rates, businesses borrow and expand their operations. This puts people to work. When people are working and making good money, they pay taxes. The more people paying taxes, the more the government collects in taxes. This caused the increase in taxes collected during the Reagan administration, not tax cuts.

However, Reagan's extreme tax cuts and increases in government (military) spending resulted in budget deficits and the ballooning of the national debt. To counter this problem, poor George H. Bush was forced to increase taxes "Read my lips, no new taxes."

As a result of the recession that began during the first Bush (GHB) administration, interest rates were being reduced during the first term of the Clinton presidency. This bit of information has been lost because the Republicans never want you to forget that Clinton raised taxes.

Even though Clinton raised taxes, the economy boomed as a result of lowering interest rates (cheap money supply). This was helped along by the technology boom of the time. The ball started to roll. Businesses started to borrow and expand their operations. This put American taxpayers to work. People pay taxes. The more people working, the more taxes being paid to the government. Also, people started investing more in the stock market. Everybody was happy.

Just as raising the prime interest rate slowed the economy, lowering the prime interest rate will grow the economy.

Tax cuts are just a political tool to get you to vote. They have very little positive effects on the economy. However, they have a major impact on the annual budget deficit/surplus and the national debt.

The United States does not need another tax cut as GWB indicated in his State of the Nation speech last week. In an interview with the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, outgoing Republican Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill said money from the president's $674 billion tax-cut plan would be better spent on shoring up the nation's ailing Social Security system.

In the same article, O'Neill referred to the House Republican economic stimulus package as "show business" and that the government should not be expected to provide short-term economic fixes.

GWB never mentioned the budget deficit, national debt, or even the foreign trade deficit in his State of the Union speech. Correcting these problems will also grow the economy. Cutting taxes, borrowing, and spending will only create long-term economic problems for future generations of Americans.

According to several AP wire stories explaining why Ehrlich's web site is jammed with personnel applications and resumes, there are from 201 agency chiefs to apparently 7,425 full-time paid state employees who serve "at-the-pleasure" of the governor, and applicants are pouring in to fill the many vacancies expected to result from a full house-cleaning.

COMMISSIONERS RECOGNIZE IMPORTANCE OF EARLY DETECTION – The Garrett County commissioners this week recognized the Garrett County Cancer Coalition. Also known as Attorneys Advocating Early Cancer Detection, the group's purpose is to provide funding for residents who cannot afford early cancer screenings, said Judge Ralph Burnett. The coalition's "quilt bash" last year brought in $5,000. Burnett said they hope to raise even more money this year. The group also raises money to fund advertising campaigns promoting early testing. A cancer survivor himself, the judge stressed that early detection of certain types of cancers – such as prostate, colon/rectal, breast, and skin – was vital. "If one can be screened early enough," he said, "a person can live a fairly normal life." Pictured above, left to right, in the front row are attorneys Carole Perez and Liz Moran. In the back row are Commissioner David Beard, State's Attorney's Office investigator William Ferry, Burnett, Commissioner Fred Holliday, and Commissioner Ernie Gregg, who is also a coalition member. The group is seeking volunteers to help with fund-raisers. "We need more dedicated individuals," said Burnett. Persons interested in helping may call Moran at the State's Attorney's Office at 301-334-1969. For information about cancer screening programs, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7777.

Hafer Bill

to stop for a bus with activated flashing red lights is $270 and three points assessed against the individual. SB 370 requests that the maximum fine be increased to $1,000 and the number of points be increased to five.

The sole Senate sponsor of the bill last year, Hafer introduced the legislation following the Dec. 5, 2001, death of Melvin Beachy. After exiting his school bus on Route 219 near Gortner, the 10-year-old was fatally struck by a motorist who failed to stop for the bus's flashing lights.

Bus drivers, residents, and Garrett County Board of Education officials all voiced their concerns about the apparently increasing number of motorists passing school buses and campaigned for the bill's passage.

The senator's bill, however, was narrowly defeated in the Judicial Proceedings Committee by a vote of six to five.

"I was shocked," said Hafer following the committee's decision.

The panel at that time said there was no statewide need for the legislation and that the five-point penalty was too high.

"It's clear that it's not only a statewide problem, but a nationwide problem as well," said Barb Michael last year, who campaigned for the bill's passage. On three separate occasions, her own children, while exiting their bus in Oakland, were almost hit by motorists, she said.

Hafer also ardently disagreed with the panel's decision. "It is needed. It would automatically force them (offenders) before an administrative law judge," he added, "and a $1,000 fine might cause them to think twice (about repeating the offense)."

Delegates George Edwards, Kevin Kelly, and Speaker Casper Taylor introduced the same bill in the House last year, but it also was defeated by a House committee.

Edwards said the "biggest sticking point" with that committee was the fine assessment. Some of the members indicated that the five-point fine was too much of a penalty, the delegate said.

collect public input.

"Route 219 is a major north-south route through western Pennsylvania," a PennDot spokesperson said. "It links I-68 in Maryland to the Pennsylvania Turnpike and I-80, providing important access to small cities, towns and rural communities throughout the region.

In recent years, portions of Route 219 in southwestern Pennsylvania have been upgraded to a four-lane, limited access facility. When this southernmost section is completed, it will provide a much needed transportation improvement for this region of the state."

McCormick, Taylor and Associates of Harrisburg, Pa., along with a team of engineering and environmental consultants, is preparing an environmental document and conducting preliminary engineering for the project. The preliminary design work is expected to be completed in late 2004 or early 2005.

Information regarding this project can also be obtained through the project Web site at www.us219.com.

Liquor Bills

would allow the commissioners to accept "reasonable" offers on certain surplus real property if a public sale for the property failed to yield any bids.

Delegate George Edwards described the proposed legislation as local "housekeeping" bills. He explained during a pre-legislative meeting for residents in December that because Garrett County does not have code home rule, the legislation had to be introduced in the General Assembly and could not be adopted locally.

Other legislative requests made by the Garrett County Liquor Control Board will be heard at a later date by the House Economic Matters Committee.

HB 220 would allow holders of certain special alcoholic licenses – such as those with 2-day, 6-day, and 12-day Class C – in Garrett County to conduct Sunday sales. This would only be allowed in Districts 11 and 15, where voters approved Sunday sales in November 1996. Sales could begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 10 p.m.

HB 221 would allow retail dealers – with Class E, F, or G licenses – to purchase alcoholic beverages from each other. Edwards said small retail store owners requested the legislation.

The retailers said they had difficulty keeping a full inventory because large wholesalers only deliver weekly and then are sometimes out of what they need or cannot deliver at all because of inclement weather. By being able to purchase from another local retailer, the small store owners could keep a full inventory, said Edwards.

Under the auspices of General Services, the Liquor Control Board is responsible for issuing alcoholic beverage licenses at the retail level and for enforcement of state and local laws, rules, and regulations governing retail sales. It also provides administrative services for the Liquor Control Board/Board of License Commissioners.

Thomas Gearhart is chairman of the Liquor Control Board, with Beatrice Crosco and Mike Fratz as commissioners. Gary Mullich is director of General Services.

The bride wore a silk organza gown accented with freshwater pearls and Austrian crystals, and carried a bouquet of local flowers.

Serving as attendants were Elizabeth McCallum, childhood friend of the bride, and Lara Dailey, niece of the groom. After the ceremony, the couple exited down a conch-shell-lined aisle and joined a small group of family and friends for a celebration.

The couple live in Savannah, Ga., where Gordon is an investment advisor with Morgan Stanley and Stacy is a gift planning specialist with the American Red Cross.

of communities."

Kepple, formerly a welder and dairy farmer, started Appalachian Iron in 1998, and has grown the company to an Internet-based storefront named www.appalachianiron.com selling custom ornamental ironworks – fences, benches, bike racks – for municipalities, individuals, and companies. Over 95% of the business sales are Internet-based with products shipped as far away as Japan.

Appalachian Iron has created one new full-time job and hires additional part-time employees as needed. Kepple plans to tap into the National Main Street market with his municipal furnishings, because unlike larger companies, he's willing to customize his products to the needs of small towns that may order only a few items.

Kepple was accompanied by his wife Bernice; daughter Cristine Kepple Sweitzer, Esq.; son, Mike Kepple who runs his own business, Outhouse Gutters, with his friend Janet McCrobie; and employee Donna Butts.

Kepple was assisted in starting his business with a microloan from the GCCAC Microworks Program. Microworks provides training, technical assistance, and lending to Garrett County residents who wish to start or expand a microbusiness.

Microworks works in coordination with the Small Business Development Center at Garrett College. To learn more about the microbusiness program at GCCAC, persons may visit www.garrettcac.org and click on Community and Economic Development or call 301-334-9431.

HEALTH OFFICER DISCUSSES SECURITY – Rodney Glotfelty, health officer for Garrett County, was the guest speaker at a recent Deep Creek Lake Lions Club meeting. His topic was "Garrett County Home Land Security." Glotfelty explained programs that are now in place to protect county residents. While it is unlikely that terrorists would directly attack Garrett County, he said, it cannot be ruled out that harmful disease-causing agents could be accidentally brought into the county by people who are fleeing nearby major population centers. In keeping with federal directives, a number of local agencies – such as police departments, 9-1-1, and the Health Department – have joined together to develop protective programs for county residents, as well as methods for dealing with that expected influx of people, Glotfelty told the Lions Club members. Pictured is the club's first vice president, Tom Wenzel, left, with Glotfelty.

PIANO STUDENTS KEY INTO SCHROCK MEMORIAL BENEFIT — The Suzuki method piano students of Cresaptown teacher Ann Rebuck are shown as they explore the inner workings of a piano via a mock-up keyboard displayed at Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop in Grantsville. A recent "practice-a-thon" by the students raised enough money to "purchase" two keys for a new piano sought for the Great Hall at Penn Alps. The effort is part of the Alta E. Schrock Memorial Fund, dedicated to improving the quality of music in the Tri-State Region and supporting educational opportunities for area music students. Standing with the students are Rebuck, left, and Nancy Salmon, a board member of the Music at Penn Alps festival series.

Piano Students Donate To Alta Schrock Memorial Fund

The piano students of Ann Rebuck recently participated in a fund-raiser to benefit the Alta E. Schrock Memorial Fund, dedicated to improving the quality of music in the tri-state region and supporting educational opportunities for area music students. The fund's first goal is to raise money for the purchase of a new piano to be used in the Great Hall at Penn Alps in Grantsville.

Under Rebuck's guidance, the students took part in a "practice-a-thon." Their family members pledged money for practice time to "purchase" keys in a mock-up piano keyboard donated for the benefit by local piano tuner Nancy Salmon, who conceived of the key purchase idea. They raised enough money to purchase two keys, one of which is treble C, the key of the first Suzuki piece in Book I known as the "Twinkle Variations."

Students who practiced for the fund-raiser were Maura Krautner, Michael Dwyer, Catherine Dwyer, Cecilia Rossi, Bree Flowers, Murphy Taube, Will Dinola, Katelyn Corwell, Melissa Courtney, Jennifer Rogers, Sarah Rogers, Teagan Powers, and Maura Jones.

"It was a wonderful opportunity for my students to do an outreach activity," said Rebuck, who teaches Suzuki piano in her Cresaptown studio. She developed the plan after attending last fall's International Piano Festival, which was sponsored by Music at Penn Alps and the American Liszt Society's Baltimore/Washington Chapter to benefit the Schrock Memorial Fund. The festival also served as an educational outreach for area music students to encourage their musical aspirations and support quality music in the tri-state region.

MPA's board of directors created the Schrock Fund to honor the late Dr. Schrock, a founder of the Music at Penn Alps concert series and of the Penn Alps complex. The board is in the process of raising at least $25,000 for the purchase of a new piano for the Great Hall. Salmon is spearheading this effort with the assistance of Music at Penn Alps board members and pianist Nancy Roldán of Baltimore.

The mock-up piano keyboard now on display in the lobby of Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop is fitted with a piano key for each donor of $100 or more to track progress toward the goal. Donors who "purchase" a key will have their names inscribed on the key selected. Contributions of any size are also welcome.

For more information or to participate in this fund-raising effort, persons may contact Music at Penn Alps music director Fred Bolton at 301-895-5881 or via e-mail at fbolton@gcnetmail.net.

Music at Penn Alps will present its 11th season this summer, with 12 concerts scheduled from June 7 through Aug. 30. For information, persons may contact the Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop at 301-895-5985.

V-Day Events Set Feb. 26, 27 At Frostburg State

Frostburg State University will present a variety of events to mark V-Day, a global movement that helps anti-violence organizations throughout the world continue and expand their core work while drawing public attention to the larger fight to stop worldwide violence against women and girls. The theme this year is "From V-Day to V-World: Envisioning a World Without Violence."

On Wednesday, Feb. 26, and Thursday, Feb. 27, there will be an information festival at 7 p.m. and a benefit performance of The Vagina Monologues each evening at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall. Hailed by the New York Times as "funny" and "poignant" and by the Daily News as "intelligent" and "courageous," The Vagina Monologues dives into the mystery, humor, pain, power, wisdom, outrage, and excitement buried in women's experiences. "Based on interviews with a diverse group of hundreds of women — from a Long Island antiques dealer to a Bosnian refugee — The Vagina Monologues brazenly explores questions often pondered, but seldom asked," stated a program spokesperson.

Tickets cost $5 for students and $10 for non-students. Persons may call 301-687-7462 for reservations. Donations are requested from those attending to help fulfill the "wish lists" of V-Day beneficiaries, the Family Crisis Resource Center and Dove Center. Wish Lists can be obtained by contacting Ni-cole Mattis at 301-687-3212 or nmattis@frostburg.edu. Those who bring donations to the performances can be entered in a raffle.

Other V-Day events include an Art and Poetry Open-Mike Night on Monday, Feb. 17, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the Lane University Center Loft, sponsored by Center Stage; the Clothesline Project on Tuesday, Feb. 18, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., and Monday, Feb. 24, from 6:30 to 9 p.m., in Manicur Assembly Hall; a meeting of the Philosophy Club to discuss "Female Genital Mutilation" on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at 6:30 p.m.; and a "Take Back the Night March" Friday, Feb. 28.

For additional information, persons may call Mattis at 301-687-3212.

"Fight Night" Slated At FSU

Drawing upon hours of classes in the dramatic art of stage combat, Frostburg State University theatre students have created a production they call "Fight Night!" Created by student director Craig Sussman, the show will run Feb. 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. in the F. Perry Smith Studio Theatre at the Performing Arts Center.

Combining original fight choreography with contemporary and classic scenes from well-known plays, the show promises sword fights, knife fights, and "just plain old fistfights," according to Sussman.

Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the door. This show is not recommended for children.

Applications Due For Arts Grants From Council

The Garrett County Arts Council is currently accepting applications from non-profit organizations requesting funding support for arts programs and projects planned for public presentation in Garrett County. The first day of spring, March 21, is the last day for qualifying organizations to apply for grant funding in amounts of $500 or more to support activities scheduled between July 1, 2003, and June 30, 2004. Guidelines and annual application forms are now available.

The Garrett County Arts Council allocates over $30,000 each year for grant awards to promote community arts development in Garrett County. Current recipients of grant funding include: the Garrett Choral Society, Garrett College Art Gallery, Garrett Community Concert Band, Garrett County Board of Education (for annual Student Arts Fair), Garrett County Community Action Committee (for Little Yough Summer Music Festival), Garrett County 4-H Program (for summer camp drumming project), Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Garrett County Health Department (for teen health theatre), Hammers & Strings, Our Town Theatre, Southern Garrett Band Boosters (for Tournament of Bands), Spruce Forest Artisan Village, and St. Mark's Lutheran Church (for Autumn Glory organ recital).

The annual combined arts budget of grant recipients exceeds $450,000, according to Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council. Schlosnagle noted that recipient organizations present more than 150 public arts programs each year for the benefit of Garrett County residents and visitors, with admission income providing less than 20 percent of program costs.

Additional information, including eligibility and program requirements, along with grant guidelines and application forms, is available at the Gallery, 206 E. Alder Street, Oakland, or by contacting the Garrett County Arts Council by phone at 301-334-6580 or by e-mail at garrettarts@earthlink.net.

Jack Klugman Will Star In On Golden Pond At FSU

The Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series has added a matinee performance of On Golden Pond, with Jack Klugman, on Wednesday, March 19, at 3 p.m. because of overwhelming response to the evening shows on March 18 and 19 in the Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre. Klugman, one of television's favorite curmudgeons, will appear with Anita Gillette.

This production is part of FSU's Cultural Events Series, with Dinner Show and Arts Getaway packages available for both shows. This performance is presented in partnership with the Cumberland Holiday Inn, which will also provide discounted room rates to anyone purchasing tickets to the performance.

On Golden Pond, a critically acclaimed Broadway production by Ernest Thompson, is well known as the popular movie starring Henry Fonda, Katharine Hepburn, and Jane Fonda that was nominated for nine Academy Awards.

A touching, funny, and perceptive story of a family, the play focuses on the bond between Norman and Ethel, a couple in their golden years. "Klugman is perfectly suited to the role of Norman, an almost 80-year-old retired professor with a playful, feisty yet crusty attitude. His wife Ethel, younger by a decade, serves as a perfect foil, with her delight in the little things that have enriched their long marriage. Their divorced daughter Chelsae joins them at their summer vacation home, along with her dentist boyfriend and son. Chelsae suffers from the pain of a father and daughter who love each other, but haven't expressed it to one another, while her son adds a fresh note with his youthful spirit," explained a program spokesperson.

Klugman, a versatile character actor who appeared on Broadway and in television from the 1950s through the 1990s, is best known for playing sportswriter Oscar Madison in the Odd Couple, with Tony Randall as his fussy roommate, Felix Unger. He then played a crime-fighting medical examiner on another series, Quincy, M.E.

Anita Gillette's most memorable roles include Mona, Vincent Gardenia's mistress in Moonstruck (1987) and Mary-Louise Parker's outspoken mother in Boys on the Side (1995). Klugman and Gillette first worked together in 1959 as co-stars in the Broadway show Gypsy. Later, as Dr. Emily Hanover on Quincy, M.E., she went on to "marry" Klugman's character.

Tickets are now on sale for $29 each, and seating is limited.

The Arts Getaway Package includes a choice of accommodations for two at LaVale's Best Western Braddock Motor Inn or the Downtown Cumberland Holiday Inn. Included with one night's stay is breakfast and dinner for two, a special welcome gift at check-in, round-trip transportation between the hotel and FSU's Performing Arts Center, and two preferred seating tickets for the CES performance of choice.

The Dinner Show Packages are available at several area restaurants: the Acropolis Restaurant & Lounge, Gandalf's Restaurant & Pub, Gehauf's Restaurant, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, Harrigan's Restaurant, and the Tombstone Cafe. Complimentary transportation is available. Reservations can be made up to two days before the performance date when purchasing performance tickets. Patrons pay the restaurant of choice after the completion of their meal.

To purchase tickets, persons may call or visit the CES Box Office Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The office is located at Frostburg State University in the Lane University Center, Room 235, and can be reached at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1 866-TIXX CES. Online ticketing powered by CyberSeats is available at the Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series Web site at http://ces.frostburg.edu.

All tickets not purchased in person will be charged a $1 per ticket handling fee. Payment by credit card (VISA, MasterCard, Discover, and Bobcat Card), check, and money order is accepted.

Based on availability tickets may also be purchased at the Drama Theatre box office one hour prior to curtain. All patrons must have a ticket and all sales are final. Those arriving late for performances may not be admitted until intermission.

Brubeck Brothers Quartet Concert Slated At FSU

The Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series will present the Brubeck Brothers Quartet in concert on Friday, March 14, at 8 p.m. in the Lane University Center's Alice R. Manicur Assembly Hall. The CES Arts Getaway Package and Dinner Show Package are available with this performance.

A new group with a name familiar to jazz fans, the Brubeck Brothers Quartet consists of four musicians, two of them members of one of America's most notable musical families. "Whether performing with symphony orchestras or in the solo/concert format, the Brubeck Brothers Quartet presents a unique blend of original compositions, jazz standards, and classics by the legendary Dave Brubeck," stated a program spokesperson.

Percussionist Dan Brubeck and his brother Chris, who plays bass, trombone, and piano, have received international recognition for their musical talents. "As sons of jazz legend Dave Brubeck, they had the privilege of growing up listening to, studying with, and eventually playing alongside some of the great jazz giants of our time," the spokesperson said.

They are joined by two longtime friends, Mike DeMicco on guitar and Pete Levin on piano and organ. Also a composer, DeMicco has worked as band member and featured soloist with such artists as Gary Peacock and James Taylor. Levin, a veteran of the New York jazz scene, has been active since the '60s with the likes of Miles Davis, Paul Simon, and Vanessa Williams.

The Arts Getaway Package offers a choice of accommodations at LaVale's Best Western Braddock Motor Inn or the Downtown Cumberland Holiday Inn. Included with one night's stay is breakfast and dinner for two, a special welcome gift at check-in, round-trip transportation between the hotel and FSU's Lane University Center, and two preferred-seating tickets for the Brubeck Brothers Quartet.

The Dinner Show Packages are available at seven area restaurants, including the Acropolis Restaurant & Lounge, El Canelo Mexican Restaurant, Gandalf's Restaurant & Pub, Gehauf's Restaurant, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, Harrigan's Restaurant, and the Tombstone Café. Complimentary transportation is available. Reservations can be made up to two days before the performance date when purchasing performance tickets. Patrons pay the restaurant of choice after the completion of their meal.

For ticket prices and purchases, persons may call or visit the CES Box Office Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The office is located at Frostburg State University in the Lane University Center, Room 235, and can be reached at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866 TIXX CES. On-line ticketing powered by CyberSeats is available at the Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series Web site at http://ces.frostburg.edu.

Tickets for FSU students, faculty, and staff are available at a discounted price with a valid FSU ID. All tickets not purchased in person will be charged a $1 per ticket handling fee. Payment by credit card (VISA, MasterCard, Discover, and Bobcat Card), check, and money order is accepted.

This tour of the Brubeck Brothers Quartet is made possible by a grant from the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts Regional Touring Program. The 2002-2003 CES Series is supported in part by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency funded by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Lakers Flatten Anne Arundel, Potomac State; Record 17-7

A pair of home victories were recorded this past week by the men's basketball team of Garrett College, as the Lakers rolled over visiting Anne Arundel Saturday, 89-61, and crushed Potomac State College on Sunday, 74-48, to avenge an early season loss to the Catamounts. The wins upped the Lakers' overall record to 17-7.

The Lakers were slated to host CCBC-Essex last night, but that contest was postponed until this Friday because of weather conditions.

Four Lakers finished in double-figure scoring in the game against Anne Arundel CC on Saturday, a contest in which Garrett seized control early and never looked back.

Kevin Essex led the way with 19 points, followed by Antuon Townsend with 17, James Jones with 15, and Alvin Jones with 13 points. Rashaun Copeland grabbed a game-high 13 rebounds, as the Lakers out-boarded their visitors by a 39-28 margin, and he also dished out eight assists.

Garrett held a comfortable 44-22 advantage at intermission.

Recording a game-high 23 points for Anne Arundel was Kyle Jenson, while Ashon Osborne finished with 17 points and eight rebounds.

The Lakers came out smoking Sunday against the Catamounts of Potomac State, a team that had handed them a 65-59 defeat back in December. They raced to a 38-13 lead by halftime and were never seriously threatened the rest of the evening.

Essex again led the Lakers in scoring with 15 points and a game-high eight rebounds. Right behind him was Alvin Jones with 14 points, 12 of which were scored from three-point range. Tristan Largent and Rashard Ellis just missed double figures with nine points each. Townsend was credited with four assists.

The top scorer for Potomac State was Jason Bridges, who finished with 13 points. Jose Cabreja and Nelson Guerin each grabbed five rebounds.

The loss dropped the Catamounts to 14-11.

"Defensively, we played an excellent game," stated GC coach Dennis Gibson. "We didn't shoot real well, but we are getting better at the right time."

After Friday's make-up game against Essex, the Lakers will entertain Prince George's CC on Saturday, with tip-off scheduled for 6 p.m. Play-in games for the Maryland JUCO Tournament will be held next Tuesday, and the three-day tournament will get under way next Friday, Feb. 21.

Lakers Nipped By Cougars In OT; Down Knights By Two

The Garrett College women's basketball team split two reported contests this week to net a 12-4 overall record. The Lakers were nipped by Catonsville's Cougars in overtime Saturday, 73-67, before they rebounded the following day to down the visiting College of Southern Maryland by two points, 56-54.

Results of a scheduled Monday night contest with CCAC-Allegheny were not made available by the coaches, nor were details of Saturday's loss to the Cougars. A previously scheduled outing at Hagerstown last night was canceled, with no makeup date announced.

Garrett downed Southern Maryland by two points Sunday in a hard-fought battle that saw the lead change hands 12 times overall. Freshman center Tiffany McFarland turned in a superb performance as she netted a double-double of 20 points and 16 rebounds. Guard LaTonya Crowder recorded 10 points and five steals, guard Angel Kendall had four assists, and forward Charlena Reeves, a graduate of Southern High School, ripped down eight rebounds of her own.

Sharon Miles had 16 points for Southern Maryland's Knights.

Garrett was up 25-24 at the half, and the drama continued throughout the second half until Crowder brought the curtain down with a pair of clutch field goals late in the game to give GC the win.

The Lakers will be living out of their duffle bags again this weekend, as they travel to Howard Saturday and Baltimore CC the following day. The play-in date for the Maryland JUCO Tournament is set for Tuesday, at a time and location yet to be announced.

A BIG TEAM WIN was recorded by the Southern High School wrestlers on Saturday after the Rams were edged by the Northern Huskies last Thursday. Coach Dave Taylor's squad recorded a 44-30 victory over visiting North Hagerstown, a team that had lost only two matches in 13 starts. In the photo above left, Southern's Chris Bennett puts the clamps to Steve Feight, and goes on to win the 189-pound bout via a pin. Above center, Ram Jason Weeks nearly pins Dean Staley in the 152-pound clash, but ultimately wins by an 8-1 decision. Above right, Chris Hayhurst records a pin against North Hagerstown's Alonzo Shaul in the 145-pound division, and below, Southern's Nathan Sines works his way to a 7-0 decision over Chris Bumbaugh in the 130-pound class. Ram Matmen Bounce Back To Defeat North Hagerstown

After dropping another close match to the Northern Huskies last Thursday (see other story), the Southern High School wrestling team bounced back Saturday evening to record a 44-30 team victory over visiting North Hagerstown.

The Hubs came into the match having lost only twice in 13 starts.

Four Rams earned pins in the effort: Matt Ford in the 112-pound division, Chris Hayhurst in the 145-pound bout, Geoff Tressler at 171 pounds, and Chris Bennett in the 189-pound class.

Gaining major decisions for Southern were Jeremy Gregory in the 135-pound division and Scott Wildesen at 140 pounds, while Nathan Sines (130) and Jason Weeks (152) were decision winners.

The win improved the Rams' dual meet record to 10-3. They were scheduled to travel to Hyndman on Monday, but that match had to be postponed because of weather conditions.

Husky Grapplers Earn Second Similar Victory Over Southern

It was on January 16 that the Huskies edged the Rams by a 39-34 margin, and the score last Thursday was 39-33, as Mitchell Guard earned a 5-2 decision over Southern's Nathan Sines in the 130-pound division to secure the team victory for Northern.

No Place Like Home For Huskies In Bagging Salisbury Elks, 50-29

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball squad blasted Salisbury off the NHS home court Friday night by a 50-29 margin behind a well-balanced offensive effort led by senior forward Amanda Frantz. The win gives the Huskies a 7-11 record.

A scheduled outing at Hancock last night was canceled because of the weather, with no make-up date announced as of yet.

The Huskies put on a show for the home crowd as they walloped Salisbury by a 21-point margin. Northern turned on the jets early by going up 16-8 after one quarter on their way to a 31-16 halftime advantage, and as the fourth quarter got under way NHS held a commanding 38-23 lead.

Frantz hit for 18 points on the night, and guards Heather Lander and Megan Shaffer contributed nine points apiece. Center Lakin Weimer grabbed 11 rebounds. Natasha Munion led the Elks with nine points.

NHS's junior varsity dropped a 34-23 contest, as Chelsea Green netted 23 points for the Elks. Tiffany Yoder scored eight points for the Huskies.

The Huskies will host Bishop Walsh tonight, and Westmar next Wednesday in the season finale. Tip-off time for the JV contests is set for 6 p.m., and the varsity battles follow at 7:30 p.m.

NHS GIRLS ROMP OVER ELKS — The action in Accident this past Friday night put the fans of the Northern High girls' basketball squad in "Husky heaven," as NHS crushed visiting Salisbury 50-29. Northern junior guard Lyndsi Butler (#34) is shown above in heavy traffic as teammates Molly Wolf (#3) and Jeseca Gibson (#22) rush to her aid. More Husky teamwork is evident below as NHS guards Wolf and Heather Lander (#4) apply defensive pressure as they double-team an Elk ballhandler. Northern hosts Bishop Walsh tonight in a 7:30 p.m. varsity contest that will be preceded by a 6 p.m. junior varsity game.

Weather Forces Postponement Of Ram Girls' Games

The Southern High girls' varsity and junior varsity basketball teams were forced to cancel all their games last week because of weather conditions. Make-up dates for the canceled contests have not been announced.

The SHS girls take to the court in previously scheduled action tonight at Fort Hill, then return home Wednesday to host Keyser in a contest set for live broadcast on 92.3-FM The Train. Pre-game coverage of the varsity contest will get under way at approximately 7:30 p.m. The JV game (not slated for radio broadcast) will tip off at 6 p.m.

Rice Leads Huskies To 24-Pt. Win Over Elks

The Northern High School boys' basketball team got in just one game this week, but the Huskies made the most of it by walloping Salisbury 71-47 last Thursday, Feb. 6. The victory gave NHS a 7-11 record.

A Friday night road trip to Union and a Tuesday night home court contest against Fort Hill were both canceled because of the weather, and make-up dates for those outings have not yet been announced.

Playing on the Northern court last Thursday, Husky shooting ace Jason Rice ripped the nets for 20 points, including six three-pointers, in leading NHS to the 24-point bagging of the Elks. Northern jumped out to an early 21-13 first-quarter lead, widened the gap to 37-16 at the half, and was up 56-32 as the final stanza opened.

NHS junior center Andrew Frantz and sophomore forward Eric Johnson contributed 15 points apiece, and senior guard Matt Younkin had a fine playmaking game as he dished out 10 assists to his teammates. Salisbury was paced by Matt Podlesnik's 17 points and 10 rebounds.

The Huskies got physical during the battle, and committed 17 fouls to the Elks' 9; however, NHS sank 7 of their 8 free-throw attempts, while Salisbury connected for only 6 of their 17 foul shots.

Northern's junior varsity bagged the Elks with ease, 55-17. Freshman Brent Beachy had 19 points and classmate Jason Shapiro contributed 7 points.

The Huskies enter the home stretch of the regular campaign this week. Tomorrow they visit Beall, on Monday Union will visit the Cove at 7:30 p.m., and Northern travels to Hancock Tuesday for the season finale. The Mountaineer and Panther contests will both be broadcast live on 104.5-FM WKHJ, with pregame coverage beginning on both nights at approximately 7:15 p.m.

Top-Ranked Rams Defeat Tucker Lions For 14th Win

The top-ranked team in the area, the Southern High School boys' varsity, maintained its spot at the top this week by whipping visiting Tucker County, 70-54, last Friday.

A regularly scheduled game at Petersburg on Tuesday, plus a make-up game that was set for last night at home against Fort Hill both had to be postponed because of weather conditions and school closings this week.

Dennis Tressler continued to lead the Rams in scoring on Friday, as he recorded 21 points and pulled down 10 rebounds, while Nathan Fitzwater contributed 14 points and Matt Stephens scored 12.

Southern took the lead in the opening moments and never lost it, building an 18-7 advantage by the end of the first quarter, and a 37-29 margin by intermission. The Rams stretched their lead to 14 points, 57-43, by the end of the third period, hitting nine of 12 field goal attempts in that stanza.

Also reaching double figures in rebounding for the Rams was senior point guard A.J. Bender, matching Tressler's effort with 10. He also scored eight points.

The Mountain Lions, who dropped to 9-5, were led offensively by Justin Thompson with 14 points. Jake Bava just missed double figures by netting nine points, and Jeremy Maxwell chipped in with eight.

from all forms of media (television, radio, and newspaper) from 26 counties throughout western Maryland and north central West Virginia speaks to the commitment your organization has to supporting the efforts of the American Cancer Society in Garrett County.

We deeply appreciate the coverage your paper provides of the events and programs that help promote ACS Patient Services to the residents of Garrett County who have been touched by cancer.

Thank you for being a Gold Sponsor of Relay For Life (the signature fund-raising event for the American Cancer Society) for the past five years. Your support has helped make the Garrett County relay a national award-winning relay. For the past two years Garrett County's relay placed 7th in the nation in per capita funds raised. This achievement would not be possible withour your support.

Thank you again, and congratulations!

To the Editor:

The Oakland Post Office on Second Street is asking for the public's help in dealing with the handicap accessibility ramp at the Oakland Post Office being temporarily closed. The ramp has been closed much of this winter for the safety of our customers. The ramp becomes extremely slick in cold wet or freezing weather. It is more of a hazard than a benefit, especially to the elderly.

Last year we had the same problem, and in the spring we had our maintenance staff in Baltimore come up with a solution. They painted the ramp with a grit-added paint that was supposed to solve the problem for at least three years. That solution did not work. We have requested funds to apply non-skid stripes on the ramp, but will probably not be able to do so until spring.

In the meantime, customers who may need assistance in getting into our building have several options.

· Call ahead if possible and we will open the ramp so a wheel chair can enter the building.

· The Mountain Lake Park Branch at 1325 Maryland Highway is accessible and can provide the same services as Oakland.

· Use the convenience of Stamps by Mail by leaving a note for your carrier. If you live in the rural area you can purchase money orders or stamps, and even mail packages through your rural carrier.

· We also have Stamps by Fax by calling 301-334-3224. If you fax a request by 9 a.m., your stamps will be delivered to you the same day.

· If you cannot call ahead and need any assistance to enter the building, ask your neighbor and our customer to let someone know inside that you need assistance. The beauty of living in Oakland is that you know you can always get help.

If anyone has any questions or suggestions, please call me at 301-334-3151.

Christmas 2002 was a joyous time for our Burlington United Methodist Family Services "family." Thanks to the generosity of others, we were able to provide a happy Christmas for the nearly 200 children entrusted to our care, and to dozens of the other families we serve through family-based outreach services. Our ministry serves children and families through a variety of programs from locations in Burlington, Beckley, Fairmont, Grafton, Keyser, Petersburg, and Scott Depot, W.Va., and in Oakland, Md.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the individuals, churches, businesses, and organizations that generously donated money, toys, clothing, gifts, food, and time to our ministry. We especially thank the United Methodist Women, United Methodist Men, United Methodist Youth, and United Methodist churches from across the West Virginia Annual Conference who have faithfully supported our ministry during our 90 years of service to children. We would also like to thank the members of our Burlington United Methodist Family Services' auxiliaries at Burlington and Beckley for their support and assistance with our holiday events and with the sorting, wrapping, and distribution of gifts and food baskets.

It is heartwarming to know that we can continue to count on the generous spirit of Americans, even during these uncertain times. Thanks again to all who help Burlington United Methodist Family Services remain a refuge of hope to children and families in need.

Grace and peace,
Gary K. Wilson

To the Editor:

I wish to clarify my position regarding the topic of a youth center for the town of Oakland, presently proposed for the old Acorn Associates building on Liberty Street. I am not opposed to the concept of a youth center. My desire is that, should Oakland start a youth center, it would be highly successful. I do believe, however, that the idea deserves appropriate and adequate planning, including but not limited to:

· safety of the children through proper staff and volunteer investigations;

· staffing needs for permanent employees and volunteers;

· well-trained staffing;

· long-term funding mechanism for staff salaries, liability insurance, and maintenance;

· site selection for children's safety, ease of access, and parking;

· building renovation plans and costs;

· neighborhood impact consideration; and

· legal liability issues.

Additionally, the needs of local youth are not unique to Oakland. One might ask whether the town of Oakland should be the body to implement the program. If a youth center is to benefit all local youth, it is difficult to justify asking the residents of Oakland alone to subsidize it. Oakland cannot afford another financial drain like Broadford Lake Park.

Any failure due to lack of good planning and responsible leadership will stigmatize the concept of a youth center for years to come. I would not like to give naysayers the opportunity to state that a youth center was tried in Oakland and failed. A rush to judgment on this issue will not do justice to proper implementation of a promising idea and does not serve the best interest of Oakland's youth.

Here we are again, wanting to raise the cigarette tax to offset the budget. That will be more tax money going to out-of-state vendors. Does Maryland really know how much money is going to neighboring states because their cigarettes are cheaper? Or do they really think that thousands of people are quitting?

What about the alcohol tax? I for one drink on occasion, but it's my understanding this tax hasn't been raised in almost 30 years. Is that fair? There must be more politicians who drink than smoke, which is why this tax never increases.

Some say that this tax will help the health care situation, about which something needs to be done. I personally think if the government would step in and control health care, the prices wouldn't be rising as fast as they do. There don't seem to be too many doctors living in poverty. I'm not blaming it all on doctors, but something needs to be done.

Maybe we need a tax to help pay for all the glass that's being broken by all the cinders that are being used on the roads. Seems every year I'm replacing one due to these rocks. But I guess that's what our insurance is for!

To the Editor:

Last month, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office got a sizable raise from the Garrett County commissioners' office. This was a greatly needed raise that our law enforcement officers truly deserve. With that said, I hope that Sheriff Sanders will start hiring people from within Garrett County to fill vacancies that arise at the sheriff's office.

We have many good citizens who have been passed over to hire people from down state or out of state. I think our citizens deserve these jobs. Now, I don't blame anyone for wanting to work in Garrett County; it's a great place to live. I believe, however, that they should move here first before they are considered for employment. If our government can't support its citizens then they shouldn't expect support back.

I hope I don't hear any responses back saying that there are not enough qualified people in this county to perform these jobs, because this would be a slap in the face of our commissioners, who have constantly advertised that Garrett County has a great work force and ethic. And I certainly don't want to hear that some of the personnel hired were already trained, because right now Garrett County enjoys the largest monetary surplus in the history of county government.

From now on, I hope you will invest in our citizens' future, because they deserve it.

Sincerely
Mark Proulx

To the Editor:

The Maryland Medbank Prescription Program may end, but your readers can help try to save it.

Over 17,000 uninsured and underinsured Marylanders, about half senior citizens, will lose access to critical medicines this summer unless the Maryland General Assembly votes to extend the program and include $3 million in next year's budget.

Your readers' help is really needed, because their voices can make a difference!

How? Write and call the Governor and the legislators listed at the end of this article right away. Ask them please to: vote in favor of reauthorizing the Maryland Medbank program; urge Governor Ehrlich to include funding of $3.0 million in the supplemental budget for the Maryland Medbank; and ask the legislators to vote for such funding when the appropriation bills come before them.

Here are facts about the Maryland Medbank program. You can add them to your letter and mention them in your phone call if you wish:

What is the Maryland Medbank? It is a program that helps low income citizens with no insurance for medicines to access the free prescription drug programs offered by pharmaceutical companies.

Who benefits? Senior citizens, the working poor, the uninsured, and the unemployed; the chronically ill who are struggling to manage life threatening diseases; and people with incomes under 200 percent of the poverty level who have no other assistance to obtain prescribed medications.

Why is the Medbank's continuation and funding critical to all of us? Because it saves our lives and health, lowers hospitalization rates (saving the state money), and it brings in over $12 million in free prescription medicines. Medbank works effectively and efficiently at very low cost.

Contact these legislators right away! Ask them please to not take these medicines away, and to vote to extend and fund this crucial program.

1) Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr., State House, 100 State Circle, Annapolis, MD 21401 (phone: 1-410-974-3901)

2) Sen. John Hafer, 323 James Senate Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401 (phone: 1-800-492-7122)

If the legislators have questions or need more information, tell them to call Bob McEwan of the Medbank Central Coordinating Office at 410-821-9262, ext. 102.

We are counting on your help! Thank you very much.

To the Editor:

Although I very much want to be patriotic and support our country, I don't know how any American in good conscience can support George Bush's unprovoked war on Iraq. Thousands and thousands of Americans have rallied and marched against it, most of the countries of the world oppose it, and leaders like Nelson Mandela and the Roman Catholic Pope have criticized it. And yet George Bush thumbs his nose at everyone and continues to send more and more troops in harm's way.

Colin Powell made a theatrical plea to the UN, but the evidence he presented was shaky and marginal. Rather than relying on solid facts, Powell chose an emotional route: he played to fear. He was trying to use our fear of terrorism and our anger about 9/11 to strong-arm a war that has nothing to do with either. Despite enormous efforts in the CIA and FBI, no real evidence has emerged to link Al-Qaeda and Iraq.

If you agree that the military might of the strongest country on earth should not be used against a country which has already been defeated and contained, you are not alone. There is a huge grassroots movement against this war, and there are dozens of websites organizing us. A good place to start is http://www.MoveOn.org. Or you can write to your senators and congressmen to voice your protest. You can e-mail the White House (it's easy). Or you can write letters to the editors of the newspapers you read.

I am very proud of our brave young American men, but we should keep them here at home, where they are loved and needed — not risking their lives in a cruel and senseless war (think VietNam), so that George Bush's oilmen buddies can get rich on lucrative oil contracts in Iraq.

ADAPTATION

Rated R - Running Time: 1:54 - Released 12/6/02

I suppose any movie written by Charlie Kaufman would be a writer's movie—and therefore a critic's movie. Kaufman, who penned Spike Jonze's fabulously surreal 1999 film Being John Malkovich and followed it up with 2001's bizarre Human Nature and, more recently, the Chuck Barris biopic Confessions Of A Dangerous Mind, has become known for his funny, impressionistic, and above all unconventional style of screenwriting, taking repeated risks to reveal his highly personal take on life and the inherent fantasy contained within it. But with Adaptation, his second project with director Jonze, a film ostensibly about writing a screenplay based on a book by another author, Kaufman goes even farther—by actually incorporating himself into the story.

This would not be so remarkable had it happened intentionally. But according to Kaufman, Jonze, and everyone else involved in the movie, it happened by accident. Originally intending to write a faithful adaptation of the best-selling non-fiction book The Orchid Thief by Susan Orlean, Kaufman had such difficulty that the project itself became the story. Adaptation is not simply a film version of The Orchid Thief, it's more the story of Kaufman trying to adapt The Orchid Thief. Therefore, Kaufman and Orlean both become characters in the story (played by Nicolas Cage and Meryl Streep, respectively), even though neither of them is in Orlean's book. But their mere presence isn't even the point: in attempting to make a film-friendly story out of a non-fiction work, Kaufman is forced to alter the events into his own invention. In the same way that Malkovich took a real actor and fabricated a wild and not entirely flattering picture of him, Adaptation spins a bizarre story about Orlean, her relationship with the subject of her book (an eccentric naturalist who collects rare wild flowers for conservation purposes, even though it's illegal, played by Chris Cooper), and about her relationship with Kaufman himself. Again, it's not a particularly flattering portrait of any of the above, but as long as we all understand it's a fantasy, everyone seems to be okay with it.

At this point I should warn readers that this review contains spoilers, as it's impossible to comment specifically on the film without revealing certain aspects of which some may prefer to remain ignorant until they see it. It starts with the insecure, overweight, balding Kaufman (Cage) obsessing about how inadequate he is for this job. Constantly reaffirming his desire, to himself as well as his movie producer (Tilda Swinton), to avoid the standard, hacky Hollywood conventions (romance, happy ending, lessons learned, etc.), he is righteously offended by the seemingly effortless progress of his annoying twin brother Donald (also Cage), who himself has decided to try screenwriting, and who is not encumbered by any such aversion to clichéd plot choices and derivative styles. Meanwhile, we witness the interviews, set in flashback, conducted by New Yorker journalist Orlean with the semi-toothless, unashamedly egotistical Florida orchid poacher John LaRoche (Cooper) as she researches his mission to make exotic orchids accessible to mankind by mass-breeding them, thus rendering them no longer endangered and making himself rich in the process. "That way, everybody wins—did you get that?" he asks her as they careen down the road, and she scribbles notes like "delusions of grandeur" and "funny smell in van." The line between truth and fantasy is intentionally blurred over and over by writer Kaufman and director Jonze, including numerous fantasy scenes in which Charlie, while masturbating, has sex with nearly every woman in the film.

This movie bounces back and forth in time so much that we sometimes forget where we are in the grand scheme of things, including the Kaufman-Orlean meetings, the Orlean-LaRoche sessions, the time of Charles Darwin, behind the scenes at the filming of Malkovich (including uncredited cameos by John Cusack, Catherine Keener, and Malkovich), and even the formation of the Earth. It deals with Charlie's issues about inadequacy, Orlean's issues about her passionate lack of passion, and LaRoche's issues about his childhood and the tragedy that took his teeth and put him where he is. It contains humor, sex, tragedy, romance, graphic violence...but somehow, somewhere, as Charlie's writing style is inevitably influenced by his brother's irritating success, it moves from a believable and semi-factual account of two writers involved in their respective processes into a dreamlike (or rather nightmarish) tale involving murder, drug abuse, and at least one character whose integral importance to the story is undiminished by the fact that he is, in fact, fictional. Even stranger, the producers succeeded, despite the famously strict rules of the Writers Guild of America, to secure an official co-writing credit for this fictional character (who incidentally has since been nominated for an Academy Award). Talk about life imitating art.

All these words and I still haven't even mentioned the acting—a very important aspect, of course, since most of the characters are real people, some of whom wonder aloud who will play them in the movie. Cage, Streep, and Cooper have all proven themselves many times before, of course; still they amaze me. Cage is so ready to throw out his own sense of style to become Charlie, to appear dumpy, sweaty, with bad hair, physically ineffective and emotionally impotent, as writer Kaufman has so curiously and courageously written him(self). And his Donald, Charlie's made-up alter-ego—perhaps representing Kaufman's own occasional desire to take the easy route—although Donald is virtually indistinguishable from Charlie from a visual standpoint, Cage never has any trouble making it clear who is who. Similarly, Chris Cooper, sporting the unattractive oral hardware, brilliantly makes LaRoche attractive in spite of it, just by being so intense, so unapologetic, so viscerally connected in his own world. And then there's Streep, whose character could arguably be the hardest one to play, a smart, successful professional woman longing, wishing for something about which to really care. While Cage's character might sometimes wish he were invisible, Streep's in a way really is, at least for the first two-thirds of the film. The fact that Orlean isn't really like that is irrelevant; this version of her is Kaufman's fantasy creation, remember?

This film would be a must-see only for the acting, but it has so much more. It is truly a wonder, a pile of self-contradictions, a series of wrongs that somehow make a right. ★★★★★

Just "4 Steps" Can Put Parents On The Road To Child Passenger Safety

National Child Passenger Safety Week 2003 continues through this Saturday, Feb. 15, and the Garrett County Health Department is reminding parents that child care in the car begins with the "4 Steps for Kids" (see below), a simple strategy for proper restraint that includes the oft-missed but essential booster seat.

"Keeping children safe on the road means putting them in the right restraint at the right age," said GCHD Highway Safety coordinator Diane Lee of the Garrett County Health Department. "Securing your child in the right restraint at the right time is 1 of the most important things you can do to protect your child. Booster seats—the often-overlooked step—are as important as any of the other steps and can save lives."

Statistics show that motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children age 4 to 14, and studies have shown that correctly used child safety seats can save a child's life up to 71 percent of the time.

While most infants and toddlers ride in the right child safety seat, less than 10 percent of the children who should be in booster seats use 1. Effective this coming October 1, Maryland law will require children to be in booster seats until they are at least 6 years old. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) goes even further, recommending that children who have outgrown child safety seats be properly restrained in booster seats in the back seat until they are at least 8 years old, unless they are 4 feet 9 inches tall. A booster seat lifts a child up so a safety belt can fit correctly. Without a booster seat, in a crash, a small child can be ejected from a vehicle.

THE 4 STEPS FOR KIDS:

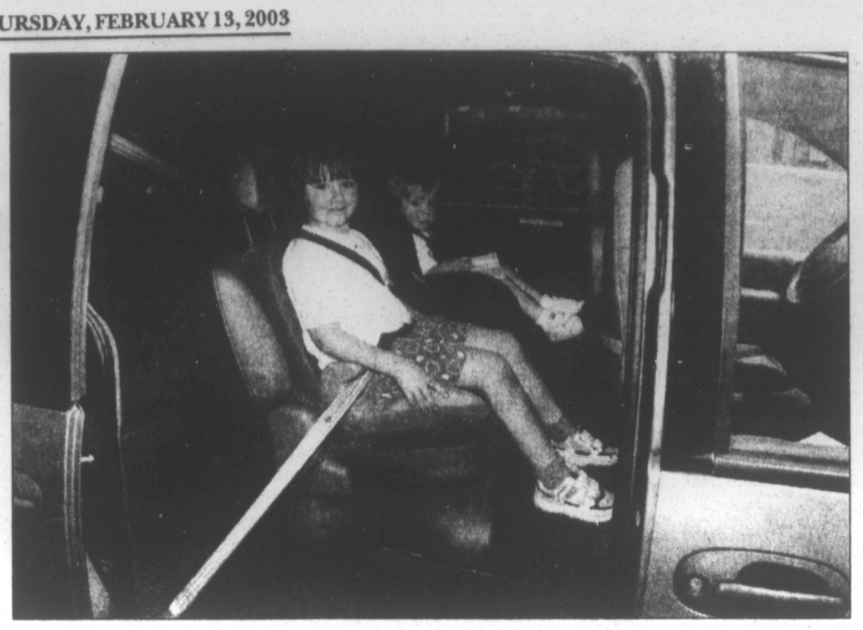
•Use rear-facing infant seats in the back seat from birth to at least 1 year old and at least 20 pounds.

•Use forward-facing toddler seats in the back in the back seat from age 1 to about age 4 and 20 to 40 pounds.

•Use booster seats in the back seat from about age 4 and 40 pounds to at least age 8, unless 4'9".

•Use safety belts at age 8 or older or taller than 4 feet 9 inches. All children 12 and under should ride in the back seat.

Individual child safety seat checks are available at the health department by appointment. Additional trainings will be scheduled, and interested persons can call 301-334-7730 for information. For more information about child passenger safety, persons may consult the NHTSA Web site at www.nhtsa.dot.gov, or contact Lee by ph1 at 301-334-7730, or via e-mail at or leed@dhmh.state.md.us.



EVEN BIG KIDS NEED A BOOST — Effective this coming Oct. 1, Maryland law will require children to use booster seats until they are at least 6 years old. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration goes even further, recommending that children who have outgrown child safety seats be properly restrained in booster seats until they are at least 8 years old, unless they are 4 feet 9 inches tall. Pictured above is 6-year-old Rebecca Lee in her booster seat, with brother Patrick in his convertible seat. While most infants and toddlers ride in the right child safety seat, less than 10 percent of the children who should be in booster seats use one. The Garrett County Health Department reminds parents that child care in the car begins with the "4 Steps for Kids" (below), a simple strategy for proper restraint that includes the often-missed but essential booster seat.

Board" wherein Rob Heilig was quoted as saying, "watts plus voltage equals amperage." Exactly how the error occurred is not known. He was either misquoted or the formula was incorrectly typed. I can assure those concerned that Rob, a master electrician in both Maryland and West Virginia, knows the correct formula. I work with Rob daily and he is in fact very knowledgeable and competent as Roger Skipper kindly pointed out in his letter. Mistakes are easily made, which is evident by Mr. Skipper calling the formula Watt's Law instead of Ohm's Law, which I am sure he knows is the correct name.

I also want to take this opportunity to add my support to the Garrett County Mechanical Association's endeavor to have an electrical board formed. While I appreciate the concern that those opposed have for the "poor people" of Garrett County, may I suggest that it is their way of thinking that has kept us that way?

The "laborers" that Mr. Skipper refers to in his letter are my co-workers, my husband, and myself. We are among the "less-than-wealthy" that he speaks of. We work to support our family and are the ones who hope to someday build a home and make a life for ourselves in Garrett County. Many local employers have for too long been able to hire skilled workers for minimum wage or slightly above.

If the cost of materials is a "constant" as Mr. Skipper suggests, then it stands to reason that the fluctuating factor is the labor cost. Indeed, "let's be realistic about the unstated purposes" of the opposition to regulation: it would set standards for the trade and force accountability for breach of those standards, it would give homeowners a place to voice complaints, and, most of all, it would add value to the laborers' skills and would not allow them to be hired at a wage that keeps them and their families impoverished. Without regulation, labor costs remain low and profit is not distributed between all involved, but rises disproportionately to the top.

Businesses, both large and small, must make adjustments daily to remain profitable. That is free enterprise and it is the driving force that makes today better than yesterday for all of us. I understand that all cannot afford homes like the ones being built at Deep Creek Lake: however, even in a small house or remodeling job, is the wiring really where one would want to cut costs? The old adage "you get what you pay for" is not always true, but is true more often than not. There will always be the people who choose to have "cousin Joe" do work around their home just as there are now, but if an unsuspecting homeowner hires someone to do the work, they should be able to assume that the person is competent in the trade and that someone is looking out for their protection and safety.

How can all homeowners, regardless of affordability, not benefit by the elevation of builder quality and competence that Mr. Skipper admits will come with regulation? In comparison, some cannot afford medical care, yet if they are sick, do they not deserve the same quality care from trained physicians as those who can? Or should we have sub-standard, unlicensed, uninsured physicians that they can afford? Would an electrical fire at my humble house be of less consequence than one at a more expensive home?

It is a Maryland law that electricians must be licensed. This is not something that should be determined by local opinion, discussion, or "contemplation." Lawmakers of our state have already made the decision. The last time I checked, Garrett County is part of Maryland. When was it decided and who decided that it is not governed by the same laws?

Workers are being driven away from Garrett County as Mr. Skipper suggests, but where do you think they are going? They are going to areas where they can earn a decent wage and attain a standard of living that is not available to them here.

Let me end by quoting Rob (correctly this time), "We need to present our young people with opportunities for respected professions so that they can make a decent wage and earn a living here in the county."

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to a letter in the January 30, 2003 paper. I was shocked by Jeffrey Wilson's piece on "Going With Jesus to the Streets"

Mr. Wilson says that he spent three months of intensive study on 13th century theology. It seems he needs to spend three months intensive study of the Bible, period. The Bible is loaded with references to music, worship, and how music fits into worship.

"In content, it is often violent, extremely vulgar, and even sometimes dangerously anti-social."

That is just scratching the surface. Walk through the mall or Wal-Mart where there are televisions blasting this garbage out. The videos for these "songs" are exponentially more explicative, and are far worse than the "songs" themselves. Why would you or anyone want to introduce this kind of garbage into a worship service? The Bible says in 2nd Timothy 2:16, "But shun profane and vain babblings: for they will increase unto more ungodliness." And in Ephesians 4:29, "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers." Christ was not violent, extremely vulgar, nor anti-social.

"Rap specializes in rage."

In 2nd Samuel 23:1, David is called the sweet psalmist of Israel. None of the songs in the Bible are about rage, but about victory, how God gave it, and praise to God.

"Rappers confront the most fundamental questions of human existence."

Really? The Bible does that too. And if your pastor preaches the gospel, he will too. And you probably will not like it. Unless you are born again, a believing child of God. How about this? 2nd Timothy 3:3-4, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears. And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." That is what is happening today. Got questions? Need answers? Ask God! Go to church!

"...the film convinced me that the Christian Church should embrace rap music wholeheartedly, and the sooner the better."

Well, it is sad to say, but with all of our music styles today fewer people are getting right with God than back in the 18th and 19th centuries; even in the early 20th century. And their music was very simple. Church was not made for amusement or entertainment, but preaching God's divine Word, and for praising him who created all things.

"Before my eyes in a film depicting scenes of life from the 21st century American ghetto, I saw 13th century dialectical disputation come alive."

Oh? You probably could have got the same effect from watching "C-Span."

"...just waiting to be infused with the message that creates and saves. I have imagined the Psalms set to rap."

When a person hears rap music, you are hearing more beat and other noise than you are message, and your body is going to respond to the beat. People are also not going to listen closely to the words. One reason is that they figure that it is just other rap music, and just move to the beat and not listen to the message. When I work in Baltimore, I am inundated with this music in stores, and areas where I work. The words that you can make out, I would dare not repeat. You can not put the Gospel to this and have someone understand it. Read 1st Corinthians 14:4-16.

The apostle Paul became all things to all men (1st Corinthians 9:22). Does this mean that he became a drunk to win the drunkard? No! Did he become a rapper to win those who listen to rap? No.

Christianity is about conviction. Conviction that I, you, we are all sinners and come short of the glory of God. "Our righteousness is as filthy rags." "There is none righteous, no, not one." "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God."

Christ came to save the people from their sin, not in their sin. The Gospel offends sinners because sin loves darkness more than light. "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil." (John 3:19)

All throughout the Bible, it is mentioned for the songs and stories to be passed down from generation to generation, just as we still sing "Mary had a little lamb" today as has been done in years past. You say 8 Mile has changed your life. I would hope that you would let God change your life. (Revelation 3:20)

To the Editor:

The huge January 23 Baltimore Sun article about Johnny's Bait House, "Gone Fishin'," struck a nerve with me. And Wendell Beitzel's February 6 letter to The Republican about the end of Johnny's as we know it just reinforced my sense of loss!

Johnny's Bait was a strange new world to me the first time I entered what then seemed little more than a shack. Raised in the city, I'd never been fishing and never heard of a bait house when my Dad took my brother Larry and me for our first visit in what was probably around '57 or '60.

It seems we were just little tykes, around 9 and 10 years old, and we were amazed. There were all kinds of strange sights and smells in the shop, and the signs and language spoken between my father and Johnny told of exotic tools, instruments, and creatures. And night crawlers? Blood worms? What were they? Just the names evoked images of horror films!

We knew about minnows, as we had several aquariums, and could catch wild minnows in Rock Creek near our home, but I was dumb enough to think that a mesh over the top of the aquarium would keep them alive. Bzzzt! Wrong answer! They would find a way to wiggle out and I'd find them dead on the basement floor the next morning! Or even worse, Mom found them dead on the basement floor!

So what did Johnny do to keep his minnows in the pail for sale? They seemed to move around slowly and sluggishly, and I don't ever remember netting over the top of the buckets! Why didn't they jump out? Were they so fed they became lethargic? Was the water so warm that it slowed their metabolism? We could never figure it out!

And as I remember my first catch, from the first time we ever went fishing that first summer at Deep Creek Lake, was from off the little bridge down a short way from the original little Will O' the Wisp motel, and it was a catfish! Not a pretty fish -- but a prickly and feisty rascal, and I didn't want to take it off the hook!

My brother was always "hands-on" — which meant that if he got his "hands-on" anything, you had better look out, as you might never see it again since he never hesitated about taking things apart, and it didn't matter what it was — clock, radio, bird, fish. . . . Anything little boys could get their hands on disappeared in the interest of curiosity and hands-on experience when Larry got it!

So I was a chicken; I looked at those catfish eyes and big whiskers and didn't want to eat it, couldn't bring myself to let it flap around and die, and I couldn't bring myself to unhook it and release it! And I called Larry to the rescue, because he sure knew what to do!

And what was the best thing we ever did with anything from Johnny's Bait House? Why, cut up the leftover bloodworms, put them in the bucket with a little water, stir it up so everything was swirling, and invite little sis, Debbie, to come see all the pretty little fishes swimming in the bucket!

"Eeewww!"

Now that's the life!

And over the years we got Johnny's ice, and Johnny's bottled gas for the rented cabin, and we rented water skis, they were probably Johnny's, too! And our family came back for so many summers, another brother has a house there to this day, and different branches of the family routinely come to visit bro!

But what we loved the most was Johnny's advice. When we started out, our whole family was nothing but a bunch of flat-land landlubbers, and we depended on Johnny's suggestions for not just where to fish, but when to even go out on the water, given the way a storm could blow up in seconds!

I remember one time I didn't listen. Dad was a heating and air-conditioning engineer and wasn't around in the summer except for extended holiday weekends, so I asked Johnny and didn't like his answer. I was a big boy, and I wanted to go out — what did Johnny know, anyway?

Fool that I was, I went out on the lake in a rowboat and was halfway between State Park and the Will O' the Wisp motel (we rented their second cabin every summer for years) when a monster thunderstorm blew in from nowhere. I was rowing for an hour without getting any closer to shore, no matter which way I aimed.

It was my first vision of mortality, as I thought I'd die, and to this day I get chills thinking about it; but I learned my lesson and listened to Johnny's weather sense after that! He just knew when the water was right!

So, as one of the young boys Mr. Beitzel referred to, I'd like to say we are indebted to Johnny's Bait House for many of our fondest memories. An idyllic summer on Deep Creek Lake will never be the same.

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

Garden Club Sets Program On Area Birds

A short business meeting will open the gathering, and the speaker's presentation will be followed by a buffet lunch.

An active participant in a number of bird surveys that have been carried out in Garrett County, Dodge directs the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology Program at Garrett College, where he is also a professor of wildlife and biology. He has been on the college faculty since 1987, and has taught a number of various courses in natural history and ecology. His courses emphasize field experience, and many classes include field trips to other parts of the Mid-Atlantic/Central Appalachian region.

He leads numerous hikes and conducts campfire programs for Maryland's state parks, state forests, and the Nature Conservancy. He also leads participants on trips to Alaska with the Travel/Study Ecotour Program of Towson University and Garrett College, and takes GC students to the southern tier of the U.S. for natural history field studies during spring breaks.

Dodge received his bachelor's degree in biology from Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield, a master's degree in biology from Michigan Technological University, Houghton, and has carried out additional studies at West Virginia University, Morgantown. He and his family live in Bittinger.

Driving Tips Offered By GC Sheriff's Office

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has issued several safe driving tips for motorists to follow in winter weather conditions.

"These are a few traffic laws that when applied can substantially reduce the risk of motor vehicle accidents," said Sheriff Dick Sanders.

• When windshield wipers are being used to improve visibility due to unfavorable conditions, the vehicle's headlights must be turned on. Not only does this assist the driver in seeing the roadway, but it also assists other motorist in seeing your vehicle.

• Turn signals should be activated well in advance to allow other motorists to prepare for your movement. Abrupt movements on icy roads can result in accidents.

• Use extreme caution when overtaking and passing vehicles, and only do so when it is safe and permitted by law.

• Last of all, prepare for your stops well in advance. Accidentally sliding a few feet over the stop line might not seem like much, but it can be very difficult for vehicles to get around you.

"Exercising these tips can greatly reduce the risk of accidents and create a better driving environment for everyone," Sanders said.

Persons with questions about traffic laws or wish to obtain a copy of them may call the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration at 301-729-4660.

Emergency Svcs. Training Day Set At Allegany Coll.

The "Miltenberger Emergency Services Seminar," a daylong training program, is scheduled for Saturday, May 31, at Allegany College of Maryland, Cumberland. Organized by a committee of fire, emergency medical services (EMS), nursing, and physician personnel, the educational seminar will feature expert speakers in a variety of fields from across the country.

Some of the agenda topics include "Lessons Learned from the Montgomery County Amtrak Disaster"; "Current Trends in Trauma Care"; "Emergency Response to Electric Car Crashes"; Response to Wilderness Land Fires"; "Dealing with Violent Patients"; "Domestic Abuse"; and "Pediatric Extrication."

"This is going to be an outstanding educational opportunity for our people," stated Region I EMS medical director Dr. William May of Cumberland. "It will offer both lecture and hands-on training opportunities. We hope this will be the first of many such workshops, and it will grow in future years from a one-day to a weekend seminar, similar to those held in the eastern portion of the state."

The seminar is named for Dr. F. W. Miltenberger, the first regional EMS medical director and a long-time advocate for improved prehospital care and trauma center advancement in Maryland. Following Dr. Miltenberger's death in 1999, a special fund was established for the advancement of EMS and fire training in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Persons interested in obtaining more information about the Miltenberger Emergency Services Seminar should contact the MIEMSS Region I Office at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636.

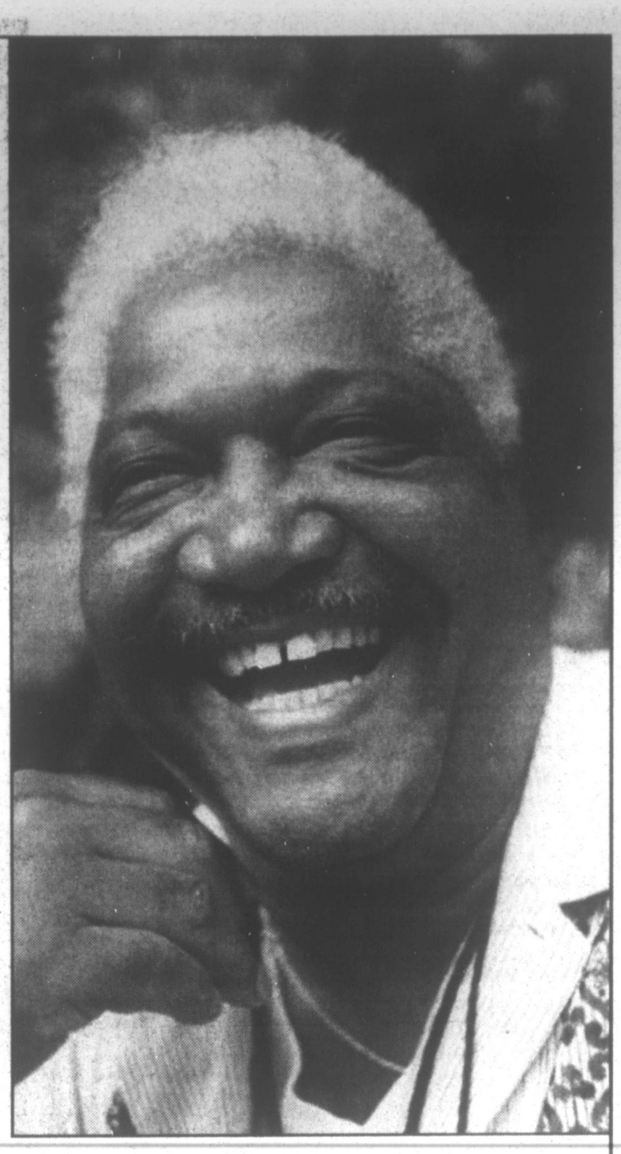
You just won the lottery! Are you lucky? Maybe, maybe not. Many winners go on to lose everything.

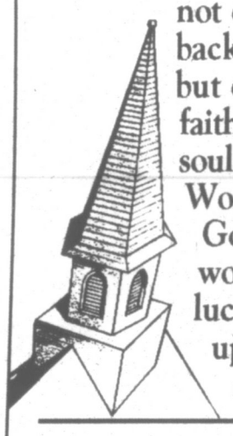
A layoff is announced at work. Your job is eliminated. Are you unlucky? Maybe, maybe not. Perhaps you will take this opportunity to complete your degree and find that position you wanted so badly before you were sidetracked five years ago.

You cannot control your state of being all of the time. That is something called life. You can determine your state of mind. That is called faith in God. With faith, you never feel out of control because God is in control of your life, whatever the circumstances.

Without God, you may often feel uneasy, wondering what is around the next turn.

"Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen." [Hebrews 11:1] "But we are not of those who shrink back and are destroyed, but of those who have faith and keep their souls." [Hebrews 10:39] Worship this week in God's House. Your life won't depend on luck...it will depend upon God. You have nothing to lose.





Are You Lucky?

"PROBIOTICS" TO RESTORE INTESTINAL BACTERIA

Many of us think of all bacteria as being undesirable, since many bacteria are associated with infection and sickness. However, certain bacteria are actually beneficial to our health. For example, some of the "good bacteria" are essential to maintaining normal digestive function. Two of these desirable or good bacteria, Lactobacillus and Bifidobacterium, appear to improve lactose digestion and reduce the incidence of diarrhea.

Supplements of various strains of Lactobacillus and Bifidobacterium sometimes are referred to as "probiotics." They can be taken two hours after antibiotics to ease common GI side effects related to antibiotic therapy and restore "normal" bacteria to the digestive system. Probiotics have been used successfully to treat and prevent diarrhea from rotavirus in infants, treat infantile eczema, and prevent traveler's diarrhea in adults. Lactobacillus and Bifidobacterium are found naturally in yogurt and some cheeses.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NOT ALWAYS "SECOND BEST"

February 16, 2003

Background Scripture:
Acts 16:1-5; Philippians 2:19-24; 1 Timothy 1:1-3; 2 Timothy 1:1-5.
Devotional Reading:
2 Timothy 2:1-7.

An ancestor of mine, Monroe Althouse, was conductor of one of the most historic concert bands in the USA. He also was the composer of many fine marches. At the same time, however, there was another conductor/composer who substantially overshadowed him: John Philip Sousa.

The grandson of Monroe Althouse also became an outstanding musician, a leading tenor at the Metropolitan Opera in New York. But there was another tenor who outshone him: Enrico Caruso.

When I was in grades one through six, even at my best I was only second academically to another boy. He even got the part in a play that I thought was going to be mine. Since then, I'm not sure I've been first in anything all that significant, but I have learned that, in life, not being 'first' doesn't necessarily mean being 'second best.'

'Everything?

Last evening I was watching a rerun of a 1960's film, Grand Prix and there was a scene in which a driver who caused an accident was confronted by the wife of the s eriously injured driver of another car: "What a terrible way to win!" she said. "No," the driver replied, "Winning is everything." I realize that that is one of the prevailing values in our world today and I have nothing against 'winning' or being 'number one,' but to believe that it is "everything" or even most important is a denial of what Jesus teaches us.

God has a different way of defining 'winning.' Therefore, some people in this world who think they are winning are in actuality losing. As Jesus warned us, "For what does it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses or forfeits himself" (Lk.9:25). God's values are often completely opposed to those of society: What we're called to is not being "first," but making and sharing the most of what God gives us..

Timothy was a valued helper for all of his ministry, but he never achieved the stature of Paul. Yet, suppose that the early Christian churches had been filled with the likes of Paul!.. What the church needed in abundance were disciples like Timothy, people who, although they probably couldn't preach with the power of Paul, could and did provide a powerful witness as valued helpers. Paul recognized Timothy's gifts and he wanted this young man to accompany him on his second missionary journey.

A Genuine Concern

Paul's high regard for Timothy is spelled out in his letter to the Philippians; "I have no one like him, who will be genuinely anxious for your welfare". Tim

GC Center For Lifelong Learning Sets Course Slate

A variety of learning opportunities for adults are being offered during the next four months by the Center for Lifelong Learning at Garrett College. Some of these have been rescheduled because of the inclement January weather, while others are newly announced selections for the second quarter of 2003. Fee information can be obtained by calling the Continuing Education and Training Office at 301-387-3069.

Three courses will convene in March. "Learn to Love Exercise and Your Body Again" will be presented over four consecutive Saturdays beginning March 1 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Flowery Vale Center in Accident. Taught by Elaine Kackley, this course will present the fun side of exercise, along with the aspects of physical and mental health.

For persons interested in local history, a three-session course, "Garrett County and the Civil War," has been scheduled for March 4, 11, and 18 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the McHenry campus. This course will be taught by local historian John Grant, and will cover events that occurred here and persons who were involved.

A one-session course, "Music and Sound for Health Enhancement," is scheduled for Saturday, March 8, from 10 a.m. to noon at the McHenry campus. Nancy-Elizabeth Nimmich is the instructor.

April's offerings are as follows, with specific dates and times yet to be announced: "Religious Studies," with one session on the Muslim religion and another on Christianity; "Antiquing for Dummies"; and two sessions at the Camp Hickory planetarium, "The Sky Over Garrett County" and "The Galaxy."

Five activities have been scheduled for May. The third annual "Write Away" writers' conference is set for Saturday, May 10, with two morning sessions beginning at 9 a.m., and two afternoon sessions beginning at 12:30 p.m. The four consecutive sessions will be "Writing Your Family Story" by Joan Crawford, "Writing Poetry" by Deb Wolf, "Fiction Writing" by Dr. Greg Jenkins, and "Writing Publicity" by Peggy Santamaria.

A May series for retired persons and those approaching retirement age has been scheduled for three consecutive Wednesday evenings, from 6:30 to 8:30 pm. on the McHenry campus. "Retirement Planning and Beyond" will be presented by Chris Stoner of F&M Bank on May 14; "Legal and Financial Implications for Long Term Care" will be presented by Jack Turney on May 21; and "How to Protect Yourself from Scam Artists" will be presented by Larry Gnegy on May 28.

A culinary class, "Cooking with Herbs," will be presented by Adina Brode on Saturday, May 17, from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Mary Browning Center in Oakland.

Seven different topics are represented in courses being planned in June, with dates and times still to be determined. The different subjects that will be covered are container gardening, beekeeping, the natural beauty of Cranesville Swamp, watercolor painting, playing the recorder, organic gardening, and herbs for health.

These offerings for adults have been planned by a group of Garrett County residents working with Carol Dearden of Garrett College. Community members include Adina Brode and Ronnie Padmos, Ruth DiPaolo, Jack Turney, Charles Strauss, Willetta Rissell, Joan Crawford, John Grant, and Ivan Rowe.

Cove Christian Camp Openings Still Available

Openings are still available for Cove Christian Camp, Accident. The board of directors is continuing to make plans for the day camps that will be held the weeks of July 7, 14, and 21.

"Things are coming along really well," said board chairperson Kathy Kabell. "Pre-registrations have already far exceeded our expectations. We're really pleased and are anticipating even more registrations in the next few weeks."

Cove Christian Camp, located along Cove Road just north of Northern High School, is a day camp sponsored by St John's Lutheran Church in Accident.

Specifically designed for children in kindergarten through third grade, the camps provide "a safe, loving place for children to interact."

Because of the limited number of spaces available, early registration is encouraged. Interested persons may e-mail Cove Christian Camp at covechristiancamp@hotmail.com or call 301-746-8344 to receive a brochure and registration form.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

Garrett County's landscape has been painted white since early December, thanks to the over 100 inches of snow that has fallen. In stark contrast to this blanket of white are the stands of evergreens that dot the hillsides. Though many of these are conifer plantations planted by Christmas tree farmers, the timber industry, and the Maryland Forest & Park Service, others have formed voluntarily from seeds dispersed by wildlife and wind. One such group of volunteers, the eastern hemlock, can be found on north facing slopes and in moist hollows. Known as Canada hemlock, hemlock-spruce, and spruce-pine in other parts of the country, the scientific name of this native tree is Tsuga canadensis.

The eastern hemlock is a stately cone-bearing tree that can attain heights of over 100 feet and a diameter of four feet. The small 3/4" cones of this member of the pine family are found at the ends of the twigs. The delicate foliage is composed of ½"-long bayonet-shaped needles, colored a lustrous, deep green on top with two thin white bands beneath. The dense foliage of shade-loving hemlocks prevents much of the incoming snow from reaching the ground. Cross-country skiers must take care when they enter a pure hemlock forest, since the snow cover can be quite thin.

When people are first introduced to this tree they immediately assume it is the notorious hemlock of ancient Greece that Socrates drank to poison himself. His toxic cocktail was most likely the alien herb called poison hemlock. Our native, woody eastern hemlock is not poisonous. Early explorers, trappers, and Native Americans actually drank a tea made of its needles to prevent scurvy.

It's sad to imagine, but in the past, large stands of hemlock were cut solely for their bark. It contains tannin, a chemical that was needed in early leather tanning operations. Though the lumber can only be used for rough construction, the eastern hemlock has other values. A great variety of wildlife species including deer, rabbit, squirrel, beaver, wood rat, grouse, and songbirds eat its buds, needles, bark, seeds, and twigs. It is also an attractive ornamental.

Magnificent old stands can presently be found at Swallow Falls State Park and within the wildlands of Savage River State Forest. An alien invader called the hemlock wooly adelgid that has recently arrived in Garrett County now threatens these beautiful trees. This aphid-like insect from eastern Asia is responsible for the defoliation and death of hemlocks from New England to the Carolinas. Hopefully it can be controlled before it devastates our incredible eastern hemlocks.

The shiny, deep green needles of eastern hemlock are a stark contrast to the snowy landscape. On the underside of the needle, two thin white bands are clearly visible. Photo by Elk Ridge NatureWorks.

REPORTS FROM THE FIELD

IRS Has $2.5 Billion For Those Who Failed To File '99 Returns

Nationwide, unclaimed refunds totaling more than $2.5 billion are awaiting about 1.9 million people who failed to file a 1999 income tax return, the Internal Revenue Service announced this week. However, in order to collect the money, a return must be filed with an IRS office no later than April 15, 2003.

In Maryland, it is estimated that about 39,900 taxpayers who haven't filed their 1999 tax return are due over $50 million.

The IRS estimates that about half of those who could claim refunds would receive more than $511. Some individuals may have had taxes withheld from their wages, but had too little income to require filing a tax return. Others may not have had any tax withheld, but would be eligible for the refundable Earned Income Tax Credit.

"Time is running out. If you don't file that 1999 tax return, you can't get the refund," said IRS spokesman for Maryland Jim Dupree. "We're urging taxpayers to double-check their records before the April 15 deadline. We want all Marylanders to get the refunds they're entitled to."

In cases where a return was not filed, the law provides most taxpayers with a three-year window of opportunity for claiming a refund. If no return is filed to claim the refund within three years, the money becomes property of the U.S. Treasury. For 1999 returns, that window closes on April 15, 2003. The law further requires that these returns be properly addressed, postmarked, and mailed by that date. There is no penalty assessed by the IRS for filing a late return properly claiming a refund.

The IRS reminds taxpayers seeking a 1999 refund that their checks will be held if they have not filed tax returns for 2000 or 2001. In addition, the refund will be applied to any amounts still owed to the IRS and may be used to satisfy unpaid child support or past-due federal debts such as student loans.

By failing to file a return, individuals stand to lose more than refunds of taxes withheld or paid during 1999. Many low-income workers may not have claimed the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Although eligible taxpayers may get a refund when their EITC is more than their tax, those who file returns more than three years late would be able only to offset their tax. They would not, however, be able to receive refunds if the credit exceeded their tax.

Generally, individuals qualified for the EITC in 1999 if they earned less than $30,580 and had more than one qualifying child living with them, less than $26,928 with one qualifying child, or less than $10,200 and had no qualifying child.

Current and prior year tax forms are available on the IRS Web site (www.irs.gov) or by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676).

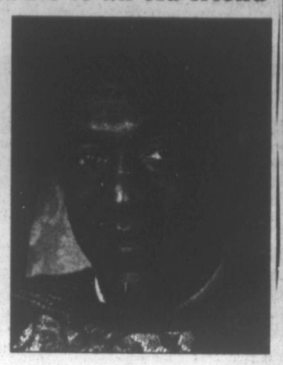
Cosby wore pin as tribute to an old friend

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



Q: On many episodes of "The Cosby Show," Cliff wore some sort of pin. Do you know what it was? Also, how did Beaver of "Leave It to Beaver" get his nickname? –Brenda Nies, Bloomingdale, Ill.

A: I presume you are referring to the small blue pin that said "SDjr." Cosby began wearing it as a tribute to his friend Sammy Davis Jr. following the latter's death in 1990.

On an episode of "Leave It to Beaver," it was explained that when the Cleaver boys were very small, Wally's attempts to pronounce his little brother's given name, Theodore, came out "Beaver."

Q: To my knowledge, Kelsey Grammer has had all of the former "Cheers" regulars on as guests on "Frasier" with the exception of Rebecca (Kirstie Alley). Any chance that Alley will show up on "Frasier" soon? –George D., Vero Beach, Fla.

A: Not likely. Alley and Grammer are friends, but the quirky actress holds strong opinions against Dr. Frasier Crane's chosen field and doesn't want to have anything to do with a show that lends credibility to psychiatry.

"I don't like psychiatry and I don't believe it works," Alley has said in several interviews. "And I believe psychiatrists are neurotic or psychotic, for the most part."

When Woody Allen approached Alley about playing his jilted psychiatrist wife in "Deconstructing Henry," the actress accepted, but asked for and received permission to play the character as a total emotional wreck.

Q: What is singer John Gary doing now? We miss hearing his voice and wonder what he is doing now. –C. Psota, Oroville, Calif.

A: I am sorry to report that the polite, clean-cut and self-effacing Gary, who had his own variety series in the late 1960s, died of cancer in 1998 at age 65. Jason Gary, his son, maintains a loving memorial Web site online at johngary.com, where Gary videos and CDs are sold. Fans without computer access can write to the John Gary International Fan Club, 7 Briarwood Circle, Richardson, Texas 75080.

Q: Is Margot Kidder the mother of Janet Kidder, who stars in the Canadian series "Tom Stone"? –Priscilla Poluk, Quesnel, British Columbia, Canada.

A: No, Margot is Janet's aunt. The two worked together in an episode of "La Femme Nikita," or "Nikita" as the series was known in Canada.

Q: How did Catherine Zeta-Jones get that scar on her neck? –Steve Lucero, Pueblo, Colo.

A: It's from a childhood tracheotomy that was performed when a virus caused her breathing to become seriously impaired.

"Dime Roll" Ruse Lands W.Va. Man In District Court

A Morgantown man who tricked two local businesses into giving him sums of cash in exchange for pennies pleaded guilty in Garrett County District Court recently to carrying out a misdemeanor theft scheme.

Erick Linwood Deickman, 32, was handed a one-year suspended sentence by Judge Ralph M. Burnett, who also ordered that the defendant pay full restitution to his victims. Deickman's November arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from two incidents at a pair of Grantsville locations. In the first, a subject cashed multiple dime rolls with a face value of $103 at the First United Bank; however, when tellers broke opened the sealed rolls, they discovered that they were filled with pennies. The second incident, just a few days later, took place at the Rite Aid store, when a subject attempted to cash more dime rolls.

As the transaction was being conducted, the cashiers discovered that the dime rolls they were cashing were filled with pennies. A surveillance camera captured the subject on film, and eyewitnesses were able to provide descriptions of his vehicle and the vehicle's tag number to investigators.

Deickman's sentence included orders to pay restitution of $103.50 to First United Bank, and $18 to Rite Aid. Additional charges of two counts of misdemeanor theft and one count of attempted misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other District Court news, a Prince George's County man was ordered to pay restitution to cover damages incurred at a Deep Creek Lake area motel.

John Kenneth Friend, 47, College Park, pleaded guilty to malicious destruction of property and disorderly conduct, and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $150, placed on two years of unsupervised probation, and required to make an unspecified restitution payment to the owners of the Point View Inn & Motel.

State troopers had arrested Friend in December after he grew disorderly and punched out a window at the motel. Alcohol was cited as a factor in the incident. Two counts of second degree assault were not prosecuted.

Douglas Scott Mirolli, 25, Greensburg, Pa., pleaded guilty to possession of drug paraphernalia and was handed a $355 fine and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service. The charge stemmed from his September arrest after a traffic stop near McHenry, when a vehicle search uncovered a smoking pipe, rolling papers, and loose flakes of suspected marijuana. An additional charge of marijuana possession was placed onto the stet docket.

Mary Francis Green, 19, Swanton, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor theft charge filed by Oakland police officers at the time of her December arrest for shoplifting at Wal-Mart. She was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $50, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service and make a $37 restitution payment to the store.

Jesse Franklin Allen Liller, 20, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling on charges of misdemeanor theft, removing the label from a prescription medication bottle, and possession of Xanax without a prescription. He also pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence (DUI) and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), a $300 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. After being stopped by state police near the Arrowhead Market, it was determined that Liller had stolen several Xanax pills from an acquaintance's residence shortly beforehand.

Robert P. Michaels, 32, Oakland, was handed stet rulings on charges of second degree assault, trespassing, and disturbing the peace. His November arrest came after sheriff deputies investigated an alleged assault on a resident who had reportedly warned Michaels he was trespassing on his property.

Michael Eugene Caslow, 38, Mtn. Lake Park, was not prosecuted on a second degree assault charge filed by sheriff's deputies in November after he allegedly stomped on a juvenile's foot, breaking one of the victim's toes.

Charles Raymond Housley Jr., 29, Terra Alta, and a co-defendant, Melissa Lee Wolfe, 27, Pittsburgh, were both not prosecuted after being arrested by sheriff's deputies for obstructing and hindering a police investigation. The charges were filed in November after a traffic stop when Housley allegedly provided a false name for his passenger, Wolfe, and Wolfe herself gave a false Social Security number when asked. She was reportedly attempting to avoid apprehension on an unrelated warrant.

RECEIVES CCUE DESIGNATION – WEPCO Federal Credit Union announced this week that Vicki L. Thayer, vice president/Oakland branch manager, has received her Certified Credit Union Executive (CCUE) designation, with honors. Thayer completed her requirements for the designation in November and was recently awarded her plaque and pin during a dinner. "The CCUE designation is a high achievement among professional credit union mangers," said a WEPCO spokesperson. "It is a comprehensive program created by the Credit Union National Association. The program has been in existence for 19 years, and there are only 2,122 people who have received their designations nationwide." WEPCO has three other CCUE designees: president Howard Warnick, vice president David Lucas, and vice president Lana Bittinger. Thayer began her career at the credit union in 1991 as the Oakland branch manager. She resides in Oakland with her husband Jerry. Thayer is pictured above with her plaque and chairman James Weasenforth and Lucas at the dinner.

Children's Dental Health Month

WHAT CAUSES BABY-BOTTLE TOOTH DECAY?
Submitted by Cynthia Heselbach, RDH
Garrett County Health Department
Dental Care Center

Baby-bottle tooth decay is caused by frequent, long-term exposure of baby teeth to liquids containing sugars, such as milk, formula, sodas, fruit juice, Kool-Aid, and other sweetened drinks. The sugar in the drinks causes acid attacks to the teeth, not only to baby teeth, but also to the permanent teeth in older children, resulting in rampant tooth decay.

Never put a child down for a nap or to bed at night with a bottle containing sugary liquids. During sleep the liquid flows and pools around the teeth for an extended period of time, causing constant acid attacks to the teeth. This causes the teeth to literally decay. This may cause problems such as poor eating habits, speech problems, crooked teeth, damage to the adult teeth, and also may cause the adult teeth to be yellow or brown when they erupt.

To prevent baby-bottle tooth decay, put your child down with water if the child refuses to fall asleep without the bottle; simply fill it with water and nothing else. After each feeding, wipe the child's teeth and gums with a damp wash cloth or a small baby toothbrush to remove food and debris.

For more information about children's dental health or baby-bottle tooth decay, please call the Garrett County Health Department's Dental Care Center at 301-334-7660.

Garrett Financial Aid Office Spends Time On Its Students

The second in a series about the staff at Garrett College

By Joan Crawford

In these years when 88 percent of college students receive some form of financial assistance to help pay for their education, the financial aid office becomes an important stop in the admissions process. At Garrett College the three persons who staff that office make serving students their top priority.

Patricia Bennett, director of financial aid, expresses this customer friendly philosophy. "Our students are not numbers," she said. "They are people with individual needs that we try to meet."

In addition to counseling students and parents and helping them complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), Bennett oversees the Federal Pell Grant program. Her duties include completing required state and federal reports, processing electronic applications, presenting financial aid workshops in the high schools and at the college, and educating fifth grade students in the College and Me program about financial aid. She also serves on the Mt. Top College and Career Expo committee and on the Garrett College Foundation Scholarship committee.

About her colleagues in the office, Bennett said, "I am fortunate to have a fantastic team who are committed to providing the best service to our students."

Erin DiBacco, assistant director of financial aid, is responsible for the Direct Loan program. She finds her job rewarding. "I truly enjoy helping students secure money that enables them to afford a college education," she said. "The interest rate on student loans is the lowest it has ever been, which is very beneficial for our borrowers. I strongly encourage current and potential students to stop by the financial aid office to learn about the many opportunities for scholarships and grant money, as well as student loans."

Alyce McDowell, financial aid counselor, also finds her job rewarding. Her responsibilities include processing payroll for all student employees in both the College Work Study and the Earn and Learn programs.

"It is very gratifying to assist students by making college possible and to help them fulfill their dream of an education and reach their future goals." she said. "One aspect of my job involves the Federal Financial Student Labor programs that provide part-time employment to students who need income to meet education costs. It is a job where I get to know students and their parents intimately."

Each year when students are asked to complete a satisfaction survey about Garrett College programs and services, the financial aid office receives the highest number of "very satisfied" responses.

"Our door is always open to anyone who needs help with financial aid questions and concerns," concluded Bennett.

JUST AN APPLICATION AWAY – The Financial Aid office staff at Garrett College is in the enviable position of having money to pass out to students willing to do their part in the legwork of filling out applications. Seated is Patricia Bennett, director of financial aid, while standing are Erin DiBacco, left, assistant director, and Alyce McDowell, financial aid counselor. See story.

FSU To Host Survivor Of Mine Accident

John Unger, one of the nine coal miners trapped last summer in a mine near Somerset, Pa., will speak at Frostburg State University next Wednesday, Feb. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lane University Center's Alice R. Manicur Assembly Hall.

Sponsored by United Campus Ministry and Catholic Campus Ministry, this event, titled "Nine for Nine: The Heroic Rescue of the Pennsylvania Miners," is free and open to the public.

Unger, who lives in nearby Somerset, will tell his own dramatic story of how he and the eight other miners managed to survive the traumatic accident and rescue that caught the nation's attention last summer. While trapped underground for 77 hours, the miners shared their fears, confessions, and prayers with one another while struggling to keep up their hopes of escaping alive. "Their successful rescue lifted the spirit of the entire nation. It is a story of strength, courage, and faith," stated a program spokesperson.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Rats are well-known for gnawing endlessly on anything they can find. Most people don't realize, however, that there's a physiological reason for this behavior. Constant gnawing wears down the rat's teeth; if they were allowed to grow unchecked, the lower teeth would grow into the animal's upper jaw, eventually penetrating the brain and killing the rat.

Crayola Crayons

Q. My grandmother was a schoolteacher during the early years of the last century. My mother inherited her estate, which included a wonderful collection of older Crayons, many in their original boxes. Some were manufactured by the New York company of Binney & Smith. How can I tell how old these might be and their possible value? — Rhonda, Plainville, Conn.

A. Edwin Binney and his cousin, C. Harold Smith, formed a partnership in 1903 and are responsible for producing the first box of eight Crayola Crayons. Edwin's wife, Alice, concocted the word Crayola by combing the French word for chalk, "craie," with the first part of "oleaginous," the oily paraffin used to make the crayon.

The first box, which sold for 5 cents, featured eight colors — Black, Brown, Blue, Red, Violet, Orange, Yellow and Green. Today, their company produces more than 3 billion Crayola Crayons annually.

To mark the centennial of Binney & Smith, Bonnie B. Rushlow has written a fascinating book, "A Century of Crayola Collectibles" (Hobby House Press, $24.95). Dr. Rushlow is a South Carolina schoolteacher who began collecting Crayola memorabilia more than 20 years ago. She now has almost 1,000 items in her collection and has become an expert.

In addition to product identification, the book features an excellent price guide. There are 380 illustrations in full color and a detailed chronology of changes made in Crayon colors and packaging from 1903 through the present. This book is highly recommended and will help you identify and value the items in your collection.

Puppy-Proofing Your Home

Q. We're bringing home a puppy in just a few days. The breeder told us we should "puppy-proof" the house prior to his arrival. Does this mean put down newspaper in case of accidents, or something else? — June B., Mystic, Conn.

A. Puppy-proofing a home is not so much protecting the interior from the dog, as it is protecting the dog (or any new pet) from the interior. Sure, newspaper is an important element to keep between your untrained puppy and expensive carpet. But puppies are curious, mobile fellows who can — and will — get into all sorts of trouble.

Most of this trouble falls into the category of chewed shoes, shredded papers and spilled liquids. However, just like young children, puppies are at risk from a number of common household items, like cleansers, small objects, electrical wires and unprotected stairways.

Before your puppy arrives, place household cleaners, alcohol (beer and wine, too), "people food" (especially chocolate) and similar items out of his reach. Put child safety locks on all floor-level cabinets in the kitchen and bathrooms. Cover unused outlets and secure electrical wires to the baseboard to discourage chewing.

Purchase a child safety gate that can be stretched across doorways or stair entrances to block off unsafe areas. If he must be unsupervised for short periods, consider purchasing a child's playpen so he will have room to romp around safely. Line the playpen with newspaper and place a few toys in with him. (Note: Don't let him sleep overnight in the playpen — his kennel crate should be his designated sleeping area.) With a few precautions, your puppy will be free to explore his new home.

"Would you like to 'supersize' that?"

"You'd think if they really wanted to punish me, they'd send me to their room!"

"I'm sorry, but coffee just isn't my cup of tea."

Surgical Group Contributes To GC United Way

Physicians with the Garrett Surgical Group, P.A., in Oakland recently demonstrated their community support by arranging monthly donations to United Way of Garrett County. The monies will be used to fund local programs.

"We wanted our donation to go to local organizations," said Dr. John Porcaro, MD, F.A.C.S. "United Way of Garrett County was a great way to ensure that our donation would be distributed over several agencies that assist many different types of needs."

United Way will be distributing their contribution to more than 16 different affiliated organizations. "This will ensure that Garrett County donations will have the greatest effect on the people who need the services of these organizations," said Fran Wishnick of United Way.

"We feel very strongly about wanting to make our community a better place to live," said Dr. Charles Walch, MD, F.A.C.S. "We are pleased to do our part in helping people who really need assistance and encourage other businesses to do the same."

Garrett Surgical Group is one of many local businesses that have committed a monthly contribution to United Way. The United Way of Garrett County, formed in April of 2000, is fully supported by contributions from individuals and businesses in the community.

According to Wishnick, United Way of Garrett County raised more than $84,000 last year to fund affiliated programs throughout the county. Additionally, the 2002 donation campaign more than doubled the amount of contributions and pledges from the previous year.

"Affiliated organizations have met the requirements of the United Way of Garrett County by delivering community services to improve the quality of life for the county," Wishnick said. "Any non-profit organization meeting the human needs of the community is welcome to apply for affiliation."

Volunteer representatives from the United Way of Garrett County are available to any business or organization interested in learning more about the agency.

For further information on volunteering or supporting United Way of Garrett County, persons may call 301-359-9697, or visit www.garrettunitedway.org. Contributions may be mailed to the United Way of Garrett County at P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550.

In Loving Memory of My Uncle,
Kenny Lucas

Time unfolds another year and even though you have gone away,
I still think of you with love every day.
I miss you more than words can say.
But I know one day in heaven, it's you I'll see.
Until then I'll hold your memory close.
For my memories of you are treasures with which I'll never part.
God has you in his keeping, and I'll always have you in my heart.

Love, Kaye

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Although Bittinger gets the worst of any northern snow storms with the ultra cold air, high winds, heavy snowfall, there was no worse driving than in Monday's southern snow. The first thing in the morning the air was clear of snow and the roads just slightly damp, but clear. When I returned to Bittinger from Grantsville where the weather was just fine, suddenly everything was white, with the air and the road blended into the white field. Underneath the fresh, wet, heavy coating of snow on the road there was about an inch of ice. I had to creep down Meadow Mountain between Brenneman's Grove and Kathryn Bowser's so I would not slide off into the deep drop-off into the woods.

I never drove on any more slick roads than Rock Lodge Road that morning. I didn't see much salt or ashes anywhere between Buckel's Store and my house.

By the way, Gary is as dismayed as the rest of us at the lackluster play of our Maryland Terrapins, as they lost two games in a row to not-that-hot teams, being University of Virginia and Georgia Tech.

The Southerly family will have to pass on the chance to watch their West Virginia Mountaineers hoop team play one of the top teams, the Pitt Panthers, at Morgantown this Wednesday evening. At least at the present they plan to go to watch Landon play in the last home game in his senior year. However, now the plans will be changed, as with the terrible weather today and no school, the game will be postponed until the last part of February. So hopefully they will enjoy watching the Mountaineers' game at home.

We sure got hammered again Monday evening and this morning. After a couple hours of sunshine, the snow is beginning to fall and the wind is at full speed again. In the last week or so, Sheila, her brother Denny, and I had some of the worst driving experiences in our many years of winter driving around here.

The main things Bittinger residents do are clear snow and wait for another expensive fuel delivery. I know how fuel oil prices skyrocket with the war cloud massing in the East. According to Sheila, it is just as bad with coal prices this year, with triple the normal price, and that's if you can find any decent coal. The oil fat cats are making a killing in profit, and now it has trickled down to coal miners in America.

The Southerlys, Rodney Glotfelty family, and I received an invitation to a reception for an exhibit of outstanding student art at the Art Council Gallery in Oakland on Sunday afternoon. Let's hope we can go up to Oakland to admire the works of Tyler Southerly, Elliot Glotfelty, and my Caitlin Sussman.

The February birthday binge is in full swing in Bittinger. A family birthday celebration for my brother Barry was held at the home of our mother, Ruth DiPaolo. There was quite a collection of shocked Terp fans there. If our psychological wounds were not enough, Barry was lame from an accident on a cross-country ski trip with Walter Haydel, McHenry, and Barry's friend from Frostburg, Rick Johnson.

Even though you do not go as fast as downhill skiing, you still can have some pretty spectacular falls. So Barry's fall was typical, as he caught one ski tip under an arched corn stalk, which resulted in a twisted somersault. Also, I guess the fitness program my big brother Rodney has been engaged in as Garrett County health officer caused problems with bone spurs on one of his feet. It's bad enough to have it in a soft cast and use crutches, just in time for his upcoming birthday. That means that Cindy Stanton is also due for a birthday very soon.

Although still plagued by ill health, Ken Buckel will have another birthday this weekend and will also be celebrating his and Harriett's wedding anniversary the first of next week. I am sure some cards would bring a little bright spot in his life right now. When Ken can't get out to church on Sunday, you know he isn't feeling the best. Hopefully the spring will bring much better weather.

This winter is a budget buster for fuel and cinder/salt for the roads. The scrapers take more gas than the blowers, plus Sheila and I can't keep our bird feeders filled fast enough to meet the demand. Now Sheila has to worry about the poor little deer now living on hemlock needles. I thought hemlock was poison, as was the poison drink of Socrates that was made from hemlock.

According to Bob Brenneman, deer usually rely on rhododendrons and laurel leaves in the winter, which I guess are now buried under a couple feet of snow along with the grass, weeds, and remaining seeds, which is the natural winter feed for our poor little wild birds.

Guess what. As I glance out my window there is a blur of white snow drifting softly down to refill what we just got shoveled and plowed out. I don't think there is any doubt we have gotten the normal 120-some inches of snow already this winter, and if we get a nice slow meltdown period, our ground water supply should be in good shape. Already Rock Lodge spring is in full flow now. That is one thing that is right these days. Every time I pass it, I thank God when it is flowing.

How many living in lower altitudes depend on our glades to catch, filter and hold their water supply? Even before this winter snow they were full of water. I know they will be completely full now. It is good news for ourselves also as the water seeps around surrounding ground, keeping our fields, pastures, and lawns green and our trees alive and healthy, at least until a freak ice storm breaks them into splinters, as happened last October and November. I am still stunned to see the number of big strong branches broken and the young trees flattened. I am sure we never had anything quite like that in my lifetime. How I can be so sure is because from my pony days through teenage years, I ducked under low-hanging branches on my pony, and "Joey" and I took anything worth jumping over. I think I would remember this kind of natural downed timber.

Although my two older daughters are delighted with their preparation for a great afternoon of sled riding, I sit and watch my small cash reserve being pumped into my heating oil tank.

GOING ESKIMO? – Parker Monn, 11, is shown taking advantage of a recent afternoon off from school by turning the cause of his holiday into a "snow cave" at his grandparents' home along Glendale Road. Now that's turning the elements to one's advantage!

Scholarship Offered By BPW Club

Applicants for the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club's "A Scholarship for Women" are being sought. The annual award of $600 is given to a woman over the age of 30 who is furthering her education through a vocational, technical, or academic program that results in a degree or certificate.

The scholarship is available to women living, working, or attending school in Garrett County. All applicants must submit a completed application, a transcript of grades, three letters of reference of character and abilities, and proof of acceptance into a program, school, or college/university. An interview may be scheduled with scholarship committee members.

"The Business and Professional Women's Club members believe in 'women helping women.' Much of this involved supporting, mentoring, and networking with women in their places of work," said Phyllis Trickett, scholarship committee chairperson. "However, many women are struggling to complete the education or training needed to enter or re-enter the job market in their chosen fields. Past scholarship award winners have gone on to enter the health care professions, the business world, and the field of education. This scholarship is one way we can encourage women to persevere. I know there are many qualified women in the community and urge them to apply."

Applications are available by contacting any BPW member or Trickett at 301-334-4810. The deadline for receipt of applications is March 31.

In Loving Memory of

Granny Purple

March 24, 1935 - February 14, 2002

Oh, our dear Granny Purple, where do we begin to recount this last year without you?

As we reflect, it's easy to see why God called you home on the day we've established for love. He knew how important it is for your family to celebrate every holiday together, every holiday except Valentine's Day. How appropriate to bring us all together to give Him our most precious gift, you.

God gave us comfort and strength, and we managed to get through Easter, Mother's Day, Memorial Day, and Father's Day.

In June, your grandson was married, it was difficult to be back in our home church to celebrate this happy occasion without you. Yet we know you were with us and you knew of the tributes we shared.

As July arrived and another grandson was married, again we knew how much you looked forward to the wedding, and we know you were with us.

August arrived and a grandaughter was married on your wedding anniversary. That day was especially difficult for us, yet happiness was evident because we remembered how proud you were for her to be the third generation to be married on that date.

As we closed out the remainder of this difficult year with Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's, it has been important for us to recall our treasured memories and the years God let us share with you.

As the Lord said, "...I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."

February 13, 2001

God looked around his garden and He found an empty place.

He then looked down upon this earth and saw your tired face.

He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful. He always takes the best.

He knew you were suffering. He knew you were in pain.
He knew that you would never get well on Earth again.

He saw that the road was getting rough and the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids and whispered, "Peace be thine."

It broke our heart to lose you, but you didn't go alone.
For part of us went with you, the day God called you home.

Always in Our Hearts,
Your Family

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Why do fireplace fires crackle and pop?

What you are hearing are miniature explosions.

Trees contain water, and even after they are cut down and dried for a season or two, there are still small quantities of water deep within the wood. As a log of wood heats up because of the surrounding flames, that interior water turns into steam. Sometimes the steam can escape out the end of the log; at other times it is trapped inside. When steam gets hotter still, it builds up tremendous pressure. Eventually the pressure causes a little bit of the wood to break, so that the steam can escape. That sudden escape, that release of pressure, is the miniature explosion. It makes a crackling, popping sound.

When all the water has been driven off from that particular log, the popping will cease. But when a new log is put on the fire, crackling and popping will start all over again.

If a log is wet on the outside, nothing special will happen. That external water will heat up, turn to steam, leave the surface of the wood, and go up the chimney along with air from the fireplace. Since that water isn't trapped, it doesn't build up any pressure, and therefore there is no reason to "pop."

Dr. Sheahen is a physicist who was educated at MIT. He lives at Deep Creek Lake and teaches physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

Thomas R. Ayers, 58, Oakland, was operating a 1996 Ford Explorer south on Garrett Highway and was attempting to turn left onto King's Run Road. James K. Lyons, 38, Cumberland, who was behind the Ayers vehicle, was unable to stop due to the wet and snowy road conditions causing a rear-end collision.

A passenger in the Ayers vehicle, Mary C. Ayers, 57, was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for injuries.

Lyons was cited for failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the scene.

RAILEY PRESENTS GIFT TO CHAMBER – Railey Realty recently presented a gift to the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce in the form of new lighting and holiday decorations for the exterior of the Visitors Center. Kessler To Speak At New Testament Baptist Church

The New Testament Baptist Church along Dung Hill Rd., Grantsville, will have a special speaker, the Rev. Russ Kessler, on Sunday, Feb. 16, starting at 10 a.m. and during the evening service at 7 p.m., weather permitting.

Rev. Kessler of Heritage Baptist Church, Somerset, Pa., was the first pastor to arrive on the scene of the plane crash in Somerset on Sept. 11, 2001. His church's new recreation building, dedicated only two days prior to the crash, was site for rescue persons and families. The crash was only three miles from the church. Kessler was asked to go to the scene and pray, and also had the opportunity to meet and pray with prominent leaders of America including Senators Arlen Specter and Rick Santorum, first lady Laura Bush, Mrs. Cheney, and former governor Tom Ridge, now the director of the Office of Homeland Security.

Kessler was then asked to speak at the memorial service soon after the September 11 attack. At this service at the county courthouse, nearly 6,000 people were present. This included the entire Pittsburgh Steelers football team. During this time, Kessler had the opportunity at the service to speak on CNN live for 13 minutes.

Rev. Kessler has left Heritage Baptist as pastor and has started a prison ministry titled "Voice of Victory."

Kessler resides in Somerset with his wife Susan.

Savage River Lodge Donates To Food Bank

The Savage River Lodge recently presented the Western Maryland Food Bank with a check from the proceeds of their "Eat, Drink, and Be Charitable" program for the month of January.

"We have been very successful and wanted to find a way to make a difference in the community," said Mike Dreisbach, lodge owner. "It's a great way for us to help non-profit organizations."

The "Eat, Drink, and Be Charitable" program is an avenue for non-profit organizations to raise awareness of their mission in addition to the financial donations. The Savage River Lodge donates 10% of its restaurant revenues, Monday through Thursday, to a different non-profit group each month. It also encourages guests to make additional contributions by simply adding a little extra to their total bill.

The Lodge has chosen Big Brothers/Big Sisters to be the recipient for the month of February. Among the future groups that will receive donations are the Animal Shelter, Cystic Fibrosis, and the United Way of Allegany and Garrett counties.

"There are still months not designated for any organization, and we will be happy to consider any 501c (3) organization."

For more information, to make a contribution, or to submit a request for consideration as the recipient of "Eat, Drink, and Be Charitable," persons may call Jan Russell at the Savage River Lodge at 301-689-3200.

Farming On The Mountaintop

AGRICULTURE FEEDS US ALL – Despite the ever-shrinking number of farms, the staff of government agencies charged with assisting this nation's farmers remind all citizens that American agriculture is a very large business that plays a vital role in both the national and global economies. Some local "ag-staffers" shown here, from the left, are Natural Resource and Conservation Service soil conservationist Gary Morfoot, Garrett County Farm Service Agency director Mike Kosier, Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service Western Maryland field supervisor Carolyn Ganoe, and Maryland Cooperative Extension Service extension agent Jim Simms. Among the many projects of the various agencies is the upcoming Agricultural Resource Management Costs and Returns Survey, which will gather information from area farmers about the costs of agricultural production, farm management and marketing strategies, farm assets and liabilities, and characteristics of the farm family. Local farmers who have been selected for the survey will be contacted for an interview in late February or early March, and survey results will be posted at www.usda.gov/nass.

Dennett Road Students Start Day Together Via Road Runner News

by Mary Sincell McEwen

A typical morning for students at Dennett Road Elementary School begins with the usual perfunctory duties: sharpening pencils, sitting down, getting quiet, and . . . turning on the television?

Yes, every classroom at Dennett Road is equipped with a television visible to all students, who settle down each morning to watch the Road Runner News, brought to them by six or seven participating students and a number of supporting adults.

"It's a great program for everyone," said Cathy Helbig, Garrett County's behavior support teacher, who had a hand in the planning of the program, and the securing of funds for its launch. "It helps connect everyone each day, and it provides something for the kids to be excited about. And when they are excited, they are learning."

The televised news program features two anchors, one weather reporter, "Losty Foundy" (a clown who shows items found around the school), and one student featured for achievement. Behind the scenes, one student operates the camera while another manages the cue cards. The program is complete with news-show music, colorful backgrounds, and various props.

"The kids have a great time doing it," said Mike Warne, a math teacher at Dennett Road who was responsible for wiring every classroom for the televisions. "And I think they do a good job."

With the help of Dan Taylor, the school's music teacher and basically the "program director" for the morning news, each day the anchors present a few headlines, announce birthdays, and read the lunch menu. The cameras then switch to the young meteorologist, who, with the help of Velcro-enhanced clouds and snowflakes, reports the current temperature and the forecast for the day.

Losty Foundy, a clown, is next, and he or she (depending on which fourth or fifth grader is playing the role) rummages through a closet and displays all the items recently found, ownerless, in and around the school.

The student body is then led in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, which is displayed on their television monitors.

Finally, a student who has achieved some goal or participated in a worthy project – or who even has a talent to show off – is given the spotlight for a few minutes.

Special videos are included about once a month, Helbig said, featuring skits performed by fifth graders about character traits like "responsibility" or "kindness." The most recent video, written and directed by fifth grade teacher Linda Goodrich, utilized comedy to relate the importance of helping out around the home.

"We had a lot of fun with this one," Goodrich said. "And I hope kids got the message. Humor always helps with that."

The next special video will be completed under the guidance of teacher Irene Sigel. While the news staff has so far included just the fourth and fifth graders, Warne said he hopes to include third graders soon, and perhaps eventually include students from each grade.

"The kids who do it are the ones who want to do it," Warne noted. "No one is forced to do the news. It's just an option for kids who enjoy that sort of thing."

Dennett Road is one of several local elementary schools equipped with a closed-circuit television system, and in fact Warne, at Dennett Road, is actually continuing a family tradition. His father, Mike Warne Sr., launched the county's first such system at Grantsville Elementary School some 20 years ago. Warne Jr. said Allen Skidmore, another teacher at Dennett Road, and Dusty Stanton were key players in the set-up as well. (Stanton recently retired after serving many years as the board of education's media resource center teacher.)

The television project is a direct result of the school's Ounce of Prevention Character Education program, Helbig said, adding that it is in conjunction with "the Garrett County Public School System's commitment to provide a safe and orderly environment for all students."

The Ounce of Prevention program was initiated last year at Southern High School with a focus on preventing incidences of bullying and sexual harassment. At the elementary level, the program's activities and resources are directed at promoting the character traits of respect and tolerance.

Funding for the program comes from a Maryland State Department of Education grant received by the board of education, as well as from one recently obtained for promoting school mental health and preventing violence. The latter was developed and planned through the Local Management Board (Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families) with the education board, the Garrett County Health Department, the Garrett County Mental Health Center, Community Action (and Head Start), and the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc.

At the school, the program has the support of the staff, teachers, and many parents. Members of the PTO, in fact, have given their time, talents, and materials to design and paint the background for the news show (see photos).

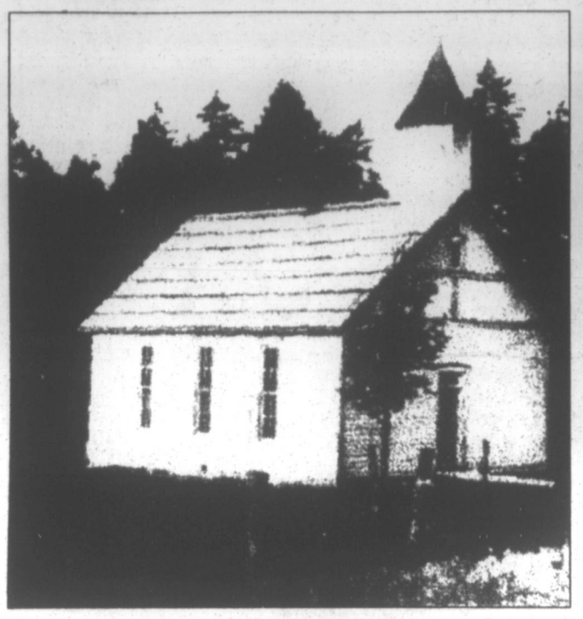
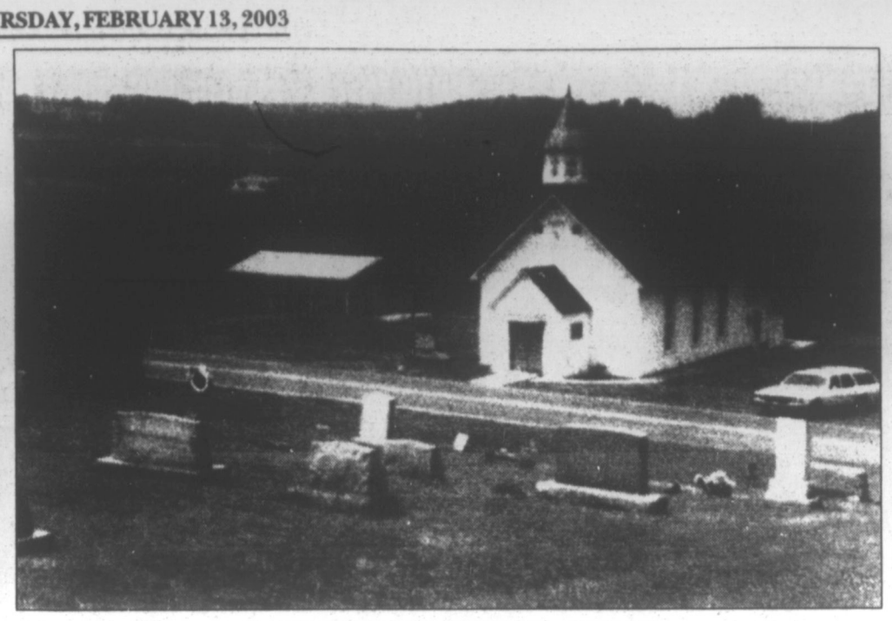
Lake Ford UM Church Makes Plans For Year-Long Centennial Celebration



LAKE FORD UM CHURCH – 1929



LAKE FORD UM CHURCH – TODAY

In the records of the area's Methodist Conference, it was noted in the spring of 1904 that "a new church at Cain in the Cranesville Charge is near completion." Before this time, people living at or near Cain (or Kane), now known as Lake Ford, worshipped at either the Cranesville Evangelical Church or in the local school. In 1902, Eugene and Jennie Teets deeded a parcel of land to the trustees of the local congregation for the sum of $10.

The congregation of the present church, Lake Ford United Methodist, is currently planning a year long celebration of its 100-year anniversary.

The property deeded in the early part of the 21st century lay between the dirt Cranesville Road and Muddy Creek on the edge of Pine (now Cranesville) Swamp. It was not until Sept. 11, 1904, that the church was dedicated, debt free of its $1,200 building cost.

The steeple of the one-room church housed a bell which was rung each Sunday, "pealing an invitation to all throughout the surrounding area." The same bell has continued throughout the years to send forth that same call to worship every Sunday.

When the church first opened its doors in 1904, it was framed by large pine trees (see 1929 photo) that grew along Muddy Creek. These trees have been claimed by the Cranesville Swamp over the years as the creek changes its course. Sunday worshippers and local birdwatchers now enjoy seeing nesting Canada geese, great blue herons, and bald eagles behind the church.

In recent years, parishioners have been more concerned with beavers that insist upon building their dam just below the church. This raises the water in Muddy Creek to a level that from time to time becomes a threat to the church's stone foundation, a spokesperson said.

Today Lake Ford UMC remains a part of the Cranesville Charge of the United Methodist Church, along with Faith UMC of Cranesville. Rev. William A. Durst, the 39th minister to serve at Lake Ford, is also the current pastor at Faith Church. Lake Ford's weekly worship service begins at 11:15 a.m. with the pealing of the belfry bell.

The congregation plans to begin the year long centennial celebration on July 27, 2003, with the annual picnic and hymn sing. This event is usually held in August, but this year has been moved up a month to coincide with the Teets family reunion.

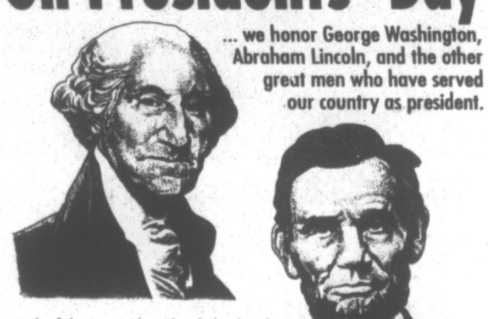
Other tentative plans for the centennial include a memorial tree planting on the church grounds in April 2004, an "Honor Roll" of former (including those whose remains are buried in the adjacent cemetery) and present members and attendees, and the 2004 annual picnic and hymn sing. The centennial celebration will conclude with a rededication service on Sunday, Sept. 12, 2004, 100 years and one day from the original dedication.

A revised history of the church is also in the plans. In order to make it as comprehensive and accurate as possible, the Lake Ford congregation is seeking information, photographs, or articles about the church over the last 100 years. Persons who may have these items are asked to contact Charlie Royer at 301-334-3948. Organizers would like to have copies of the items to included in the new church history.

The public will be informed of exact dates for planned activities and will be welcome to participate in any or all of these events, the spokesperson said.

On Presidents' Day

... we honor George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and the other great men who have served our country as president.



Each of these presidents has helped make our country what it is today. The hard work, vision and dedication of these extraordinary leaders will always be remembered.

In celebration of this special day, we will be closed Monday, February 17.

J.R. Lake Adding New Facilities For '03 Season

Jennings Randolph Lake will be offering expanded recreational facilities during its upcoming season with the help of a $1 million federal funding package. A new recreational area, featuring a sandy beach, swimming area, parking lot, and restroom and changing facilities, has been under construction on the West Virginia side of the lake since September, and should be completed in time for the season's opening this spring.

W.Va. Congressman Alan B. Mollohan placed the funding for the project in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers 2002 spending bill, enabling the lake to plan for the new features which were once thought beyond the possibility of lake uses.

"When the original master plan for Jennings Randolph Lake was written in 1973, a swimming area and beach were not included," Mollohan said. "Such uses were out of the question because of the poor water quality in the North Branch of the Potomac; however, water quality improvements over the past 30 years have opened the door to new recreational opportunities at the lake. The swim/beach area will give families yet another way to enjoy this outstanding resource."

The design and construction contract for the swim area, parking lot, and restroom/changing facilities cost $826,000, according to Mollahan. The remainder of the funds are being used to purchase new playground equipment for the lake's Craig Campground, and to support operation of the beach facility with benches, buoys, anchors, trash receptacles, and signs.

"The Corps of Engineers' support for recreational improvements at the lake is important to the local economy and to the quality of life throughout the region," Mollohan remarked. "I expect that the new swim/beach area will prove to be a popular destination and that it will introduce even more people to the quality recreational offerings that now exist at Jennings Randolph Lake."

Snapping Turtle Program Slated At Canaan Valley

Wildlife biologist Dr. Ed Michael will present a program titled "Snapping Turtles in Canaan Valley" on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 p.m. at the Canaan Valley National Wildlife Refuge Visitor Center located along Rt. 32 in Canaan Valley.

The program will feature a video produced for West Virginia Public Television's West Virginia Outdoors, as well as information on dates and location of hibernation collected through telemetry research on the turtles.

Michael has conducted research in Canaan Valley for more than 30 years, according to a visitor center spokesperson. He is also the author of A Valley Called Canaan: 1885-2002, a recently published historical novel describing the wetland wildlife that inhabit Canaan Valley, which is set against a background of major events that occurred during those years.

The biologist will be available to answer questions and autograph copies of the book.

For more information about this free program, persons may call 304-866-3858. The event is sponsored by the Canaan Valley National Wildlife Refuge and the Friends of the 500th, a local nonprofit group dedicated to supporting the conservation and public use of the refuge.

Snowy weather prevented members of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club from meeting on Feb. 10. They did, however, enter photos and posters for county judging on Feb. 6. Posters were entered in the Jr. Division by Trevor Spaid on "4-H Safety," for which he was awarded a white ribbon. In the Senior Division, Kari Harsh's entry was on "Health, Nutrition and Food Safety," blue ribbon, and goes on to state competition; by Bridgette Strawser in "4-H Dairy," also blue ribbon, and going on to state competition. Also in the Senior Division was a poster on "4-H Safety," entered by Tyler Harsh, red ribbon; "4-H Litter Control, Recycling, and the Environment," entered by Nicole Britner, red ribbon; and Ashley Bachtel, "4-H Dairy," which received a participation ribbon.

The photo entries have not yet been judged.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mathan Nissly, youngest son of Glenn and Joanne Nissly of Terra Alta, Camp Galilee, was a patient in Ruby Memorial Hospital last week, and on Tuesday this week was flown to Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Dale Mullenax of Horse Shoe Run remains a patient in Ruby Memorial, where he has been receiving treatment for an infection.

Nina Layman returned last Wednesday to her home near Aurora, and her condition seems improved.

Grace Bachtel of Horse Shoe Run fell last week outside her home and has a fractured ankle.

Sunday evening visitors with Louella Fike were her son and his friend, Norman Fike and Carolyn, of Belington. Mrs. Fike received word Monday of the death of her cousin, Alma Rinker, and also word that her sister-in-law, Ruth Snyder, Gortner, has recently suffered a massive stroke.

Several local families with 4-H members attended the WVU-Syracuse game in Morgantown on Saturday, which was the special 4-H Day game.

A luncheon was served Saturday at the Union Ambulance Service squad hall for the family of Harold Loughrie. This former Aurora man was 76. He died Feb. 3 at his home in Grantsville. He was born May 29, 1926, at Aurora, the son of the late Andrew Grant and Nellie M. Schrock Loughrie. One daughter, Nancy Gorman, preceded him in death.

He taught agriculture for 18 years at Northern High School, and was co-owner of Maryland Mountain Gardens. He was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II. Surviving are his widow, Janice Arnold Loughrie; two daughters, Jeanette Finkel of Reading, Pa., and Valerie Stevens of Shepherdstown; one sister, Barbara Coberly of Aurora; five grandchildren; and four step-grandchildren. Interment was in the Aurora Cemetery with military honors accorded by Garrett County veterans. A service was conducted at the Stewart Funeral Home in Oakland, with Bro. Oren Bender officiating.

TERRA ALTA

In honor of Freda Whitehair on her 95th birthday, Terra Alta Public Library has put upon the shelves the following books: Covenant by Beverly Lewis, All Nine are Alive by Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, Garden of Children's Prayers by Thomas Kinkade, Our Story by the Quecreek Miners, and Eleanor Roosevelt by David B. Roosevelt. These were presented by the Richards and the Melis families.

Two new trophies have been added to the display at the library. The Alumni Band of Terra Alta placed first in the Adult Band Competition Firemen's Day Parade at the Buckwheat Festival for 2001 and 2002. These were added to the many others this band has received in the past.

National Library Week is April 6-12. The library will have more details on activities planned for that week.

Volunteers, community service workers, and staff have been working on their obituary files. These are being separated in bound ring binders from the earliest date to present by years. They are then being put into alphabetical order. With the help of Donna Keener, these clippings are being indexed for patrons use. The library in the past kept all obituaries from the Dominion Post with any Prestonian or their surviving families being in the write-up.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing of the County Commissioners of Garrett County is scheduled for Tuesday, February 25, 2003, at 10:30 a.m. in the Garrett County Commissioners' Public Meeting Room, located at the Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland, to consider an amendment to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan.

The Keyser's Ridge area has had failing septic systems, and the existing wastewater treatment plant serving several businesses in the area is now obsolete. Also, Garrett County has proposed an industrial park in this area.

A feasibility study for this area will show various alternatives for wastewater collection and disposal. For planning purposes, the estimated flow for the area is approximately 30,000 gpd with a projected flow of 50,000 gpd for the next decade.

A preliminary study indicates that a wastewater collection system with a force main and pumping stations from the study area to the Grantsville wastewater treatment plant is the most cost effective solution. This arrangement will solve the failing septic systems, eliminate the small BFS/McDonald wastewater treatment plant in the area, and serve the proposed industrial park.

Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on February 25, 2003, to determine if the amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan are necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the proposed service area and if feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint.

By Order of the County Commissioners of Garrett County

County Administrator

The project is currently in the Project Planning phase, which includes agency and public involvement, engineering and environmental studies, and concludes with the receipt of Location Design Approvals for the selected alternate. All reasonable alternatives, including the No-Build Alternative, are developed and reviewed.

WVU Forestry Students Visit Garrett County For Studies

Several graduate students from the West Virginia University forestry program have been making visits to this area recently as part of a project to develop computer Web sites that feature forest heritage assets in the community. The students are visiting three pilot communities – Oakland, and Elkins and Webster Springs, W.Va. – to familiarize themselves with the communities and to collect photographs and information that they can use in their Web page projects, which will become part of the Appalachian Forest Heritage Area project (AFHA).

The students, who visited Oakland last weekend, are enrolled in the WVU Forestry Division's "Computer Applications in Forest Resource Management" course taught by Dr. Jingxin Wang. Their projects will support the AFHA's main purpose, which is to create forest-related links across a 17-county span from western Maryland through the high-elevation mountains of eastern West Virginia. Capitalizing on the region's rich forest heritage, over time the AFHA project will create different tourism "trails" based on forest ecology, management, culture, and art.

With Mike Mullan of the Tri-County Council serving as their "guide" to Oakland and the surrounding area, the students visited a number of local sites, including Swallow Falls State Park, the Kindness Forest Demonstration Area, and the town of Crellin, former site of several lumber mills. Mullan and the students discussed the history of the Crellin area, and proposed plans for economic development in Garrett County. Their Oakland visit took the students to the renovated Oakland Train Station, the Garrett County Historical Society Museum, and the Garrett County Courthouse.

The visits by students to these AFHA pilot communities are part of a WVU Service Learning program, which is designed to encourage student involvement in community service activities. Further information about the Appalachian Forest Heritage Area is available on the Internet at www.ahc.caf.wvu.edu/heritage.

PEERING INTO THE PAST TO PREPARE FOR THE FUTURE, these West Virginia University forestry students in Dr. Jingxin Wang's "Computer Applications in Forest Resource Management" course are working with municipal representatives of Oakland and of Elkins and Webster Springs, W.Va., to create computer Web pages promoting the multi-state Appalachian Forest Heritage Area (AFHA) Project. The AFHA is a regional grassroots economic tourism development project under way to link forest and forestry-related tourist destinations in the mountain communities of Maryland and West Virginia. In this service learning experience, web technology will be combined with graphic arts to promote economic development programs tied to natural and cultural resources. Pictured from the left are students Brian Jennings, Mark Jones, and Scott Kilbourn, plus local "guide" Mike Mullan of the Tri-County Council, as they study a Garrett County Historical Museum display that portrays the heritage of the mountaintop's timber industry.

"Savvy Senior"

NATIONAL EYE CARE PROJECT

Dear Savvy Senior:

A friend was recently telling me about some national program that's available for seniors that covers the cost of eye exams. I am a diabetic and am having some problems with my vision. I am also on a fixed, limited income that includes Social Security and Medicare, and I need to find out if this program is available to me. Can you help me before my vision gets any worse?

Thank you,
Looking For Answers

Dear Looking,

YES! The savvy program you're looking for is called the National Eye Care Project (NECP). Under this program, if you are a U.S. citizen or legal resident age 65 and older, have not seen an ophthalmologist in the last three years or more, do not belong to an HMO or have veteran's vision care, you can call a toll-free number for the name of a savvy, volunteer ophthalmologist in your area.

Savvy note: Each year, 12,000–24,000 people become blind because of diabetic eye disease. Screening and care could prevent up to 90 percent of diabetes-related blindness. However, only 60 percent of people with diabetes receive annual dilated eye exams.

Savvy appointment: After you make your appointment for a medical eye examination, the ophthalmologist will treat any condition he or she diagnoses during that first visit. If ongoing care is required for the condition, it will be provided free through the NECP for one year. Volunteer ophthalmologists will accept Medicare or other insurance as full payment, with no additional payment from you. If you don't have any insurance, the eye care is free.

Savvy note: Eyeglasses, prescriptions, hospital services, and fees of other medical professionals are not covered.

Savvy service: The greatest benefit of the NECP is that it encourages financially disadvantaged seniors to take care of vision problems before they get worse. Cataracts need to be monitored and eventually removed; glaucoma and ocular hypertension must be treated regularly. Left untreated, these diseases often lead to blindness.

To get the name of an ophthalmologist participating in the National Eye Care Project in your area, call the 24-hour toll-free number, 1-800-222-EYES (3937). The NECP is co-sponsored by the Health Care Financing Administration, the American Academy of Ophthalmology, and the American Optometric Association.

You can also call the American Optometric Association's Diabetes Hot Line at 1-800-262-3947 to be matched with an optometrist in your area who will perform an eye exam and arrange for subsequent care. Depending on financial need, the optometrist may waive the patient's Medicare deductible and co-payment for the service.

This savvy information was obtained in part from the National Eye Institute of the National Institutes of Health and All About Vision. See their Web sites at www.nei.nih.gov and www.allaboutvision.com.

Savvy resources:

VISION USA: Coordinated by the American Optometric Association (AOA); provides free eye care to uninsured, low-income workers and their families. Screening for the program takes place only during January of each year, with exams provided later in the year. (1-800-766-4466)

Lions Clubs International: Provides financial assistance to individuals for eye care through local clubs. There are Lions clubs in most localities, and services vary from club to club. Check your telephone book for the number of your local club, or call the national office at 630-571-5466.

Celebrate Sight: Coordinated by the American Academy of Ophthalmology; is a program offering free examinations and treatment for glaucoma to people who do not have medical insurance. (1-800-391-EYES)

Mission Cataract USA: Coordinated by the Volunteer Eye Surgeons' Association, this program provides free cataract surgery to people of all ages who have no other means to pay. Surgeries are scheduled annually, usually in May. (1-800-343-7265)

New Eyes for the Needy provides vouchers for the purchase of new prescription eyeglasses. Mailing address: 549 Millburn Avenue, P.O. Box 332, Short Hills, NJ 07078-0332. (973-376-4903)

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or see our Web site at www.savvysenior.org.

Bartlett Stresses Flood Mitigation Task Force Need

Congressman Roscoe G. Bartlett (R-Md.-6) said today, Feb. 20, that weather forecasts of severe rain for the forthcoming weekend in the wake of last weekend's huge snowstorm confirm the necessity of continuing the Western Maryland Flood Mitigation Task Force.

"With 49 inches of snow fallen in Garrett County and two feet or more in Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties," said Bartlett, "we're facing the potential for another devastating flood like the 1996 flooding, which led to the creation of the task force."

Following Governor Bob Ehrlich's election in November, Bartlett wrote the newly elected official, stressing the importance of the Task Force and asking for continued support from his administration.

"The Western Maryland Flood Mitigation Task Force has contributed to significantly reducing the potential for flood damage," said Bartlett. "However, as I noted in a Nov. 25, 2002, letter to then Governor-elect Ehrlich, more needs to be done. The Task Force must continue because the threat for potential flooding will never go away in wester.. Maryland. Our best defense against flooding is preparation and mitigation to limit and prevent devastating flood damage. That is the work that the Western Maryland Flood Mitigation Task Force is doing so well."

IT WAS JUST A SHORT HOP from the snowdrift to the rooftop for Josh Junkins, shown as he shovels the carport of the Stewart Funeral Home in Oakland. Four feet of snow can weigh heavily on a rooftop, especially a flat one, and Josh took some careful and wise steps Monday afternoon to alleviate the danger of collapse. While the job can be risky, persons are advised to remove snow from flat roofs, especially in light of the weather forecast, which is calling for significant rain. The rain added to the already heavy drifts will take a toll on structures, according to Brad Frantz, director of the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management. "If you can't take care of the problem yourself, you should hire someone to do it for you," he advised. The weather is the news of the week, of course, as four feet fell on the mountaintop during the three-day storm. See stories and photos throughout today's paper. Photo by Mary S. McEwen.

Proposed Backbone Mtn. Wind Farm Gains State PSC Approval

The Maryland Public Service Commission has issued a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity for construction of a 101-megawatt wind energy electric generation facility along Backbone Mountain in Garrett County. Construction of the 67-turbine project of Clipper Windpower could begin as early as May, if no appeals are filed within the next 30 days.

"This was one of the more difficult approval processes we've been through," Clipper Eastern Region leader Kevin Rackstraw said of the PSC's hearing process. "We've put up 30 to 40 wind facilities around the country, with as many as 6 to 10 of the size we're proposing for Garrett County, and the concessions we had to make for this project were the most demanding we've had yet."

PSC hearing examiner Allen Freifeld gave his agency's approval for the windmills, which will be built along the ridge of Backbone Mountain from Wild Turkey Rock to just short of Eagle Rock Road, along Bethlehem Road and north of Gorman Road near state Route 560. Clipper may not build the entire 67-turbine project in this phase, but the majority of turbines will be built in the first phase. The remainder will be built in a second phase if conditions warrant.

Freifeld also approved a

Storm-Stranded Visitors Treated Well By Co.'s Hospitality Corps

By Peggy Santamaria

A weekend getaway to the mountains in Garrett County turned into a rather memorable experience for thousands of people who found themselves at "ground zero" for the blizzard of '03. Every room in the county had been booked for all or part of the Valentine's/Presidents' Day weekend, according to Laura Reilly, tourism specialist at the Garrett County Visitors Center.

When the storm hit with a force unknown for the last 80 years, the county's heritage of hospitality proved to be alive and well. Guests in hotels, inns, and bed and breakfasts had no choice but to revise plans. They would be unable to depart on schedule and so earned an extra day or two away from home.

Meeting the needs of these guests challenged the resources of innkeepers countywide. The Casselman Inn in Grantsville, catering to the needs of travelers along the National Road since the mid-19th century, held to its long tradition of providing comfort for tourists.

"About half of our guests who were due to leave Sunday morning were unable to get out. Most of them were from Baltimore and said

Hearing Set For County Roads Weight Increase

A General Assembly bill that would permit vehicles in excess of 73,000 pounds to use certain county roads in Garrett County will be heard in Annapolis on Tuesday, March 4.

The House Environmental Matters Committee will conduct the hearing for HB 831 at 1 p.m. in Room 140 of the Lowe Office Building.

Anyone wishing to testify must sign the witness register before the hearing begins. Persons with written testimony must also submit 40 copies to the committee staff for distribution one hour prior to the hearing.

Sponsored by Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer, the bill was requested by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners. The officials asked that legislation be introduced which would increase the maximum weight limit on county roads to 80,000 pounds. This would be consistent with the limits for state highways.

Currently, drivers of vehicles weighing more than 73,000 pounds must use state roads or risk being fined by law enforcement

Storm Buries County In 50+ Inches Of Snow; Recovery Is Continuing

Officials worry about flooding potential

A storm of historic proportions struck Garrett County and much of the East Coast on Presidents' Day weekend, bringing four feet of snow to the mountaintop. Official counts place the snow depth at 50 to 52 inches, breaking records of one-time accumulations for as far back as 80 years.

Snow began to fall rapidly on Saturday evening, Feb. 16. Winds were not high-speed, but the temperature hovered around only 8 or 9 degrees throughout Sunday. The snowfall did not cease until Monday afternoon, leaving the entire county buried in four feet, with some drifts – piled on top of previous snow piles – reportedly as high as 20 feet.

The public schools have been closed since Monday, and will remain closed for the rest of the week. Most businesses were closed on Monday, several on Tuesday, and the county offices did not reopen until today.

The volume of snow has posed numerous dilemmas, chiefly that of finding space to put the massive amounts in order to open roads, and to dig out sidewalks and driveways.

Roads workers were already working 24 hours a day before the weekend storm hit, according to Fred Polce, Garrett County Roads Department supervisor.

"We have worked every day in February, around the clock," Polce said this morning. He reported that all county roads are open today, but several of them are still one-lane. Crews continue to work non-stop to widen them.

"By quitting time tomorrow," Polce said, "the majority of county roads will be back to two lanes."

Some of the biggest problems for the roads workers have been abandoned vehicles in the roadways. Polce said the problem has been nearly eliminated, but there are still vehicles parked along roadways that have not been shoveled out. Residents are asked to do so as soon as possible.

The snow emergency plan on state roads was lifted yesterday morning, but remains in effect on county roads, Polce noted. This means drivers are required to operate vehicles with snowtires and that they are not to park their vehicles along county roads.

Polce also reported that

Rain, Warm Temperatures Could Bring Flooding On Heels Of Blizzard

by Justin Palk
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — With tons of snow sitting on frozen ground, and forecasts calling for rain and several days of above-40 temperatures, Maryland Emergency Management Agency officials worry that the state could be facing a repeat of the 1996 floods.

"[This weekend] has the potential to be pretty bad," said Quentin Banks, a spokesman for the state emergency agency.

In 1996, the Federal Emergency Management Agency provided over $8 million in aid to the state after floods hit northern and western Maryland. The National Weather Service forecast for this weekend is not concrete yet, but there will probably be some flooding, mostly in urban streets, said Rich Hitchens, a senior forecaster with the service.

"I would say the potential is there for this to be significant, but the bells aren't going off" like they did in 1996, he said.

Allegany County is still waiting to see exactly what the weather is going to do, said Ron Frye, assistant director of the county's Emergency Services and Communications Department. The county is right on the edge of the rain/snow line, he said, and while more snow wouldn't be that big a deal, rain could be a real problem.

"A mile either way could make a big difference," Frye said. "We're just trying to get a handle on the weather."

Charles County is expecting an inch of rain and probably some road flooding, but that is not the only problem, said Donald McGuire, the county's director of Emergency Services. In addition to the ice and snow, trees felled by last April's tornado are still damming some creeks and streams, which increases the risk of floods, he said.

Customers at Cumberland Concrete are starting to talk about the possibility of County Issues Statement On Snow Removal

The Garrett County commissioners issued a reminder to residents about the county's snow removal policy, following last weekend's record-setting snow storm.

County snow removal equipment will not be used to open private roads under any circumstances except to allow the passage of emergency vehicles, said county administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

All requests for urgent/emergency services, including shelter, food or pharmaceutical should be made to the Garrett County Department of Emergency Management at 301-334-1930. Rescue teams are prepared to use ATVs or snowmobiles to access residents with such needs.

"Cooperation with this policy is appreciated," said Pagenhardt.

TRYING TO FIND THE ICE – Workers have been shoveling and snow-blowing all day and night on the beach and the lake behind Uno Restaurant in preparation for the 5th annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk to benefit Special Olympics Maryland. The dunk is set for this Saturday, Feb. 22, at 2 p.m. There have been many people who have volunteered their time and snow blowers to help in this effort, according to Bill Ingram, general manager of Uno's. It has been reported that the dunk will be a bit different this year because of the amount of snow on top of approximately 20 inches of ice. Once the snow is cleared off the ice, dump tanks from various volunteer fire departments will be brought in, placed on the ice, and filled with water. "The fans might be disappointed, but the dunkers will probably be okay with it," said Ingram. Pictured above hard at work are Tom Schniedwind of Special Olympics Maryland, Lt. John Newnan of the Howard County Police Department, Maj. Greg Shipley of the Maryland State Police, and Keith Platter, a Special Olympian. This event is coordinated by the MSP and local law enforcement agencies, and will benefit the athletes of Garrett and Allegany counties, part of a network of 10,000 Special Olympic athletes across the entire state who compete throughout the year. Dunkers can still register the day of the event.

GARRETT COUNTY SAYS "GOOD MORNING, AMERICA!" This week's massive snowstorm has wrought many things in and around Garrett County, one of which has been national attention. Receiving 50 inches of snow has landed the county in the headlines of national newspapers, in stories on the Internet, and, on Wednesday, on the popular ABC television program Good Morning America. A correspondent from ABC contacted the newsroom of The Republican newspaper Tuesday, and said the show's anchorperson Diane Sawyer wanted to arrange a live remote from the place hardest hit with snow. A film crew arrived in the county Tuesday night, and met early the next morning with Oakland resident and Republican writer Mary McEwen, with whom the interview took place during the morning show. After several "teaser" shots before commercials of McEwen standing in waist-high snow, the actual interview took place at about 8:50 a.m. "It was a blast — a cold blast, but a blast," McEwen said. "The film crew was great, and the interview was exciting. The whole morning was sort of surreal." McEwen is pictured above left as she talks with Sawyer and Charlie Gibson via a wireless microphone and ear piece. Producer Dean Hovell is shown behind the camera, which was operated by Hank Diaselkamp. Pictured in the foreground is Nick Greiner, audio technician, and maintaining the satellite link-up was Brian McConnaughey (not pictured). Photo by John McEwen.

ROOFS COLLAPSE – The front office area roof of the One Maryland shell building (above) and a section of the Sears warehouse roof collapsed on Monday from the weight of more than four feet of snow, following last weekend's record setting storm. The shell building is designed to house multiple businesses; however, there were no tenants occupying the facility at the time of the collapse. The recently completed 30,000-square-foot structure is located in the Southern Garrett Business and Technology Park along Rt. 135 near Mountain Lake Park. Built by Hardy Construction Services of Frederick, it is owned by the Maryland Economic Development Corporation (MEDCO). The Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) provided the $2.3 million investment through its One Maryland financing program. DBED and the Garrett County Department of Economic Development have been marketing the facility and working with MEDCO to find tenants. The damage estimate is not yet known. Director Jim Hinebaugh, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, said MEDCO officials, the building's architect, and the construction firm will meet soon to determine the cause of the collapse. A 36-foot section of the Sears roof also collapsed early Monday morning. Located along Rt. 219 south of Oakland, the retail business is owned by Russell Sines. The estimated damage to the 21-year-old structure is $100,000. The store is expected to open for business at 9 a.m. tomorrow, Feb. 21. Photos by John McEwen.

SHED ROOF COLLAPSES – Several members of the Pleasant Valley Amish community are shown above assessing the damage to a shed. The roof collapsed yesterday, Feb. 19, at about 2 p.m. after several feet of heavy snow fell onto it from the roof of an adjacent barn. The shed, which housed dairy cattle, is located on the Edwin Bender farm off Paul Friend Road. Workers at nearby Rigidply Rafters and young men with the Amish Youth Group hurried to scene to helped remove the animals. Amazingly, only one cow was trapped in the debris, and after removing the rubble and snow, workers found it still alive. The animal is reportedly doing well. Estimated damage to the building, however, is $7,000 to $8,000, according to Bender's brother. Photo by John McEwen

County Restaurant Assn. Forming

An association of local restaurant owners, created under the auspices of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, is seeking new members who are interested in working with others to develop marketing strategies. Creation of a dining guide is the first task on the group's agenda.

"This association grew from the desire of several of the local eateries to have a combined marketing tool in the form of a brochure," explained Deb Clatterbuck, tourism marketing director at the chamber. Members of this association will also benefit from the opportunity to share ideas and information during association meetings or through community networking, she said.

To join the association, a food service business must offer a menu, have an area for seated dining (a picnic table will qualify), and be a member of the chamber of commerce and pay dues of $50. Listing in the dining guide will include a marketing slogan, a sample menu, and a photo or logo. Guide categories will include: American; bakery; caterer; family/pizza; fast food/seasonal; French; and home style.

Applications to join the restaurant association are available through the chamber of commerce and may be picked up at the Visitors Center in McHenry or received by calling the chamber at 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400. Deadline to submit an application is March 11.

Oakland City Police Arrest Man For Drugs

Alfred Jay Kight, 25, Oakland, was arrested for alleged drug possession after Oakland City Police stopped his vehicle on Ninth Street for speeding.

A K-9 scan of the vehicle revealed a 7/16 socket, which was being used as a smoking device and contained suspected marijuana.

Kight was placed under arrest and was later released on his own recognizance.

He was charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia, police said.

Slick Roadways Lead To Two MV Accidents

Slick road conditions were to blame for two separate motor vehicle accidents Sunday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Eric Ellifritz of Oakland was cited for failure to reduce speed in dangerous weather conditions after his 1988 Plymouth collided with a Garrett County plow truck, driven by Daniel Gibson of Oakland.

The accident occurred on Crellin Underwood Road shortly before noon, police said.

At approximately the same time, two vehicles collided on Route 560 near King Wildesen Road. Police said that low visibility and slick road conditions were to blame.

A 1987 Subaru, driven by Samantha Moats, Gormania, W.Va., collided with a 1991 Chevy, driven by Noah Gaither of Bayard, W.Va.

A citation was issued to Moats for failing to reduce speed in dangerous weather conditions.
